OTTAWA LETTER by "Jack" Smith, M.P. North York

Prime Minister King soon will leave to attend the Peace Conference at Paris on July 29th. Mr. King does not like the thought of leaving before the Session ends, but the importance of this Conference gives him no choice in the matter. World affairs are in a troubled state and the hope of enduring peace is a Peace Conference at which the nations of the world can get together in the true spirit of brotherhood and understanding. Mr. King's long experience in public affairs, and his qualities of leadership particularly, fit him to make a very special contribution to this all-important Conference. Parliament and the people of Canada want him to go, and as he leaves shortly on this mission the good wishes of all, irrespective of party, go with him. Speaking of world affairs, recently Mr. King said: "A great calm will come if we but strive patiently and tirelessly to replace ill-will with good-will and conflict with co-operation."

The debate on the budget continues here and main criticism of opposition is that more economies should be effected to reduce expenditures. Unfortunately, much of the criticism is of a very general nature and is not as effective as if it were more specific. That is, it is a sort of wasteful pastime to deplore expenditures without being definite enough to say just what expenditures you would cut, just what government services you would curtail. There has been some complaint of the move to tax Co-operatives, but in the main, the change will receive pretty general support. This has been a contentious question since the early thirties, and the budget proposals are pretty well the same as the recommendations of the Royal Commission appointed to investigate the whole question. The Isley proposals are not in any way aimed at discouraging Co-operatives. They merely try to bring a measure of equality to the taxation of business. It was a difficult problem but the general feeling here is that once again Mr. Isley has dealt with a very difficult situation in a very able manner. Prime Minister Mackenzie King this week said that Canada intends to retain her price, rent and rationing controls regardless of the United States action of abandoning similar war-imposed regulations in that country. At the same time, Mr. King observed that developments affecting prices in the United States were "not without their effect" upon Canada and stressed that Canadian policies, in the past, would "necessarily continue to have such developments in mind." In a 400-word statement, Mr. King noted that the American emergency control legislation expired June 30th and that there now were under federal law no controls, except for sugar, on prices, rents and rationing in that country. Certain States and municipalities, he continued, had taken emergency measures or maintained existing regulations which were not affected by the expiration of the federal law. He then said: "This situation has not unnaturally raised certain questions in the minds of many Canadians. The government feels that the first opportunity should be taken to assure parliament and the country that there is no intention of abandoning similar controls in Canada. Developments affecting prices in other countries, particularly the United States, are, of course, not without their effect upon Canada. Our policies have, in the past, and will, in the future, necessarily continue to have such developments in mind." But controls existed in Canada before they were adopted in the United States, Mr. King added, and the Canadian regulations, while similar in objective to those in the United States, had often differed "quite widely in their form and their nature." In other words, we in Canada, have followed our own course which we believe is well adapted to Canadian conditions and to the Canadian economy. We shall continue to follow policies which we believe to be in the general interest, making, from time to time, such modifications as seem to be required in the light of internal and external conditions as they develop." The Finance Minister announced this week that the department is taking steps to have the copper-colored five-cent pieces withdrawn from circulation. It will take some time to do this as the actual withdrawal will have to be made by the chartered banks. It is hoped, however, that these coins which are so easily confused with coppers, will be out of circulation in the near future. Revenue from radio receiving licences in Canada last year amounted to $4,260,379.14. Cost of collection, including commissions and enforcement, amounted to about 12%. The number of licences issued was 1,754,351. The Province of Ontario accounted for 607,968. The number issued in Aurora last year was 581, in Newmarket 1292. The figures for smaller municipalities are not yet available.

The Press Gallery at Ottawa is a most important parliamentary institution. It is composed of accredited journalists, representing various Canadian newspapers, the Canadian Press, British United Press, the Associated Press, New York Times and others. Its present membership is forty-six, composed of some of the leading journalists in this country. It includes the distinguished representatives of the French-language press in the Province of Quebec. Some of the largest of the Canadian dailies have as many as three representatives. Most of the dailies have one representative. The Canadian Press has eight representatives. The Press Gallery is a largely autonomous organization. It has its own constitution and elects its own officers, who manage its affairs. Its privileges are jealously guarded. Only its members are admitted to the Press Gallery of the House of Commons and the Senate. A large Press Room in the Parliament Buildings is made available for the accommodation of its members. Its members are the only persons outside of members of parliament, and their agents, who have the privilege of dining at the Parliamentary Dining Room.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Carey in the loss of her mother, Mrs. M. Dillman who passed away suddenly last week. The funeral took place Friday morning. Mrs. Dillman had made her home here with her daughter. Interment was in Mount Hope Cemetery. The news came suddenly also of the death of Mrs. Fugard who passed away on Monday morning. Mr. Fugard is in hospital for an operation on his eyes. The sympathy of the community is extended to the family in their bereavement. The July meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary was held Thursday, July 11th in the United Church with Mrs. W. Young, president, in charge. After the hymn the minutes were read. Mrs. Fair chose as her subject for the worship service "Listening to the words of Jesus". Later in the meeting Mrs. Newton dealt very capably with the concluding chapters of the study book which will now be ended and the study of India will be used for next year. Mrs. Braithwaite spoke briefly on her visits to various churches during her winter holiday and the ladies were glad to welcome her home. The members were happy to have the new minister's wife, Mrs. Butt, with us and expressed the hope that she and her family may be happy in their work among us. Mrs. N. Ogden closed the meeting with prayer and the ladies were invited to go across to Mrs. Newton's lovely home where afternoon tea was served and enjoyed by all. Misses Beverley Bratton, Joan Chapin, Margaret Burkholder, Becky and Mary Smith are attending the junior camp for girls at Camp Ah-shun-yong from Unionville and district. Misses Helen Russell and Marion Devin will attend the Intermediate Camp which opens on Saturday. We hope to hear that Mr. George Martin who is now in Christie Street Hospital will soon be able to return to his home and work.
