THEY GAVE THEIR ALL
Our Honoured Dead, you led the way, from you we courage take
Eternal shame on he whom faith would break
With Ye who died us life to give;
If man there be, so soul-less, as unto self that life to live,
Let he be judge — Is this man fit to crawl
'Neath feet of such as you, who gave your all?

Is there anything else quite so mysterious or baffling as a doctor's penmanship? asks The Estevan Mercury. Those amazing hieroglyphics, scratched upon a prescription pad with awe-inspiring nonchalance defy the layman's sense of rhyme or reason. They might be anything from Tutankamen's autograph to the wandering footprints of a chicken which had recently stepped in an ink bottle.

One patient, we are told, obtained his bottle of medicine with the doctor's prescription and then, borrowing the mystic document from the druggist, used it for years as a railway pass, twice passed it as an invitation to a formal dance; once presented it as a recommendation from his employer; loaned it to a friend of his wife as a recipe for Welsh rarebit which, incidentally, made a great hit; and finally as a master stroke of ingenuity, had his daughter play it on the piano for him one evening after dinner. He is now preserving it carefully for the day when he makes his appearance at the Pearly Gates.

President of Plowmen's Association

J. CARL SAIGEON

Of Maple, the energetic president of the King and Vaughan Plowmen's Association who is a busy man today directing the annual match being held at the farm of Alfred Bagg, Edgely. The entries in the various events number forty, and while this is not as large as in some years, there is keen competition in all classes and the contestants included many outstanding plowmen. Prizes will be presented at a banquet held at Edgely this evening.

Public School Plans To Add To War Work Funds

The Richmond Hill Public School is putting on a programme at the High School gymnasium on the evening of Monday, November 2nd at 8 p.m. Those attending will have the opportunity of hearing two or more competitors with respect to the County Council Oratorical Contest. The winner will represent the school in the semi-finals. Various other items in the programme will interest those who are able to attend. A silver collection will be taken up—the proceeds of which will augment the Public School War Fund.

Principal Walter Scott has announced that the students of the school have voted in favour of collecting pennies on Halloween night as has been the custom during the past two years. The staff thanks the many parents and friends who co-operated so generously last year and desire to give assurance that the teachers are doing everything possible to make this effort something to be proud of.

Much disappointment has been shown by the main body of students with regard to the several who last year asked for treats as the great majority are genuinely sincere and are quite willing to forego the time-honoured custom, believing as they do that it is a means by which they can do their bit.

Such returns as are received will go to the British War Victims' Fund which has already received more than two hundred dollars from the school.

CENSORSHIP RULING FORBIDS PUBLICATION

The voluntary censorship which this newspaper has accepted as part of the war effort has curtailed the use of information regarding war casualties, until such time as the information is deemed not to be helpful to the enemy. This invariably is a considerable time after the next-of-kin have been notified. The reason for withholding publication of this information is confidential, but our readers may be assured it is a reasonable request and not just a matter of governmental red tape. We make this explanation because our readers may wonder why no reference is made to news which they have heard. We regret this very much, but we know our readers will understand.

Letters From Boys On Active Service

August 23rd, 1942.

Richmond Hill Red Cross, Per Mrs. O. L. Wright, Richmond Hill, Ontario.

Dear Madam:— Many, many thanks for the parcel of cigarettes which I received yesterday. You have no idea how much we appreciate these cigarettes from home. They are so very scarce over here and so very dear now that they begin to seem almost a luxury, and we can do without a lot of things but without a smoke—well, in my case at least I am just as the saying goes "a lost ball".

The Red Cross is certainly doing a grand job. We have evidence of it over here each and everywhere we turn, in little comforts which may not seem much to some people but which mean everything to us in the Forces.

I was in a little place here in England last week called Richmond Hill and believe me I felt quite homesick for the Richmond Hill we know so well. Again let me say "Thanks a million to the Red Cross. You are doing a grand job."

Sincerely yours,
Pte. C. Paxton, B94388,
