

HYDRO IS YOURS.....USE IT!

THE SHOW MUST GO ON!

There is an unwritten law in the theatrical profession. Regardless of what happens—"the show must go on!" In thousands of theatres throughout Ontario this same traditional rule still applies, but in a different way. Today, "the show must go on"—with Hydro.

The "Talkies" and Hydro, bring to the cities and the small towns alike, the best the theatre offers in drama, music, comedy, while travelogues and news-reels bring a new form of education.

Hydro also makes it possible to enjoy your theatre night right through the hottest season, with the aid of air conditioning and cooling systems, which the majority of theatres now provide.

This same Hydro service that is essential for the "Talkies" is also necessary for night baseball, tennis, lawn bowling and other forms of night entertainment and sport, which electricity now makes it possible to enjoy to a much greater degree.

Thus in the realm of entertainment and sport—as in so many other phases of activity—Hydro—your Hydro—makes an essential contribution to a better, happier, healthier livelihood for the people of the Province of Ontario with its low-cost power.

The success of Hydro in being able to lower power costs in the past two years in the face of a general increase in the price of practically everything we use, is a noteworthy achievement. Its continuous efforts to lower these power costs still further, and extend the benefits which accrue throughout the Province of Ontario, is a matter in which you should be vitally interested.

Wife of the Premier Charming and Talented

(Article written by L. B. Birdsall, The Times Journal, St. Thomas, Ont.)

Successful homemaker, devoted wife and mother, and a business woman of proven ability, Premier M. F. Hepburn has in Mrs. Hepburn an assistant and co-worker whose worth cannot be underestimated. The First Lady of the Province is a quiet, home-loving woman, a gracious hostess to the many who visit the Hepburn farm residence, four miles south-east of the city of St. Thomas. Both she and the Premier are the very soul of hospitality. Their home is always open to their friends and acquaintances—and be it said to their credit that their warmest friends are still the people who have known them for years. Like her popular husband, the Premier, Mrs. Hepburn has not permitted political success to turn her head. She is the same unaffected person she was 12 years ago when "Mitch" Hepburn was just a hustling young Elgin county farmer.

Only a comparatively few people know and appreciate Mrs. Hepburn's business ability. Filling the position of Prime Minister of Ontario, treasurer of the province, president of the cabinet council, as well as looking after two or three other portfolios within the last few months hasn't given Premier Hepburn much time to devote to his farming operations—not nearly as much as he would like to devote to them. And Premier Hepburn isn't a small farmer. He has nearly 1,000 acres of land under cultivation or under pasturage in South Yarmouth, while his farming activities are diversified, to say the least. Somebody had to manage that big farm during the Premier's absence on official duty, and the responsibility fell on Mrs. Hepburn. She has looked after the farm management exceptionally well, attending to the various details as capably as any experienced man could.

The Premier places implicit faith in her sound judgment. Born and raised on a farm, daughter of one of the most progressive and practical farmers in Southwold township, Mrs. Hepburn has a practical knowledge of farming and farm life that has stood her in good stead.

Pride in Home

Remaining at the helm while the Premier was attending to the affairs of state at Queen's Park, Toronto, has not lessened Mrs. Hepburn's pride in home, nor in the things that bear the stamp of the gentlewoman. Her home and home surroundings both claim her attention. She is an ardent horticulturist. To her the finest recreation is to get out in her spacious gardens, with her two happy children, six year old Peter, and three year old Patricia, working among her flowers, or supervising some new landscaping scheme or decorative unit. A great job entered the Hepburn household with the arrival of the Premier's and Mrs. Hepburn's adopted son and daughter. Denied children of their own, both have opened their hearts to the two children. Peter was the first to arrive, a sturdy little boy, always asking questions pertaining to the hundred and one wonders of his new life and every inch a young farmer. Then came Patricia, sunny-tempered little Patricia with more than a glint of red gold in her curled tresses. No mother could be more devoted to the welfare of her children. Every Sunday morning when they are at home, Peter and Patsy accompany their mother to the little village of Union to attend Sunday School in the little United Church that stands not far distant from the little country school where Premier Hepburn acquired his first knowledge of the alphabet and words of one syllable. Mrs. Hepburn was brought up in the Presbyterian faith—good Scottish Presbyterianism, but following church union she affiliated with the United church, attending the little church in Union where Peter and Patsy now attend Sunday School. Incidentally, it was the same church that the Premier attended in his boyhood.

The First Lady of Ontario is a busy woman — busy farm woman. She has no time for snobbery but always time to welcome and entertain old friends. She is the same Eva Burton Hepburn who was born on the old Port Stanley Highway in Southwold township, near the historic village of Fingal, a little better than 37 years ago. She is the same girl whom the future Premier of Ontario courted about 18 years ago and took to rural dances, church socials and garden parties in the old family flivver.

DIFFICULTY

What is difficulty? Only a word indicating the degree of strength requisite for accomplishing particular objects; a mere notice of the necessity for exertion; a bugbear to children and fools; only a mere stimulus to men.—Samuel Warren.

NEW 'LUNG' IS SEEN AS AID IN PNEUMONIA

Positive Pressure Would Drive Out Chest Fluids, Says Inventor

The copper casing of the "Leibel lung," recently devised in the department of medical research of the University of Toronto, in the Banting Institute, will be replaced by a reinforced rubber jacket, following experiment recently, at the Hospital for Sick Children, according to its inventor, Bernard Leibel, 22-year-old Toronto medical student, and infantile paralysis "cure."

"The metal jacket is adjustable to size, but children are not, and there must be faced the difference for example, between a child with a narrow chest and broad hips, and vice versa," he said.

Discussing the positive pressure played in the "lung," in addition to negative explanation, its inventor explained that this was of great value in cases where pneumonia was threatened, since it drove all fluid out of the lungs. It would also prove of assistance in other urgent artificial respiration cases, such as drownings, and casualties from severe electric shock.

Science always lags behind romance. Think what Captain Kidd could have done with a modern submarine.
