New 2 Year Course For Farm Youths At O.A.C. Guelph

Free tuition and reduced board among appealing features of course sponsored by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture.

A new course in agriculture designed specially to meet the needs of farmers' sons who intend to make farming their life work will commence September 20th at the O.A.C., Guelph. The course covers a two-year period and has been carefully prepared by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, and James B. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in conjunction with Dr. G. I. Christie, President of the O.A.C. and the college staff.

"I am particularly desirous of seeing an increased number of two-year students attending the O.A.C. during the coming year," stated Hon. Duncan Marshall in announcing the course. "In order to encourage farm boys who find it difficult to pay their expenses at an institution of this kind, we have this year reduced the board for two-year students from $5.50 to $3.50 per week. In addition, there will be no tuition fees for this particular course." Mr. Marshall pointed out that agricultural education is never finished, and that the instruction given at the college would fit farm boys for future years on the farm.

Dr. G. I. Christie, in discussing the new course, was most enthusiastic. "Each year, hundreds of young men leave school before they have completed their education," he said. "In some cases they are required at home to assist in farm work. Illness and other reasons can be offered for many others who now find themselves on farms without the training they desire."

"This new two-year course which opens in September and closes on April 14th, 1938, permits students to spend the entire crop season on the farm. A large share of the time at the college will be given to subjects of farm production, management, and marketing of farm products. It is also recognized," continued Dr. Christie, "that the problems of the farming community demand that young men who are to take their proper place in rural activities must have a training in fundamental subjects. Therefore the new course includes Public Speaking, Composition, Mathematics, Literature, Economics, Co-operation and the larger problem of markets. Graduation exercises will be held immediately at the close of the course and certificates presented to those who have completed the work in a satisfactory manner."

Dr. Christie pointed out that members of the O.A.C. staff would be present at the O.A.C. booth, West Annex of the Coliseum, Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, to give any information desired as to the two-year or other courses at the O.A.C. The same information can also be obtained by writing direct to Dr. G. I. Christie, O.A.C., Guelph, Ont.

NATIONAL RECOVERY SEEN BY STABILITY OF SMALL FARM

"Agriculture is not a mere industry—it is a mode of life deserving the care of all citizens trying to better their social condition," declared Dr. Georges Bouchard, M. P. for Kamouraska, P.Q., in an address at the Canadian Institute of Economics and Politics, now in session at Geneva Park.

A prominent Agriculturist, the speaker advocated an increase in farming population not production to solve the employment problem which big industries were incapable of correcting and pointed out that the average size farm of 100 or 200 acres was best for the stability of the small holder who wants to produce sufficient for himself and his family.

Educational Reform
"An education system which will teach our young people to love the land, to be proud of it, and to stay on the farm is required," stated the Quebec farmer. "Rather than educate our children away from the country, we must seek how to turn into rural snobbery that which now exists in favour of the city," he continued.

"One of the strongest arguments for return to the simple life is that the peasant then brings his obligations under a single head," he said further. "The reason for land hunger is in the element of security by attachment to the land and in pride of ownership. The peasant farmer is secure and he pays for this security and independence in hard times by hard work and his life on the land offers amenities which no city can give."

Dr. Bouchard held that 1,000 more farm homes meant 5,000 less unemployed. Canada should have a harmonious, balanced population and it was wrong for the city people to superimpose their "civilization" on the country without discrimination. The world, too long been centred in industrial civilization, should seek a fuller interpretation of the use of agrarian people.

Back to Land Movements
"Any land policy not based on a clear perception of the rural life is bound to have little success and to be extremely costly," said Dr. Bouchard in criticising the back to the land movements as they now existed. "Do not settle on the land a man with a proletariat mentality. A man accustomed to a regular pay check will find it too hard on the farm where he has to wait many months before getting results from his long, hard work."

"Our educational system is too urbanly shaped. We open schools to educate city jobless in farming and we educate rural youth to leave the land." The speaker desired that children should be taught a better appreciation of nature and a general movement to spread and formulate rural ideals!
In concluding, the federal M. P. declared that Agriculture is the rock on which rest our national and economic problems. Other economic problems will right themselves in a strong rural life with the small family farm the chief social unit. "We must reconstruct Canada on a wider conception of rural life," Dr. Bouchard said in closing.

We frequently credit a long sober face with wisdom, when the cause is indigestion.
Everyone in business must expect to handle some transactions at a loss.
It was necessary to secure the personal approval of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to bring the United States Navy Band to the Canadian National Exhibition this year. With eighty-five musicians and attaches the personnel will run to almost one hundred. They will travel to and from Washington, D.C., in special trains.

Regarding the Spread of Infantile Paralysis

It is important to recognize cases of Infantile Paralysis (Poliomyelitis) early. The serum used in the treatment of Infantile Paralysis is only of value if given early in the disease, before paralysis sets in. Early recognition also aids in preventing the spread of the disease to others. Parents are therefore earnestly requested to consult their Family Doctor promptly if their children develop symptoms that are suggestive of Infantile Paralysis.

The following are the important symptoms to watch for:

1. FEVER—100-102 degrees is the average range of temperature.
2. NECK STIFFNESS — There is a slight resistance on attempting forward movement of the head to the chest. This may be accompanied by pain.
3. HEADACHE — May be present at the onset.
4. VOMITING — Is usually present at the onset.
5. SORE THROAT — Slight redness and soreness of the throat is present in about one-half the cases.
6. Diarrhoea is only present in a very few cases. Slight constipation occurs more frequently.
7. Infantile Paralysis is chiefly a disease of childhood, but no age is exempt. It is rare in young infants. It occurs most frequently in the second, third and fourth years and from that age on becomes less frequent.

Parents are also requested to avoid contacts, as far as possible, by keeping their children away from crowded places. It will be necessary to postpone the reopening of the schools until September 7th.

In order to clear up some confusion that has arisen, we wish to state that Infantile Paralysis and Poliomyelitis are two names for the same disease. To avoid further confusion placards used from now on will bear the name Infantile Paralysis.

Any children that have been in contact with a child that develops Infantile Paralysis, must be kept in their own home for 10 days following that contact providing the said contact occurred during the 2 days preceding the onset of the disease.

Forty-one candidates wrote 150 papers passing in 123, an average success of 82%.
Doctor—"I would advise you, madam, to take frequent baths, get plenty of fresh air and dress in cool clothes."
Husband (an hour later)—"What did the doctor say?"
Woman—"He said I ought to go to the beach and then to the mountains. Also that I must get some new light gowns at once."
Big Boss (Invited out to dinner by one of his employees—"I don't often have such a dinner as this, young fellow."
Son of family—"Neither do we. I am sure glad you came."
The salesman may be smarter than his prospect, but he makes a mistake when he calls his attention to that fact.
