Over a Hundred Answers To Lions Guessing Contest

Over one hundred answers were test, the results of which were anlot there were only two correct, and while the Lions advertised they would give a prize of five dollars to the first correct answer drawn, a second prize of three dollars was added for the second prize. The five dollars cash award went to Miss Lucy Yerex, and the second prize of three dollars to Mrs. Clifford

There were fourteen who had only one mistake, and scores and scores who named all but two. Every single contestant correctly identified Mrs. R. D. Little proving the truth of the poet's rhyme which we publish below, "that face has been the same through all her life". Only two slipped up on Mrs. L. A. Hill, one named her Mrs. J. F. Heard, and another Mrs. Frank Hogg. Thirtyfive correctly named Mrs. J. E. Smith, but the remaining four were called every name in the club and spring flowers decorated Thornhill some extras. Now with a little poem We'll try to guess each name, But, if we are wrong, It will be all the same.

She's the Ford man's wife; And that face has been the same Through all her life.

Just one good guess for the next, And righto we have another; For who else could she be But our little sonny's mother.

Then comes that face so fair That would make anyone rejoice, We wonder who has won her And suggest the rector's choice.

We could not guess for our life, She must be Ted's or Bill's wife.

Whether it could be Wilson or Trench she got; And don't mind if it's right or not.

Now the dainty little lady And a smile that does attract,

It's Mrs. H. Austin we'll say.
