Interesting War Sidelights

Blockade Notes: To prevent waste of rubber, German children owning bicycles are forbidden to use their vehicles except to ride to and from school...The British Blockade prevents the Nazis from obtaining further supplies of rubber.

Powdered blood for wartime transfusions is being sent from Canada to Great Britain, a unique new machine being installed in Toronto enabling this to be done. The powder is made by freezing blood serum and evaporating the moisture content while it is frozen. Doctors then can add water to the powder and dissolve it for transfusion use...Another Canadian aid for the Allied cause.

Already more than half the population of the U.S.A. is in favour of aiding Britain in every way possible, even at the risk of war, and the percentage is growing steadily. This is not hearsay...it is authoritative. (It is also commonsense.)

Hitler's entourage notices signs of restlessness and stress in the Fuehrer. He has been dodging backwards and forwards between Berlin, the Brown House at Munich, his army headquarters on the French frontier and Berchtesgaden, his mountain retreat. His irritability is pronounced. Perhaps he begins to see the writing on the wall.

Germany's great aircraft factories have been so battered by the R.A.F. that the drop in production is frightening the Nazi leaders, say reliable neutral sources. British raids, driven home with bitter precision, have smashed dozens of buildings and wracked factories filled with valuable machine tools. It is estimated that in some of the seven main Nazi plane factories output has fallen by as much as 40 per cent.

The Germans display typical Nazi cunning in dealing with people in Holland as they have already done with Denmark. Pretending to deal generously with the farmers, they buy all available horses and anything else they need, paying in Dutch banknotes at a higher rate, so they say, than Britain would pay. However, to cover the payments, they reimburse the Dutch national bank with a worthless kind of German "money" from the German Treasury, and this money will only be exchanged on "the day of victory"...that means—never!

Two hundred people were on hand Thursday evening, September 26th, when a community shower was staged in Claireville Community Hall in honour of Miss Bertha Carberry of Coleraine and Russell McKechnie of Malton. Their marriage is an event scheduled for the near future.

War Commentary

BRITAIN WINNING AIR WAR
Official figures confirm the impression gained by everybody who has moved about Britain that while a great deal of damage has been done to residential, business and cultural buildings by Nazi bombings, the damage to factories has been amazingly small, says James M. Minifie, a New York Herald Tribune correspondent in London noted for his impartiality and reliability.

Up to the present, despite the loss by the Nazis of more than 2,297 planes, the attempt to put British industrial production out of action by aerial bombardment has been a complete failure, he goes on. Despite German claims that 6000 British factories have been destroyed, the facts are that they did not even HIT one-twentieth of this number,—and less than 2 per cent of these hits resulted in destruction of the factories involved. Furthermore, since the Battle of Britain began, roughly three months ago, nearly twice as many new factories have been added to Britain's key production as have been hit and damaged even slightly by bombs. The fact is that the Germans quite plainly are not even trying to go after factories now; their attempts have been so dismal.

SOUTH AMERICA HAILS BRITAIN

The liberty and future prosperity of all South American countries is in the hands of the British Navy and the gallant R.A.F. Only they and the British Army stand between the richness of the Latin American continent and the world-domination plans of Hitler and Mussolini. The whole of Latin America should be behind the British knights of freedom with the human and financial resources at their disposal, says the Uruguyan newspaper "Universal" of Montevideo.

JOHN BULL SPEAKS

The British Prime Minister (Winston Churchill) has become with the years the classical type of John Bull, with his perseverance and his stubbornness, which are the main features of his leadership.—A.B.C., Madrid, Spain.

NORWAY PAYS THE PRICE

(Peterborough Examiner)
Germany has notified Norway that it must pay $90,000,000 for the "protective custody" which the Nazis have exercised on behalf of that country. Conquering a lesser nation is termed in the words of Berlin "protecting" it. That is a tremendous amount for a people of 2,800,000 to pay, but it is not all. Other "assessments" include:

- Nine months' supply of gasoline.
- Eighteen months' stocks of grain.
- Two years' supply of sugar.
- Four years' supply of coffee.

Norway, once a rather prosperous and happy country, becomes poorer each day. Her huge merchant shipping fleet, third largest in the world, is no longer in her possession. Much of it fell into the hands of the British following the German invasion; some of it is bottled up or in the hands of the Germans.

An American resident, just returned from Norway, where he has been in business for several years, reports Norway is going to be hungry. In fact, in many sections that condition exists now. Norwegians cannot go out and fish because there is no fuel to operate their boats. The well-developed Norwegian co-operative stores, which used to be the means of distributing plenty, are now used by the Germans as an agency of restriction. The supplies which have been taken from Norway for the use of 85,000,000 Germans can mean but a drop in that bucket, but it means everything to the 2,800,000 in Norway who have been robbed of those supplies.

German protection for the Norwegians has meant taking a people who were highly intelligent, free and fairly prosperous, and bringing them down to the level of people who are poor and hungry, and who are shut off from the means of making a living which used to be open for their benefit.

A BRIDE'S DUTIES

Proposals made by an English vicar that brides be required to prove at least an elementary knowledge of cookery before marriage are not as radical as they seem at first glance. After all, in marriage, each party has certain obligations. The man who undertakes the responsibilities of marriage without the requisite skill of knowledge to make a living for his wife is looked on as a poor sort. There is just as much of a duty devolving on the bride to be prepared to uphold her end of the bargain.—(From the Windsor Star.)

There's One Time When Playing Hookey
DOES NOT PAY

SUPPOSE THAT—

At a regular time each week, a big majority of the people of this community gathered together in one big meeting place. No circus has ever brought into the district a tent big enough to hold the thousands of men, women and children comprising such an audience. But suppose there were such a place. Then

SUPPOSE THAT—

After all these people had settled down in comfortable chairs, you were offered an opportunity to get up on the stage in front of them and announce over a loud speaker that you had certain things you would like to sell them.

Wouldn't you jump at the chance?

YOU SURE WOULD!

You would instantly recognize the high value of the opportunity to talk to all those possible customers — folks who would have to walk only a few steps or drive a few miles to your place of business. You'd study out carefully what you wanted to say to them. You'd like it immensely if you could show them pictures of the things you had to sell.

WOULD YOU PLAY HOOKEY?

When your time came to step before the microphone, would you want to be reported absent? You would NOT.

Would you say to yourself: "I talked to them last week. They all know I'm here, and what I sell." You would NOT.

You know that there would be new faces in every audience — young folks who have reached the buying age — older folks who have moved in from some other community.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Regularly, every week, a big majority of the people of this trading area seat themselves in comfortable chairs to read their local newspaper. They are just as ready to listen, as individuals, to what sellers have to say about their wares, as if they were in the midst of a crowd of thousands of neighbors and friends.

THE LOUD SPEAKER

Is all set. Folks with things to sell have only to get on the platform and begin speaking. The audience is out front, anxious to hear about things they need to buy.

No time to "play hookey" with a crowd that size on hand.

Who wants to?

FRIENDS FOR LIFE

Christopher Lunt, one of the younger children evacuated from the United Kingdom, was in a happy mood when he reached Vancouver after travelling by Canadian Pacific steamship across the Atlantic and by Canadian Pacific train across Canada. He is shown here saying good-bye to his new found pal, Porter George Livingstone, who took good care of him on his long train ride. Christopher had a grand time on the journey and is now safe from German raiders. He will live with friends on the West Coast.
