The Richmond Hill Tatler

A column of chat with an occasional item of "the news behind the news" written especially for The Liberal.

J. D. Sibbald of Jackson's Point writes an interesting letter to The Sutton Reporter. He says:—

Dear Editor:—Perhaps you might be interested to know why I accepted the presidency of the Progressive Conservative Association of North York.

I feel the future of our country is bound up with the prosperity of our farmers. A prosperous farming community means busy and thriving towns and villages. To carry out the desirable features of a security plan like the Beveridge report requires this prosperity. The Progressive Conservative party, under the leadership of Hon. John Bracken and Colonel George Drew, have made the welfare of agriculture the leading plank of our platform.

As a reeve and councillor of a rural township for 13 years I realize how badly agriculture needs government with its interest at heart.

J. D. Sibbald.

Mr. Sibbald is right. Not only are a man's friends and neighbors interested in his public activities, but the entire district is concerned especially when, as in the case of Mr. Sibbald, so vital a subject as the welfare of agriculture, is one of his foremost considerations. I believe he can do much to further agricultural prosperity, probably by pursuing the course of many of Mr. Bracken's followers.

These Conservative leaders frankly acknowledge that while everything was done that could possibly be done to re-organize the party at Winnipeg, much remains to be done, and they are prepared to wait the necessary years for the completion of the evolutionary process. And, in the meantime, to co-operate with the government at Ottawa on the basis of:—Canada first, party second.

A start was undoubtedly made by the Conservatives at Winnipeg. New leadership and a new party name were chosen and there was disavowal of the traditional link of old Toryism with the so called vested or privileged interests of the country that thrived on the uncontrolled exploitation of labor and agriculture.

What more could the Winnipeg convention do? The only far reaching and constructive agricultural policy in the Dominion was and still is that of the Liberal government at Ottawa just as the only all embracing social security program and the only practical solutions to the problems arising from the conflict of capital and labor were and, of course, still are of Liberal government nativity.

The Winnipeg convention of the Conservative party adopted the principles of these Liberal government reforms just as did the C.C.F. but, as with a tree that has been grafted, neither of these parties can hope for many years to be able to do more than nurse their new limbs and look forward to the day when they may be of value.

Seasoned Conservative politicians know that no speedy "cash-in" on the new policies is possible, but there are impatient members of the reorganized party who feel that a new name and that wiping off the slate of past performances the ignominious record of adherence to policies calculated to help the few at the expense of the many, should entitle the party to immediate public applause. It can't be done. The public's memory cannot be outlived in a day or two.

Let us consider the thought of Mr. Sibbald concerning agriculture in the light of such reflections. Agriculture is at present suffering from a shortage of manpower, but no government policy is to blame for that, and no remedy is proposed or apparently can be proposed by any party pending the end of the war. However serious the labor shortage may be, it would be inimically more serious, everyone must admit, if that rugged old Conservative warrior, the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen had his way. His views on the disposition of the Dominion's man power, as set forth in the West York by-election campaign, are still fresh in the public mind.

The manpower problem, however, will solve itself in time. Of much more importance is the broad question of help for agriculture, and what a government may do about it. Playing hide and seek with the farmer or camouflaging his problem will not solve it. Generalizing about it will not help, and promising to look after the welfare of agriculture is just wasting words unless something definite is intended.

The Liberal government at Ottawa recognizes that the prosperity of the farmer is and must be warp and woof of the prosperity of the entire Dominion. The farmer must sell his goods at a price that will enable him to live as well as any other class. To that end, urban communities must have buying power—any depression impoverishing the cities and towns will react unfavorably on the farmer. To that end also, the farmer must have export markets. But experience has shown that even a sound home market and splendid export opportunities may not always be sufficient, and that such artificial help as price fixation, bonus, etc. may at times be necessary.

Experience, not only here but elsewhere as well, has also shown that inflation will hurt the farmer as much if, indeed, not more than other classes. Of what use to him are eggs for which he might get a dollar a dozen if he must pay $15 or $20 for a suit of overalls for his hired man?

Elasticity of price fixing in the Liberal government's war time legislative program is calculated to be and actually is a material agricultural advantage. Social security, "like the Beveridge plan", will be a post war reality in Canada, and will maintain community buying power so that the farmer may benefit from his home market. Post war export opportunities are even now being planned at Ottawa, and so, too is labor legislation that will give the worker full guarantee of rights. But most important of all perhaps is the government's anti-inflation legislation and the proposed post war regulation of capitalistic enterprise. It can be proved and may, therefore, be frankly admitted that just about every abuse complained of as belonging to the capitalistic order of things can be ascribed to the Tory policy of "Hands off capital"; and it cannot be doubted that these abuses are, in the main, responsible for retarding agriculture and check-mating labor. I would suggest they constitute an indictment the Progressive Conservative party must live down before it can do much towards helping agriculture, as Mr. Sibbald suggests.

Here is what the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, a member of the Ottawa government, said a few days ago at the Ontario Liberal convention in Toronto with respect to the Liberal program in that connection:—

"Free enterprise, in the sense of the uncontrolled right of powerful interests to exploit the natural resources and the lives of the people of this country, is gone. I said so in the House of Commons recently and I fear I was misunderstood. Let me make my position abundantly clear. Our new world will be based on controlled enterprise, rather than unrestricted enterprise.

"Your government has been giving intensive study to the measures which will be necessary to provide full and continuous employment for all our peoples, even during the difficult transition period which will follow the closing-down of our war industries."
