Vaughan Council to Meet with Game
Wardens to Consider Problems
Receipts From Pheasant
Shoot Are $911.50

Vaughan township receipts from the recent pheasant shoot totalled $911.50 stated clerk and treasurer J. M. McDonald at the monthly meeting of the township council held at Vellore Monday. Payment of $10 each was voted to each of the twenty game wardens on duty for the shoot and members of council paid tribute to the fine service rendered by these officers. A meeting of the wardens with the council members who make up the controlling committee will be held in the near future when Reeve R. W. Scott said he would suggest that a reward be posted for anyone giving information leading to a conviction under the Game Reserve regulations.

Relief accounts for October totalled $504.19 compared with $603.50 for the same month last year. Now regulations provide for more check on relief expenditure. Government regulations provide that all relief recipients must fill out application forms, which is followed by an investigation report by township officials. All applicants must give a detailed report of all earnings in the past twelve months and have such statements signed by their employers. Then all applications for relief must be sanctioned by the provincial relief inspector before any relief is given.

Sheep claims in Vaughan this year have been particularly light and so far have totalled only $73.00. This is a considerable saving over some years when substantial payments have been made. George Dibb had a claim at Monday's meeting for 2

Buy a Poppy Remembrance Day

POPPY DAY — THE NEED — WHY?

(By James Butler, President Vaughan and Richmond Hill Veterans Association)

As a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, Canada has taken her place at the side of the Motherland, not only because as a member of that great Commonwealth she had an obligation to fulfil, but because she too, desired to take her stand for the maintenance of those ideals, of Truth, Righteousness and Justice, which have been her heritage from her inception as the great Dominion of Canada.

The call has sounded, her sons have responded. Organizations of loyal citizens have sprung up, all eager to do something for their country, and the men who have so nobly volunteered. History repeats itself we are often told, and our minds go back to the year 1914. Britain had called, Canada responded, her men and boys poured from the school, the office, the shed, the factory, and the farm, eager and willing to serve. Organizations came into being overnight, to care for the soldier and his dependant.

Bands played, crowds cheered, and away they marched. Time and time again word came to the homeland that Canada's sons had taken their stand with the world's finest. Vimy, Passchendale, Courelette, Arras are all written on the pages of history as the battle ground of the Canadians. Then after four years away from loved ones and home, four years of Death, Carnage, Blood and filth, four years in which they had fought, sincere in the belief that no longer would freedom and liberty be menaced, sincerely believing that it was settled once and for all, that their sons, and their children's children might be spared this horrible nightmare of carnage and blood. A war to end war, that was what they hoped for. They came back, came back to find that while they and their comrades gave all they had, others had taken advantage and had waxed fat on the profits of war, the blood of their fellow man. Positions of influence and power had been obtained by those who were foreign to those ideals for which they had fought.

The war ended, those organizations which had toiled so valiantly and well for the soldier and his dependant, now unwisely disbanded or curtailed their efforts, believing sincerely their work was done. The returned boy was left at loose ends, and vainly did the soldier try to re-establish himself within the ranks of civil life. The government of the day tried to help by forming the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Board, but this was only able to accommodate a very limited number of the thousands who returned. The Great War had created in the hearts of all (but the profiteer) a complete abhorrence of all those things that pertained to war. This feeling grew to such an extent that it reached the hysteria of extreme pacifism. Peace at any price, peace at any cost, became the slogan.

Public sentiment of that day demanded the abolishing of the cadet movement in the schools of our province, and in some churches suggestions were made that such grand old hymns as "Onward Christian Soldiers, Fight the Good Fight, Etc." should be removed from the hymnal. Finally the returned soldier became the scape-goat of a movement which started in all sincerity in the interest of peace. In some circles soldiers were looked upon as murderers of their fellowmen. Armistice services were curtailed and the public mind had reached such a stage that the returned man received little encouragement in his endeavours to once again become a citizen in the peaceful pursuits of life.

Returned men had become so disgusted at their treatment that many of them in applying for employment, removed their returned button from their coat, not wanting their prospective employer to know that they were war veterans. And now after having a tremendous struggle, in many cases to re-establish themselves, and some partially succeeding, the returned man was now called upon to face another battle, this time the battle for economic existence. The depression of 1929, hard times came, out of employment, shoeless and shabby, children suffering, wife bearing up bravely under the strain of raising a family under such conditions, surely here was fertile ground for the seed of Communism or Fascism. But no, with head erect, and shoulders squared, with a set purpose in his heart, the returned boy carried on. The strain of economic life brought no strain on his loyalty to his King and Country. Four hundred thousand of these men lined the streets, formed guards of honor, cheered themselves hoarse during the visit of their Gracious Majesties the King and Queen to our fair land. Just as they stood their ground at Vimy, at Passchendale, so they stood shoulder to shoulder through the years of depression, trying to help one another.

To assist such men as these the Poppy Fund came into being. Organized and operated by ex-service men themselves, with the minimum of overhead expense, in order that every dollar possible be devoted to the welfare of the returned man and his family. The poppy has been immortalized as the emblem of sacrifice and every man, woman and child should wear this emblem of sacrifice, in memory of the great sacrifice made in the Great War, realizing at the same time that by honoring the dead they are helping the living.

We therefore seek a personal sacrifice to honor those who sacrificed their all for us. We are in the midst of another war. Every loyal citizen is anxious to do his share for King and Country, and many are helping the new organizations now formed for the purpose of carrying on the war, but in so doing let us not forget the lads of 1914 to 1918 who marched away with bands playing and crowds cheering and have come back to fight the battle of life alone. These same men to-day are gladly giving of their own sons for the same cause for which they fought, seeking to maintain those cherished traditions of every loyal Britisher.

The principles of justice are eternal, and the great British Empire, built upon such a foundation, cannot fail so long as the British Empire continues to love Truth, Justice, Righteousness and Liberty. So long will the British Commonwealth of

"GOODBYE MR. CHIPS"
LAUREL AND HARDY FEATURETTE

Nations continue to be the greatest Empire the world has ever seen.

For such virtues as these the veteran fought, and his son will fight, so that this priceless heritage shall be ours. And so as Poppy Day draws nigh, and the appeal comes to you again, let it not be just another tag day but give as they gave. And now as we lay down our pen we see that countless march of men—sixty thousand of the flower of Canada's manhood, from shell hole and trench, from the lonely grave in a foreign land—from the depths of a mighty ocean they come, line after line, and again we hear them say:

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow in Flanders fields.
The voices fade in the distance, the challenge has been given, it is ours, and once again we are reminded:

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the Kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget — Lest we forget.
Remember Poppy Day — Buy a Poppy. Wear a Poppy and Remember.

Poppy Day Appeal

Saturday, November 11th is Remembrance Day and I appeal to all citizens of Richmond Hill to observe the two minutes silence at 11 a.m. in tribute to the memory of the brave sons of Canada who gave their lives in the Great War 1914-1918.

I also urge that the annual Poppy Day appeal of Veterans' organizations be given the generous consideration of every citizen. While we pay tribute to those who gave their lives, let us give something to help lighten the burden of those still suffering from the war, something to brighten the lives of those for whom the war will never end until the final chapter of this life.

On Remembrance Day 1939 with all the forceful reminders of the need of preserving the ideals we hold dear to our hearts, let us give generously in appreciation of those who gave their all in the last Great War.

J. A. GREENE, Reeve.
