Locomotive of Royal Train

Scheduled for the biggest job ever assigned to a steam locomotive, Canadian Pacific engine 2850, photographed at the Angus Shops in Montreal, is ready to haul Their Majesties the King and Queen on their 3,000-mile trip across Canada. The royal tour will mark the first time one engine has made a continuous journey of this length, and 2850's record will not be equalled on the tour.

Specially re-fitted and decorated for the occasion the big Canadian Pacific locomotive is a mass of shining stainless steel, royal blue, silver and gold. The semi-streamlined engine bears the royal arms over the headlight which has been sunk flush with the front of the boiler-casing; Imperial Crowns decorate each running board; the crest of the Canadian Pacific appears beneath the window of the cab and, on the tender, the royal arms four feet high are blazoned in relief.

The general decorative scheme comprises a background of deep blue on the underframe, smoke-box, front of engine and all marginal work on engine and tender. The sides of tender, cab and running boards are painted Royal Blue.
