

Breeders Must Use Purebred Stallions

Mare Owners Should Make Sure Stallions Used For Service Carry High Certificate

In order to improve horse breeding in the Province of Ontario, the Ontario Stallion Enrolment Act, passed by the Ontario Legislature on August 1st, 1912, provided for the use of purebred stallions only, in the Province after the season of 1918.

To further indicate the relative merit of stallions being offered for public service, each stallion must be inspected at least once every three years and passed by the Stallion Enrolment Board. The certificates issued following inspection are namely, Form One, Two, Three and Four. On the first two classes, the Ontario and Dominion governments co-operate in paying premiums according to the number of foals left to the service of these stallions.

These premiums encourage stallion owners to purchase and maintain for public use horses of high quality. Mare owners should take advantage of this inspection and enrolment by making sure the stallions used for service carry a high certificate, as it is only by the use of the best sires that horse owners can hope to improve the general standard of horses in Ontario.

VARIED SPEED LIMITS

In connection with Ontario's action in increasing the speed limit it is interesting to note what other provinces do, says the North Bay Nugget. In Prince Edward Island "careful and prudent" driving is the test. In Manitoba it is the same. Saskatchewan asks motorists to pipe down to 35, but only while passing other vehicles. Nova Scotia demands "reasonable and proper" driving, with 40 as the high limit. New Brunswick employs a system of "restricted districts". In Quebec and Alberta it's 30. In British Columbia the same, except where highway signs provide otherwise.

Your optimistic outlook on life expressed in your conduct and preaching has left a lasting impression on us. We are deeply grateful for your splendid service both in church and home. After a short program Dr. Routley called on Mr. and Mrs. Partridge to come to the platform front and Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Smith who read the address and made the presentation from Edgeley. The address read by Mrs. Phillips was as follows:

Our gathering to-night is not altogether a pleasant one for we find it almost impossible to say farewell to you both, who have taken such a whole-hearted interest in our behalf. During the years of your pastorate among us we have learned to appreciate your worth. Your loyalty to the course of the church and your cheerful Christian spirit have been an inspiration to each one of us. Interested always in everything which has been for the good of our church, sympathetic with those in trouble or in need and ever ready to cheer and help with a brightness which has been so encouraging to all, we fully realize the loss your removal will be to us. We trust in your residence in Beaverton you may find congenial surroundings where you may make new acquaintances which may develop into as genuine friendship as you have always had in Edgeley. We ask you to accept this gift as a slight expression of respect from the people of this community and a modest memento of our appreciation and memories. May you be spared to be a very great influence of spiritual helpfulness in your new charge. This is the sincere wish of the friends of Edgeley.

Mrs. Smith presented the beautiful floor lamp and cut glass crystal vase. The chairman then called on Mr. R. Marratt and Mr. F. Rumble who made the presentation of a set of dishes from the Maple congregation.
