be fairly well distributed over the week-ends.

Mrs. Thos. Proctor will entertain for a Red Cross Tea on Friday evening, August 9th at her home on eighth of King.

King Institute are planning a picnic trip to Midhurst on Tuesday, August 13th, bus to leave at 1 p.m. Sharon park was the first place spoken of for this event and later changed to Midhurst. The reforestation plan here should be very interesting to members.

The last shipment made from Schomberg for King Township Red Cross, on Friday last, included the following articles: 228 surgical towels, 144 handkerchiefs, 60 pairs of pyjamas, 84 pillow cases, 16 quilts, 120 pairs of socks, 10 blankets. In the four months of organization there has been sent out to date: 264 surgical towels, 192 handkerchiefs, 175 pairs pyjamas, 320 pillow cases, 38 quilts, 326 pairs of socks. There is on hand one hundred different articles of clothing for children in the refugee list. This will be added to and sent out when instructions are given. And thus the work goes on vigilantly, quietly and purposefully, a steady stream of faithful activity.

At the time of writing King City is working on Street Dance project, the funds to be used for W.I. war work. The object of the dance is a common one, and all can share in its success.

Master Bob Walker is the guest of the "Burlington Butcher's son" at Port Stanley.

Mrs. Harshaw and Miss Nancy Harshaw are holidaying at Mrs. Harshaw's brother, Mr. McMaster of Oshawa.

Mrs. Bertha Badger Tarrant of Toronto is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Badger.

Mr. and Mrs. Brudenall and daughter, Miss Joy Clark of Toronto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Len Glass on Sunday.

Mrs. Lawrie Boys entertained friends from Thornbury this week.

Mrs. Silk's daughter Dorothy of England writes that in the place where she lives, every street has a pig that eats up the garbage according to plan. Not such a bad idea and one our village could use nicely since we need a garbage collection so badly. England appreciates conservation, besides think of the pork they can eat when the pigs are ready for market.

Mrs. Maggie Forsythe observed her 91st birthday on Friday, August 2 at the home of Mrs. J. B. McLean of Toronto where she was visiting. On that morning Mr. McLean passed away from a heavy stroke which came upon him on Thursday.

Mrs. Forsythe has been visiting among Toronto friends for some time and has quite good health. We wish her many more birthdays but not under similar sad circumstances.

Eversley Community and Church picnic held at Wilcox Lake last week was attended by more than 100. A good program of sports and a good supper were heartily enjoyed.

Mrs. Hilda Love of Toronto is spending August with her sister, Mrs. A. Jones of Eversley.

Rev. Dr. D. McIntyre of Newmarket and Rev. M. E. Burch exchanged pulpits on Sunday. Dr. McIntyre gave a very strong sermon, placing the causes of chaotic world conditions in the one and only place. The church has fallen in its privilege and responsibility to recognize full power of "The Spirit of God, the Word of God and the Grace of God."

Laskay Y.P.U. enjoyed a program prepared by Mrs. Ruth Finch based on the Kingdom of God.

IMPORTS FROM BRITAIN
The case for free trade between Canada and Great Britain for the period of the war can be put in the simplest and most conclusive of terms. Great Britain, which under peacetime conditions bought so heavily of Canadian products that it could not pay for them with goods directly exported, is now compelled to enormously increase her imports from Canada, while the means that were available to her in peacetime for providing payment of the balances are no longer available. The difficulties of making enlarged purchases and of paying for them are thus enormously increased; with possible consequences of the most serious character. Obviously a partial solution to the problem is for Canada to take payment to the greatest possible extent in British goods, thus reducing exchange difficulties to a minimum. This will lessen the strain on British finance, stimulate in some measure the purchase of essential materials in Canada, and thus generally add to the effectiveness of the war effort of both countries.—(From the Winnipeg Free Press.)

Lord Beaverbrook - Human Dynamo

(Note: Hannen Swaffer, one of the best-known journalists in England, is the author of the following illuminating article about Lord Beaverbrook, the dynamic Canadian, born at Maple, Ontario, who became one of Britain's foremost newspaper owners, and is now Minister for Aircraft Production in the British Government. Lord Beaverbrook's only son is a pilot officer in the R.A.F., and has brought down a number of Nazi planes). * * *

Many were surprised when, in forming a new Government, Winston Churchill included Max Aitken, 1st Baron Beaverbrook. He was not. Indeed he was waiting for the call, when it came...But he was surprised when Winston said he wanted him to be Minister for Air.

"You can't do that, Winston," said the "Beaver". "You will be attacked for making the appointment. Besides, I am not sure that I could do the job".

Then Beaverbrook suggested that the production side of the Air Ministry has little or nothing to do with the administrative side. "Let's cut the job in halves" was the idea born of this talk...Sir Archibald Sinclair became Minister for Air and Beaverbrook Minister for Aircraft Production.

Within an hour or two Stornaway House, the large barely-furnished mansion in which Beaverbrook lives, was invaded by Brass Hats and airplane manufacturers. * * *

Stornaway House used to be the scene of dinner parties, at which Arnold Bennett, Beaverbrook's close friend, was invariably present. Some stage people, H. G. Wells, people of every kind, and every profession, with a visiting film star, would meet politicians....

The "Beaver" is indeed a strange animal—generous-minded, but impishly inquisitive, incisive in one mood and seemingly innocent in another, a great friend and a forgiving enemy. I have often attacked him as a politician, but never in 20 years had a cross word with him. He is almost the most loyal-hearted man in the country.

Winston sent for him, because the two knew each other well. But the Conservative Party generally hated Beaverbrook. Mind you, it is easy to dislike him if you don't know him, and he was too critical of the Tories, although he tries to be one. He often attacked their Machine. His Empire Crusade, his insistence on food-growing, his hatred of international conferences — all sorts of things had made him a real Isolationist at times...Winston, another individualist Tory, always remained his friend, and Winston knew of Beaverbrook's great interest in flying.

"Beaver" had his own aircraft at his own Surrey airdrome, and, most nights, he was taken on long flights, sometimes taking the controls himself. At one time Beaverbrook was spending nearly $135,000 a year on flying — buying and selling his own aircraft like other rich men buy and sell their motor-cars.

Winston knew all this. Neville Chamberlain had never heard of it. Then Winston had for long been fascinated by Beaverbrook's extraordinary character. * * *

So heavy was the whip with which Beaverbrook drove airplane manufacturers that, from May 17, the day of his appointment, until June 7, the Hurricanes (fighter planes) being made had doubled in number!

This was only possible because, under Winston's control, the profit system had been eliminated. At Labour's insistence, the country had been nationalised.

Beaverbrook used to suffer from asthma. When Winston sent for him he forgot it...Now, directly after breakfast, he leaves Stornaway House for the new Ministry's offices. There, full of vigour, the "Beaver" voice, and laugh, echo from room to room.

I have seen him only once since he started his new job. I called at his home at 11 o'clock one night. Only Col. Moore-Brabazon, M.P., first Britisher to obtain a pilot's license, and head man of the Hurricane Works, was there.

Just before midnight the 'phone rang. "I've got to go to Downing Street", said Beaverbrook. So off he went to see Winston...All day long now his life is like that... Well, on a few men like Beaverbrook, our brave troops, our glorious sailors, and our incomparable airmen now depend. Inspired by them, directed by them, the workers slave ceaselessly. (John Bull).

3 CHURCHES HOLD JOINT PICNIC AT EBENEZER

Interchurch rivalry added keenness to sport competitions when more than 100 Thistle-town, Sharon and Ebenezer United church members staged a joint picnic in the Ebenezer school grounds on Thursday afternoon of last week.

Fieldhouse, Ebenezer; shoe kicking, Mrs. Clarence Kellam, Sharon; sewing contest, Leslie Hutchison and Mrs. Hutchison, Sharon; girls' race 9 to 12, Jean Barker, Thistle-town; boys 9 to 12, Douglas Christie, Sharon; girls 6 to 9, Eleanor Christie, Sharon; boys 6 to 9, Harold Barker, Thistle-town; girls 4 to 6, Evelyn Thibedeau, Sharon; boys 4 to 6, Douglas Wilson, Ebenezer; bean guess, Mrs. Garfield Ella, Thistle-town.

WARTIME STRIKES

Every strike is preceded by a dispute between employer and employee. That is the time the Department of Labor should step in. It should possess and exercise the authority to judge the merits of the dispute, through a board on which both sides would be represented, but on which the department's decision should be binding. Then, either party which refused to abide by the verdict should be subject to prosecution under the Defense of Canada Regulations. Any person, be he employer or worker, who brings on a strike when Canada needs all her industrial strength for waging the war, is guilty of disloyalty.—(From the Windsor Star.
