King Women's Institute heard Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Rawlings, Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Walsh in reports on the W.I. convention. The intense activity existing in Institutes and the scope of their work, already increased by war effort, made the convention according to the reports, interesting and vitally important. Mrs. C. Stewart gave a paper on International Relations between Canada and United States, as compared with individual relations in Germany. Miss Jarvis gave a few current events and also a talk on her course in the recent wood finishing project. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. D. M. Ross. Jellies, jams and pickles were on display. Miss McClure gave a reading on "Peace".

Schomberg W.I. heard Mrs. Marchant in a complete report. An interesting number on this program was the story of a pioneer coverlet by Mrs. D. B. Davis. The coverlet was made by Mr. Davis' grandmother, the late Mrs. McCallum of 11th of King, more than 70 years ago. On a cotton warp background is an intricate pattern in colored wools, the thistle, shamrock, rose and maple leaf as part of the design. Of course the wool was prepared on the McCallum farm and the dying done at home. This industrious lady made 15 such works of art. They are still in use and likely to see many years of useful service. Mrs. A. F. Kay gave a talk on "Thrift". The scholars of Schomberg public school recently made a collection of waste paper—newspapers and magazines. Well unto half a ton was stored in a barn. Having no means of transporting them to headquarters, the W.I. have undertaken to look after the disposal of the funds to be used for Red Cross work. This nets a worthwhile sum and the W.I. are using it for a local Red Cross scheme.

The 80th anniversary services at the Tenth Line Presbyterian Church were well attended on Sunday. The congregation dates from 1857, a pioneer Scotch settlement worshipping in Wilkie's barn. Miss Annie

SO IN EITHER CASE

SHE WAS QUITE SAFE
A certain politician, who was known to shift his loyalties rather often, was seated one evening at dinner beside a gushing young woman who turned to him and said: "My dear Mr. Blank, there are two things that I really do not like about you. One of them is your new political viewpoint and the other is your new moustache." Mr. Blank looked reflectively at his companion for a moment and then replied friendly: "My dear young lady, I don't think you need to worry. You probably will never come into contact with either of them."

NORTHWEST PASSAGE

The Northwest Passage, the route for ships from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean along the northern coasts of the American continent, was sought for centuries and was partly found by Parry, Cabot, Hudson, Cook and others. The first to complete the passage was Sir Robert McClure, in his expedition of 1850-54. Since the cutting of the Suez and Panama canals, such a route has been so reduced in value that little attention was paid when a vessel at long last sailed round the north of Canada from the Atlantic to Behring Strait.
