THORNHILL

Lawrence Memorial Hall was filled to capacity on Wednesday afternoon when ladies from Thornhill and district gathered to hear Mrs. H. M. Aitken give one of her popular cooking demonstrations.

As cooking is a subject close to most women's hearts, Mrs. Aitken held the attention of everyone as she made cake, rolls, salads, puddings, etc., mixing it with amusing tales of some of her experiences. A number of women, went home carrying with them, the good things that had been made during the afternoon, also some of the famous products that Mrs. Aitken recommends in her cooking. These were obtained by lucky draws. Next Saturday when you are wondering what to bake, try the Fudge cake for small family. It is good.

Miss Anderson is home on furlough from Nigeria, West Africa, where she has spent the past six years in the Sudan Interior Mission. Her talk was inspiring and uplifting and when one considers the sacrifice she is making to save others, (even working among the lepers) it makes one feel selfish for doing so little.

A sweet solo "Lead me to Calvary" was sung by Miss Mary Rollinson, Langstaff, playing her own accompaniment on the guitar. Easter hymns were sung and Mrs. Wesley presided over the meeting.

Mrs. McLean, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Howard Caines, served tea at the close.

Woodbridge Resident Finds Ghoul Notes

Provincial police have taken possession of "ghoul" notes found near Hillcrest Cemetery recently, according to the finder, Mr. Harry Watts. Mr. Watts declared he discovered the missives when passing the cemetery en route to work at 6.30 a.m. He said he sent word to the Woodbridge constable, George Scott, and later heard that provincial men from headquarters had hurried to Woodbridge to take possession of the articles. The words "The ghouls have come ? ? ?" were printed in chalk on a piece of tin, said the finder, while some yards away the same words, minus the question marks, were scrawled on an old car fender. Both articles were laying near the fence only a few yards from the scene of the grave robbery in Hillcrest cemetery. At the time Mr. Watts had feared another visit from the grave robbers but a walk through the cemetery showed that no further graves had been desecrated.
