Price Control And Rationing Information

Typical questions consumers have asked the Wartime Prices and Trade Board this week are answered below by the Central Ontario Consumer

Q. Is there now any good reason why one should not serve tea, cake and sandwiches at afternoon or evening affairs?

A. There is no regulation which prohibits serving tea, cake and sandwiches, providing, of course, that the rationed articles are purchased with members own ration coupons...the Board's policy is not to restrict any activities unnecessarily...but we all know that goods in short supply should be used as carefully as possible...particularly now when we think of invasion and the possibility of our having to help feed the people of Europe...it is patriotic to conserve wherever possible.

Q. I received my No. 4 Ration Book this week through the mail. Can you give me any reason why they should have taken some coupons out of my book?

A. Persons applying for their No. 4 book one month after the date of general distribution forego the coupons which became valid during that month...it is reasonable to assume that persons who did not apply for their new books did not require rationed commodities at that time.

Q. I have two sons in the army and two daughters in the navy. Every week I like to send them boxes of cakes and cookies which I make myself. Can I secure extra rations of butter and sugar for this purpose?

A. Sorry, no extra rations are allowed for the purpose you mention...the armed services provide rations for all their members...any extras would have to be purchased with coupons from your own ration book.

Q. I am taking my 8 months old baby to a clinic every month. The doctor charges $3.00 for this service while in 1940 he only charged $2.00. Is he allowed to do this?

A. There is no ceiling on professional fees...the doctor is supposed to charge a price which is reasonable and just.

Q. Would you please let me know whether it is compulsory to purchase underwear in order to obtain a pair of silk stockings. I found this to be the condition in several stores.

A. It is not compulsory to purchase underwear in order to obtain a pair of silk stockings...conditional sales such as you mention are prohibited by a Board Order...if there was a supply of silk stockings in the store you should have been able to purchase them without the necessity of buying other merchandise you did not need or want. However, the display of merchandise does not put the owner of the store under any obligation to sell...the fact that he offered you the stockings if you made another purchase is illegal...thank you for giving us the name and location of this shop...we will have their practices investigated.

BEETHOVEN'S FRIEND

Here is Frances Goffman, who played her first part, that of a little lady of Peking, when she was in junior grade public school in Dauphin, Manitoba. She has been acting ever since, in the University of Manitoba, at dramatic school in Los Angeles (Maria Ouspenskaya was her teacher), and home again in Winnipeg, under the direction of Esse Ljungh. Since moving to Toronto last year she has played Alice in "Alice in Wonderland," a variety of heroines in "The Open Door," "The Children's Scrapbook," and now - Madame Ertmann, Beethoven's friend, in "The Man Who Wouldn't Die." The program will be heard Sunday, May 28, at 9 p.m. EDT.

FARM MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT REMOVED FROM RATION LIST

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces six types of new farm machinery and equipment have been removed from the ration list and may now be sold without permits.

The items released are diamond harrow sections, flexible harrow sections, spring tooth harrow sections, cream separators, power sheep shearing machines and animal clippers, egg cleaners and brushes.

Increased production has made it possible for these articles to be removed from the ration list.

Each valid tea or coffee ration coupon is now worth four ounces of tea or 16 ounces of coffee; or 2 ounces of tea and 8 ounces of coffee.

Plans to Relieve Farm Labor Shortage

Most of the agricultural workers who had been engaged in essential off-season work since the autumn of 1943 had returned to their farm duties by the first of April, 1944. In certain instances, permits were extended beyond that date in districts where the farming season was not sufficiently advanced to make the return of farmers essential. Last fall a total of 73,149 farm workers was granted special Selective Service permits to work in the woods, in packing plants or to enter other essential employment for the winter months. In addition, several thousand others were able to engage in off-season work particularly in wood cutting operations, without permits for periods not exceeding 60 days, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada.

This year both the Dominion and Provincial governments are attempting to meet the farm labour problem along the same lines as last year. The program will probably include such measures as recruiting city workers and students for holiday farm work, the movement of farm labour from one part of the country use of conscientious objectors and Japanese workers, as well as many other steps already tried last year. In addition, it is expected that the number of men from the Army and Air Force going to the farms on special spring leave will be substantially higher than last year. These services have authorized up to two-months leave for men for spring farm work, as long as they can be spared from their military duties. Such an arrangement will help in meeting the labour problem in connection with seeding.

The Department of Labour is also experimenting in Ontario with the placement of 300 German was prisoners on farms in Kent County. Work parties will consist of 10 men and will be taken out separately and will be kept under constant guard. The farmer is required to pay the Dominion Government on the basis of prevailing rates for the work that is done, so that he does not get advantage of cheap labour. In addition to the camp project, a relatively small number of prisoners of a non-belligerent type, such as merchant seamen, are being assigned to individual farmers as hired men.

Post War Markets Assured For The Canadian Farmer

Canadian farmers will be sure of ample post-war markets for their surplus products if the peoples of the world are properly fed, Hon. Jas. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture in the Mackenzie King Cabinet, told the Montreal Kiwan's Club. The duty of all Canadians, is to work toward a post-war arrangement between nations which will establish prosperity for all.

"No country alone can have prosperity by itself," Hon. Mr. Gardiner continued, "and in order to be a prosperous nation, we must live in a prosperous world; to be a satisfied nation, we must live in a satisfied world; to be a contented nation, we must live in a contented world.

"To have peace in the world, we must have people who understand one another and who know that other nations are attempting to assist them in their way of life, just as much as they are attempting to assist themselves. If we follow those principles, we shall not only have a market for our goods, but peace in the world for a longer time than has ever been experienced before."

Isolationism had caused the war, said the Minister; and isolation must be banished after this war. The governmental policies of Canada during the war had been directed to trying to make certain that, when the war is over, all nations will work together. It was a great comfort he went on, for the present government to know that it could count on the support of the virile farming population whose war effort had astounded the world, and whose desire for a finer Canada and a finer world after the war had been expressed many times.

In a tribute to the people of the Dominion for their sound thinking in days of stress, Hon. Mr. Gardiner said:

"In Canada, without changing a syllable in our constitution, without sacrificing anything we owe to history, without scrapping the freedom of the press or speech, without dragging our honest differences of opinion on political matters into questions upon which we can all agree, we, the Canadian people, have conducted this war to the point where we can look to the future with confidence."
