End of War to Find Canada With New Set Of National Assets

Something to Show for Immense Expenditures Now Being Made.

The "War Metals Edition" of The Northern Miner points out that the war is not going to be a total loss to Canada, but that, offsetting the present enormous expenditures, there will be a new set of highly-productive national assets. The Northern Miner sums these up as follows:

When the war ends Canada will emerge with a number of industries and other national assets which it never possessed before. Amongst these new assets will be:

A brand new magnesium industry, based on a unique and economical process.

A tin producing plant. A production of mercury far in excess of national requirements.

A number of tungsten producers, either as by-product recovery plants or straight tungsten developments.

A greatly increased capacity for nickel and copper.

An enhanced production of zinc, mainly from concentrates which at present are being shipped abroad, but which might be utilized in the mooted Eastern zinc refinery.

A vastly expanded output of brass products from new plants built for war purposes.

A new iron ore industry, with the development of the Steep Rock and Josephine deposits, probably others also.

Possibly an enlarged steel industry in the East.

A new iron and steel industry on the Pacific coast, sponsored by Ventures subsidiary, Frobisher.

A new manganese industry, from deposits in New Brunswick, Ontario and British Columbia.

An expanded alloy metals industry, utilizing nickel, cobalt and other metals.

An increased production of chromium alloys.

A molybdenum industry, now slowly developing.

Possibly a beryllium industry. An increased production of uranium and radium.

A restored mica industry.

A resumed production of graphite.

A record output of petroleum.

A synthetic rubber industry based on oil.

A quadrupled production of aluminum.

Probably an alumina industry, utilizing domestic nepheline syenite and/or anorthosite. This project is in the experimental stage, early tests proving satisfactory.

A well-established diamond-cutting industry.

An army of newly trained mechanics.

Vastly increased steel working industry and machine shop capacity.

A rehabilitated railway system.

A ship-building industry and technique.

Fifty thousand pilots.

Thousands of aeroplanes.

Thousands of internal combustion engines, diesel engines.

A greatly expanded chemical industry, acids, etc.

A sulphur and pyrite production.

Billions of dollars in savings accounts and government bonds in the ownership of the people.

Several hundred thousand additional H.P. of hydro-electric development.

Would Never See It

A German woman entered the maternity ward of a hospital in Germany. She saw a picture of Christ in the room, and she asked the nurse to take it down. "I have no authority to take it down," said the nurse. "Then see your superiors and have it removed as soon as possible," said the woman. The superiors in the hospital said, likewise, that they had no authority to take it down. "My husband is an army officer and when he comes in a few days, I will get him to see to it that it is taken down." The few days passed and the husband arrived. The German woman told her husband to have the picture taken down. He started to interview one of the authorities, and said, "My wife and I do not want our boy (both were hoping the new arrival would be a boy) ever to look upon the picture of that Jew!" And even while he was still speaking, word arrived that a boy had just been born to the parents — but, he was born blind.—The Chosen People.

Another thing about a backyard vacation is that you don't have such a hard time finding a fourth at bridge.

And We Grouse About The High Cost Of Living

People hereabouts who are continuously grouching about the present prices of eggs, butter, meats and other necessities of life, should thank their lucky stars they do not reside in wartorn Chungking.

The food situation is rapidly developing into a serious one for whites residing in Chiang Kai-Shek's capital as far as food, is concerned, and missionaries are hard-put to meet the cost of the simplest food-stuffs.

The following figures are said to be valid and come from the Foreign Mission Board of the United Church of Canada through the kind offices of the Rev. Dr. James Semple.

One-pound loaf of bread, 50 cents Canadian.

Water, $2.00 per load.

Butter $10 a pound (U.S. money)

One sweet potato $1.00.

Coal, $600-$800 a ton.

Baths, each, $5.00.

Coolie hire, $300 a month.

Pork $8.00 a pound.

Salt, $3.10 a pound.

Sugar $6.40 a pound.

Fish, for 4 people, $24.

Material to make small batch of cookies, $30.00.

Postage for two thin sheets of paper, airmail and duly registered, $22.40.

The gallant people of Chungking are taking these hardships in their stride without whimper or complaint. It is an exigency of war and is being met with the fortitude and characteristic bravery of our allies in the east. And there are people here who howl to high heaven when they pay 12 cents for what was recently a 10-cent package of cigarettes.—Ontario Intelligencer.

NO STRINGS ATTACHED

In the past we've been accustomed, you and I, to considering economy almost entirely in terms of our own personal benefaction. It's been every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost. Even now that we're face to face with the fact that final victory in this war will depend, to a large extent, upon our personal saving we still find it difficult to take a long view of this economy business. We must learn to think collectively to visualize our own small bit multiplied by a few hundred thousand. Then it begins to take on some significance.

For instance, take a yard of string. You usually throw it away with the garbage but you've begun to think collectively so you picture 9 million pieces of string, each a yard long. Nine million is the approximate number of people in Canada over the age of 10 years. If each of these individuals was to save one piece of string three feet long we would have enough to stretch across the breadth of the Dominion almost twice. And if they did that every week, inside of a year there would be enough to more than go around the whole world. Think of it!

Think of the hemp, jute and cotton twine Canada imports annually to supply us with strings and cord. In 1940 the Cordage, Rope and Twine Industry recorded an import of some $67,000 worth of cotton cords and twine, binder twine to the value of $997,000 and $3,519,000 worth of sisal fibre. Each piece of string saved and re-used means that so much less needs to be manufactured, and so much less needs to be imported, leaving room and money for so much more of what it takes to win wars. Let's make this an all-out war effort, with no strings attached!
