Price Control And Rationing Information

Q. I received a Christmas gift which is not the correct size. The store where it was purchased will not refund the money and they are unable to give me the correct size. Are they allowed to do this?

A. In reply to the numerous enquiries received about exchanging gifts we repeat once again...there are no WPTB regulations governing exchanges. Each individual store has its own policy regarding the making of exchanges and refunding money. Most shops are glad to make reasonable exchanges as they are anxious to satisfy all customers. Perhaps they would allow you a credit slip and you would then be able to buy some other item when they have further supplies in.

Q. Is there a ceiling price on furniture? I paid $17.50 for a chair a week ago and since then have seen the same chair priced at $14.95 in another store.

A. Yes, there certainly is a ceiling price on furniture. Furniture dealers must not charge more for the same type of furniture than was charged by them in 1941. Prices for such articles have always varied slightly from store to store and, of course, the same thing applies today. $2.55 does seem quite a difference in price on one article and as you have given us the name and address of the store where you made this purchase we will check prices there.

Q. I telephoned a bakery to make arrangements to have a birthday cake made. When I had completed arrangements regarding the name, etc. to be iced on the cake they told me I would have to bring in a pound of sugar from my own rations. Are they allowed to do this?

A. There is no Board regulation prohibiting bakers from requesting the customer to bring in extra sugar if they want an iced cake. Sugar is rationed for bakers and very often their quotas are not sufficient to allow for special icing such as you wanted on this birthday cake.

Q. Our home is in the north country and we are seven miles from the nearest town. My wife is ill and I work in the bush and cannot get to town very often. It is impossible for us to buy fresh milk and I would like to know if there is any way we can get a supply of canned milk.

A. Yes...go to the Local Ration Board in your nearest town giving them all details. From the information contained in your letter we are quite sure you will be able to obtain coupons for the purchase of a supply of canned milk, as there is no fresh milk available in your district.

Making it easier for more farmers to have TELEPHONES

Just as soon as materials become available, we will extend telephone lines along public roads where there is one applicant for service per half mile. The applicant will pay no construction costs. Furthermore, there will be no charge for the first 750 feet of pole line on his own property; a nominal non-recurring charge of $5.00 per 250 feet will be made beyond that point. This notable reduction in construction charges to new subscribers will help bring nearer our goal of making telephone service available to the greatest possible number of farm families.
