OTTAWA LETTER

By Jack Smith, M.P., North York

The Dominion-Provincial conference which resumed here Monday is holding the centre of the stage this week. All the Provincial Premiers are in Ottawa conferring with Prime Minister King and members of the Federal Government. There is here a note of optimism concerning the outcome of the conference, on which depends the successful solution of many of Canada's domestic problems.

Work of Parliament progressed rapidly this week. A conference of the Prime Ministers with all Party Leaders has set December 15th as a deadline for prorogation. To meet this deadline all legislation and work of Parliament has been carefully and systematically scheduled and a definite time fixed for consideration of every measure. This in reality means that from now on talk is rationed, but I do not think this will work any hardship for the people of Canada and it certainly will not for members of Parliament. I am satisfied the country's real business will not suffer from the rationing.

Reconstruction is among Canada's number one problems today so it is not surprising that the estimates of the Reconstruction Department created keen interest here. Hon. C. D. Howe, the very able minister, in charge of this department, drew praise from opposition as well as government benches for the handling of the department and his complete mastery of all details in connection with the many projects under his direction. Whatever the question Mr. Howe had a ready answer and gave facts, figures and details with a readiness which amazed friend and critic alike. Canada's reconversion program is progressing he said and pointed out that at least 100 major products never before manufactured in Canada will be produced here when reconversion plans are completed. A few of the new products to be produced here include pre-fabricated houses, glass fabrics, large busses, plastics, yarns, resins, and many forms of chemicals. The government investment in plants and equipment during the war was $722,000,000. The Minister said that by spring when reconversion program is well under way there will be jobs for all in Canada.

Canada will not attain the goal of high employment in peacetime "unless management and labor walk up the road together," Labor Minister Mitchell said in the Commons in presenting Labor Department estimates.

"Bickerings and strikes will be a millstone on reconstruction, which is only possible on the basis of just and friendly partnership between capital and labor," he said and he expressed hope the Ford strike at Windsor, Ontario, soon would be settled.

After reviewing steps to relax manpower controls Mr. Mitchell said:

"The emphasis now is on freedom of the choice of jobs and employees by the worker and employer respectively. Regimentation may be necessary in wartime but it is my profound conviction that it has no place in the Canadian scene in times of peace."

Controls still in effect were the permit system under which a permit was required before accepting a job and the requirement of seven days' notice before quitting or dismissing.

"Our ultimate objective is to change over to a national employment service to which employers and employees alike will come of their own accord," he said. "We are in a position to give service to the nation in employment matters which we believe will equal that given anywhere in the world."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced in the Commons the government's intention of continuing its meat rationing program "until such time as it may feel justified in adopting other measures."

Mr. King said this decision had been reached in view of the "perilous" food situation facing Europe. This means that the Canadian meat ration, set at approximately 1 1/2 pounds of boneless meat per person each week when the ration was re-instituted in September, will continue for some time, probably through the winter and until the European food supply situation improved.

If Canadians could stretch their imaginations to encompass the conditions in Britain and France they would not have even one small kick about continuation of meat rationing.

Such was the emphatic opinion expressed by Bert Showler, president of Vancouver and New Westminster Trades and Labor Council, who returned to Ottawa this week with the Canadian delegation to the International Labor Organization meeting held recently in Paris.

"Send all the food you can to the people in the Old Country," said Mr. Showler, "and remember, they are too proud to ask for it."

He was in England and Scotland on the way to and from Paris and visited many relatives and acquaintances.

"When a guest in a house I felt criminal for eating their food," he remarked.

In France he found plenty for those who could afford black market prices but 80 per cent of the people are just existing. It was common to see people in Paris picking bits of bread from the street. Well dressed people did not hesitate to pick up cigarette butts.

A man in Paris offered him 5,000 francs (about $100) for his overcoat. It cost 800 francs (about $16) for a "fair" meal.

His conclusion: "We are darn lucky to be living in Canada."

In answer to a question this week the Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of Health, stated that in October of this year Family Allowance payments totalled $19,050,972.50. This was paid to 1,334,575 families. The break-down as to size of families shows that these payments were made to 512,659 families of one child, 368,932 families of 2 children, and the size of families range all the way up to payments to 2 families of 15 children.

In past years work at Toronto Post Office during the Christmas rush has provided some extra earnings for many High School students in North York. This year North York will receive its fair share of extra help appointments but the help situation is very much changed from the war years and not nearly so many will be required. In the first place many veterans have been added to the P.O. staff and not as many extra helpers will be required. Secondly the first preference in appointing extra help will go to veterans, next to adults with dependents, then adults without dependents and lastly to High School and College students. With this preference rating I think all will agree. Some students will be required and any who wish work may leave names at The Liberal office, and as many as needed will be called. All must be seventeen years of age or over. We make this explanation now so students will not pass up other opportunities of employment, as at the moment officials do not hold out much hope for the employment of students in very large numbers, and the period of employment will be short.

With the Christmas Spirit in all Our Hearts

This year, the first in six, we may properly put time and thought into expressing the Divine message of peace and goodwill, in our gifts and in the decoration of our homes.

A gift need not be a costly thing to be a gesture of goodwill; our home need not be like the palace of a millionaire to suggest Christmas cheer.
