Who is now in Britain to make an inspection of Postal services overseas. Considering wartime hazards postal service to members of Canadian forces has been exceptionally good, but Canada's Postmaster-General is determined that everything possible shall be done to expedite the safe transit of mail and parcels to our boys overseas on all fronts. The North York member made the trip across the Atlantic by plane. While overseas he will inspect all branches of the Canadian forces and will confer with military and government leaders on behalf of the Canadian government.

Bird Chatter

As we go about these bright, warm fall days we keep our eyes on the alert for any of the small warblers passing through on their journey southward. As you know, there are numerous kinds, and we think one of the most fascinating is the Maryland yellow throat; not so much for its color but for its bewitching song. Of course we don't hear them singing very much in the fall of the year but their short appearance again recalls to us the fun we had this summer up near the lake discovering what was behind that 'witchety-witchety-witch' we'd hear every time we passed a gate leading into a field on the edge of a swampy section of land. The song was always forthcoming, whatever time we passed. So early one morning we left the camp full of excitement—and it is exciting. We approached the gate very quietly and listened. Yes, there it was, witchety-witchety-witch. Our eyes scanned the trees and shrubs from top to base but no bird could we see. We climbed through the fence walking carefully up and down the edge of the swamp but only the song could be heard, first directly in front of us, then to our left or right—a very provoking state of affairs. We kept this up until the situation was utterly impossible so thought it best to go back and brave the large waves in the lake that morning. The urge was there all day to go back and find that bird so with great anticipation we set forth again next morning.

This time the song was coming from the shrubs along the roadside so we followed it up until we noticed the bird fly across the road ahead of us. From then on it was just a matter of being patient. A short time later we spied this little warbler on some dead brush quite close to us and recognized it as the Maryland yellow throat. We hurried back to camp full of joy and relief. Our enthusiasm seemed to spread as the rest of the family insisted on going back in the afternoon to see if they could be as fortunate. They were and more so, but they had to follow the sound into the swamp and were repaid for the scratches on arms and legs by seeing the pair of Marylands sitting on a limb quite contented with their surroundings. A little six-year-old girl who had been with us on our first expedition stayed on the roadside with us while the others went into the bush. While waiting, some little chickadees flew to a shrub beside her and came so close and were so friendly she could hardly resist the temptation to reach out her hand and touch them. But her exclamations of delight were so sweet and genuine we wished more children of her own age could have experienced the same pleasure.

It was a perfect autumn day with bright sunshine and the air just cool enough to be refreshing. Walking through the woods very quietly, hoping to see a few migrating warblers, we noticed in the path a short distance ahead, an oven bird stepping along on its pink feet most sedately, as is its manner. We stopped and stood perfectly still and it could not have seen us for it turned and came towards us to within six feet, then turned back and went on as before. What an excellent view of it we had! Many times we have scrambled through the woods trying to locate an oven bird by its song and it would elude us, but this little fellow was most obliging. Its back is a uniform olive brown, the breast white regularly striped with dark brown. The top of the head is orange bordered with black. It is of the warbler family but unlike most of its relatives who just pass through this district in the spring and fall, it stays all summer, and almost any day in the woods you can hear its song which sounds like the word 'teacher' with the accent on the second syllable and repeated five or six times with gathering strength as it goes along. It is a ground-frequenting bird and its name comes from the fact that its nest which it builds on the ground, is oven shaped with the opening on the side.

Adam, the first man, had plenty of leisure. He wasn't all the time filling out reports to the government,

GENERAL NEWS AND VIEWS

When roast beef is scarce everyone seems to want roast beef.

Canadian casualties at Dieppe numbered 3350 it was announced from Ottawa this week.

Over 160 boys are registered at St. Andrew's College this year. This registration is an increase over last year.

The Ladies of Christ Church Guild, Kettleby, have decided to cancel their annual turkey supper for the duration of the war.

Meat is scarce and Canadians are asked to cut down on consumption in the next few months. It's now patriotic to be a vegetarian.

Morgan Baker, North York's representative in the Ontario Legislature, has joined up in Canada's Reserve Army. He is now a private in the Queen's York Rangers.

Certainly before the war is over, and perhaps within the space of a few months, practically everything that Canadians buy with the exception of grain and other field products will be within the scope of quantitative restrictions or prohibitions. Such was the forecast in official circles this week.

Unless King Township makes a new agreement with the Town of Aurora before October 15th, fire protection service extended to a section of that municipality by Aurora Fire Brigade will be discontinued. This ultimatum is the result of long, drawn out negotiations which have failed to bring about an agreement between the two municipalities.

Maximum prices for fuelwood in York and Ontario counties have been fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and are just announced by J. G. Stewart, coal administrator. No farmer or dealer may sell wood in this district in excess of the prices stated herein. Hard maple, yellow birch, beech, and oak, delivered shall not be sold in excess of $12 for 4-foot length, $13.50 for 24-inch length, and $14 for 16 inch, and $14.50 for 12 inch length.

At the G. A. Brodie estate sale recently in Markham Township the farm was not sold but fine prices were obtained for stock and implements. The price of pigs was one of the features. Suckers just weaned ran to $7.25, chunks $14 to $17, sows $45 to $50 each, all very high prices. A bay gelding 3 years old brought $145 and a 2 year old mate sold at $100. Cattle prices were outstanding, with yearling heifers fetching $40 and the highest priced cow fresh $132.50. 2-year-old heifers sold at $80 each.

An old binder that had weathered many a crop brought $50, a good set of 4-section harrows $30, and a hoe drill $27.50. Fred Preston of Whitechurch paid $360 for the Chev. car, while the house trailer sold for $75. Corn in the 40 rod row sold for $1.15 and mangolds same length rows at $1.25. A. S. Farmer was the auctioneer.

From January to June 30 last the public school pupils of Inspectorate York 1, contributed for War Savings Stamps $6,642.34 according to public school Inspector C. A. Lapp. This inspectorate includes Stouffville, Aurora, Newmarket, Markham, the Townships of East Gwillimbury, Markham, Whitechurch, Vaughan. The inspectorate has enrolled in its schools 4,345 pupils.

In Markham Township there was raised or invested in War Savings Stamps by 363 subscribers $1244.39, in Whitechurch 268 children bought $631.42 in stamps, Vaughan took $891.15, and Gwillimbury $682.

Below we give the returns from six urban municipalities:

	Sub	Sales
Aurora	239	$1148.50
Newmarket	245	884.50
Markham	170	440.50
Richmond Hill	137	419.00
Stouffville	125	248.25
Woodbridge	65	52.00

King Township Council made a grant of $75.00 to the Schomberg Fair.

Unionville Women's Institute has taken up "Clothing Renovation" as a project this year.

The South Ontario Plowing Match will be held this fall on October 14 in East Whitby Township, and North Pickering match on October 15th in Uxbridge Township according to decisions reached at the directors' meeting last week.

The farm composed of one hundred and eighty acres belonging to the estate of the late G. L. Middleton, Lots 17 and 18, Concession 6, Peikering, north of Brougham, was sold last Wednesday to Mr. H. A. Newman of "Newallyn Farms", Dunbarton. The price for this fine farm—which is in good state of cultivation, with acres hardwood bush, a good brick dwelling, two bank barns and other outbuildings—sold for $16,000. There were a number of buyers bidding on the property. Clarke Prentice of Milliken was the auctioneer who says it took just twenty minutes to sell this fine property.

Soybeans Rich In Protein

Soybeans contain from 35 to 40 per cent of protein and are the richest in this respect of all the commonly grown seeds says F. Dimmock, Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. This means that one pound of protein is contained in about 2½ pounds of soybeans. It would require from eight to 10 pounds of wheat, oats or barley to yield an equal amount of protein to this. Not only is the content of protein in soybeans very high but it is of distinctly better quality than that of other common seeds, and is claimed to be comparable to the proteins of animal origin, such as tankage, meat, scrap and fish meal. Soybean protein is said to be a complete protein, meaning one that is rich in all of the properties essential for growth, maintenance and production. Soybeans also contain from 15 to 20 per cent of oil of high quality, which is used both for industrial and edible purposes. This oil contains from one to three per cent of lecithin, a phosphorus rich substance which has many uses, and which is present in egg yolks.

In addition to being high in protein and oil soybeans contain appreciable amounts of calcium and phosphorus and are a rich source of Vitamins B1 and B2.

It is interesting to know that soybeans of the highest quality can be grown in Canada, and their production is regarded as a distinct contribution to Canada's war effort.

With the army taking over so many swank hotels, how are you going to get the boys back on the farm after they have had room service?
