

Master Pig Starter gives little pigs the start that sends them to market under 180 days.

A good start is half the battle. A Master Pig Starter start is more than half the battle when you're racing against time to get pigs onto the market. It's real insurance for fast rugged growth and against losses of young pigs.

Build a creep and put Master in a shallow hopper in the THIRD week. It's appetizing and the pigs start eating quickly — thus supplementing the sow's milk supply and getting the little fellows off to a real start. Feed the Starter till they reach 10-12 weeks. It takes very little for each pig, and the cost per bag is not high.

Put your next litter on MASTER PIG STARTER. We always have it fresh in stock. Let us arrange your supplies.

Boys Are Needed For Farm Work

Ont. Dept. of Labor sends out call for youthful helpers on the "food front".

With a tremendous shortage of farm help in the offing, Ontario boys can do their bit on the "food front" during the war, states Alex. MacLaren, director of farm training for the Ont. Dept. of Labor, Toronto. "Farmers are going to be gasping for help," predicted Mr. MacLaren. "At the present time there is a definite shortage of boys for farm work. Since March 1st, 1 could have placed 150 more boys if I had them."

Mr. MacLaren said boys from 16 to 22 years of age are needed for year round farm work at from $120 to $200 per year with board and washing included. Boys wishing farm jobs should write him care of the Dept. of Labor, Parliament Buildings, Toronto and so should farmers who need help.

There are a number of high school boys who want to do their bit on farms during the summer months. Letters have been received from high school boys in Toronto and Niagara Falls asking for jobs from June 15th till the end of August. It is expected that collegiate lads from other centres will also apply during the next few weeks.

To facilitate farm placings for boys, the Department has placed H. F. Irwin in Eastern Ontario and C. D. Cowan in Western Ontario. They will interview farmers and boys who are anxious to get together and make sure the right boy goes to the right farmer. Wages for summer months will likely range from $10 to $15 with board.

Such is the fame of Mr. MacLaren's work in Ontario, that applications from boys have been received from Newfoundland and Vancouver. The Newfoundland lad is so anxious for a job in this province that he says he will get here some way or other. Mr. McLaren relates, and it should be easy to obtain a good job for him. Over 140 lads have been placed on farms since March 1st.

British War Aims

As Stated by Prime Minister of Great Britain

"The people of France and the people of Great Britain are alike determined not only to honour to the full their obligations to Poland, but also to put an end, once for all, to the intolerable strain of living under the perpetual threat of Nazi aggression."

"Our French Allies are, like ourselves, a peace-loving people, but they are no less convinced than are we that there can be no peace until the menace of Hitlerism has been finally removed. 'Il faut en finir'."

13 September, 1939, in the House of Commons.
"Our general purpose in this struggle is well known. It is to redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression, and enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

20 September, 1939, in the House of Commons.
"The aims of His Majesty's Government have always included the formation of a stable international system, having as its object the prevention of war and the just settlements of international disputes by pacific means."

21 September, 1939, in the House of Commons.
"Never have our people been more united or more determined. They are resolved — and the simple fact cannot be too often stressed — to rid themselves once for all of the perpetual threat of German aggression of which Poland is only the latest instance."

26 September, 1939, in the House of Commons.
"Nobody desires the war to continue for an unnecessary day, but the overwhelming mass of opinion in this country, and I am satisfied also in France, is determined to secure that the rule of violence shall cease and that the words of Governments, once pledged, must be kept."

3 October, 1939, in the House of Commons.
"It is no part of our policy to exclude from her rightful place in Europe a Germany which will live in amity and confidence for other nations. On the contrary, we believe that no effective remedy can be found for the world's ills that does not take account of the just desires and needs of all countries, and whenever the time may come to draw the lines of a new peace settlement, His Majesty's Government would feel that the future would hold little hope unless such a settlement could be reached through the method of negotiation and agreement."

"We seek no antierial advantage for ourselves; we desire nothing from the German people which should offend their self-respect. We are not aiming only at victory, but rather looking beyond it to the laying of a foundation of a better international system which will mean that war is not to be the inevitable lot of every succeeding generation."

"The peace which we are determined to secure, however, must be a real and settled peace, not an uneasy truce interrupted by constant alarms and repeated threats."

12 October, 1939, in the House of Commons, replying to Hitler's 'peace' proposals.
"The peace aims which are to be achieved when the war is over cannot be laid down by this country alone. There will be others to be consulted. There will be the Dominions and our Allies, and it may be that the vanquished will also be taken into consideration before we can decide how this new and better world is to be laid out."

"We have not entered this war with any vindictive purpose, and therefore, we do not intend to impose a vindictive peace."

"What we say is that, first of all, we must put an end to this menace under which Europe has lain for so many years. If we can really do that, confidence will be established throughout Europe, and while I am not excluding the necessity for dealing with other parts of the world as well, I feel that Europe is the key to the situation, and that if Europe could be settled, the rest of the world would not prove so difficult a problem. If we can establish that confidence, then many things which have seemed difficult or impossible in the past might prove to be, if not easy, at any rate attainable."

28 November, 1939, in the House of Commons.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that the German Government had long planned the successive stages of a programme of conquest, and that its appetite grows by what it feeds upon."

"Today the members of that Government do not hesitate to say they desire to achieve the ruin of the British Empire; no doubt they would rejoice if they could treat us as they are treating the victims who are already within their grasp."

"We on our side have no such vindictive designs. To put it about that the Allies desire the annihilation of the German people is a fantastic and malicious invention which can only be put forward for home consumption."

"On the other hand, German people must realize that the responsibility for the prolongation of this war and of the suffering it may bring in the coming year is theirs as well as that of the tyrants who stand over them. They must realize that the desire of the Allies for an essentially human, just, Christian settlement cannot be satisfied by assurances which experience has proved to be worthless."

9 January, 1940, at the Mansion House.

"One thing, I think, is becoming clearer every day, not from anything that we say but from the actions of the Germans themselves, and that is that we are fighting not only for ourselves but for every country which is oppressed by the fear that some day they might find themselves in the position which has been successively occupied by Czechoslovakia, by Poland and now by Finland."

Woodbridge Orange Hall was the scene of the Woodbridge Red Cross season's final weekly euchre party last Friday evening. Prizes donated by Mrs. Robert Plunkett, Mrs. Roy Arlow, Mrs. George Elliott, Lloyd Watson and Mrs. William Hollingshead, were awarded as follows: Ladies, 1st, Mrs. Jack Hostrawser; 2nd, Mrs. Raven; consolation, Mrs. John Mack. Gents, 1st, Mrs. H. Hilliard (playing as a substitute); 2nd, Frank Golden; consolation, Mrs. T. Wise (playing as a substitute).
