Mrs. M. L. McConaghy Honored

the cause of better citizenship.

You have served our school long and well. You have been a conscientious teacher, and you have brought to the classroom that kindness and unselfish service which we all know to be so much a part of your character.

Now as you leave us and pass the torch to another, we hope that the memory of a task well done will be a constant source of satisfaction to you throughout your life.

Mrs. McConaghy:—

We have been chosen to give to you this present from all the boys and girls of the school. We have all helped as best we could, and we hope that you may have as much pleasure and happiness from our gift, as we have already had in planning it for you.

You have been more than a teacher to us all, you have been a dear and trusted friend; and we know that you will understand that with this small gift comes a great deal of love and appreciation, from all your boys and girls.

Richmond Hill, Ont.,
June 26th, 1940.

To Mrs. McConaghy:—

We the present pupils of the Richmond Hill Public School wish to express our sincerest congratulations to our friend and teacher Mrs. McConaghy for her long years of trustworthy service as an active member of the Teaching Staff of the School.

In later years we benefited by the education we received in your room, but more than that, we will remember the excellent example which you set for us. In following years we tried to adopt and keep this example.

During the years we have been associated with you we cannot recall one time that you have considered yourself before others.

We were deeply touched to hear of your recent retirement from our School Staff. We will never forget the service which you have rendered us.

Wishing you continued years of contentment and happiness during the rest of your life.

OUR FRIEND

Her smile was always so sincere, She cared for us throughout the year, She always tried our friend to be, Her name is Mrs. McConaghy.

She never tried to be unkind, And never would she doubt our mind, But always was so light of heart, And always would she play her part. Shirley Paris.

To Mrs. McConaghy:—

On behalf of the hundreds of pupils who have been privileged to come under your guidance at Richmond Hill School, may we express our sincere gratitude for your faithfulness and devotion to your calling.

You taught us true values by the very example of your own living. You taught us the happiness of duty as well as the duty of happiness. Always through the years your life has resolved itself into a kind of perpetual giving.

Ask an ex-pupil preferably one who has had some years in which to temper his opinions, what he got out of school. Ask him and you may be surprised to learn that he probably places other things far above the actual knowledge he managed to absorb. It was there indeed he made his fundamental preparation for everyday life.

To have had you for an elementary teacher has been our great good fortune. This is a fact which will never be forgotten by

YOUR EX-PUPILS.

June 28th, 1940.

Dear Mrs. McConaghy:—

We, the parents of the many children of Richmond Hill and vicinity, who have been entrusted to your care during the past 34 years, desire on this occasion of greeting and farewell, to express our sincere appreciation of your very valuable services on the staff of Richmond Hill Public School.

A successful teacher must not only be intellectually gifted, but possess a deep interest in her work, be able to impart her knowledge, understand children, and while firm in discipline display a kindly sympathetic nature.

We feel that you have possessed these qualities in a very inward degree. You have succeeded in winning the affection and esteem of all your pupils. In school hours you have lightened their tasks and out of school you were as one with them, aiding them in their difficulties and
