SUCCEED WITH CHICKS

YET SAVE UP TO 50% ON FEED

● The nourishing oatmeal base is one reason why Quaker Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter helps develop big, husky, profitable pullets. And the Ful-O-Pep Rearing Plan helps save as much as 1/2 to 2/3 on cost of feeding pullets. Ful-O-Pep also contains Concentrated Spring Range to provide winter-hatched chicks with many of the healthful benefits of fresh green pasture.

THE ANGEL OF TOIL

A great painter of two generations ago was the Scottish artist, Thomas Scott, R.S.A., who came of rugged Highland stock. One day the artist met an uncle of his in the streets of Selkirk. To the old man an artist was a good deal of a loafer. He said to his nephew: "I suppose you would rather paint pictures than work." The old man wasn't trying to be sarcastic; he just didn't consider painting a very respectable occupation.

Yet more than twenty centuries ago in some ancient civilizations intellectual labour was exalted and manual work despised. The Greek Plato living in Athens and the Roman Cicero living in Rome both expressed contempt for handcraft workers. They considered it fit only for slaves. There has been a decided swing away from that position. Especially in the new countries such as Canada, the United States and Australia there is not much sympathy for the man who considers himself above doing hard work. The term "working man" is steadily becoming the proud badge of honour.

One of the most striking verses in the Bible is in Paul's first letter to the Corinthians: "We are God's fellow-workers" (1 Cor. 3: 9 (RV)). Here is a stupendous statement; God is working. Other systems of religion have invariably represented God as being eternally at rest. He is pictured as an infinite dreamer. It was thought that work was beneath Him, but it is the glory of the Christian creed that God is recognized as a worker. There is no greater toiler in all the universe than God, himself.

What we do need to recognize, however, is that the proud title "working man" must not be limited to any one section of society. Work may be different, and we must respect men and women whose work may be entirely different from ours. The Polish pianist, Paderewski, practiced eight hours a day for twenty years. Edison, the inventor, worked with such intensity that he was often shut up in his laboratory for thirty-six hours at a stretch. The rigid concentration of authors has become a proverb. A book may read very smoothly and readers may think it was written with ease. On the contrary, as Mary Roberts Rhinehart said recently, writing is very hard work; toilsome in the highest degree. Tennyson's poem: "Come into the garden, Maud," was written fifty times before it gave satisfaction to the author. No group of workers has ever toiled with blood, sweat and tears more than writers.

Work is not a curse, it is a blessing. The surest proof of that is that honest labour brings a peace and contentment that the idle never know. Busy people often look forward to the time when they can retire and enjoy a well-earned rest. But those who do reach that position invariably discover that they are less happy than before. The eager zest and interest has gone, and they find that to arrive is a very dreary and disappointing experience.

The great violinist, Paganini, left his marvelous violin to his native city of Genoa, but on the condition that it must never be played upon. This condition was unfortunate, for it is one peculiarity of wood that as long as it is used and handled it wears but slightly, but as soon as it is discarded it begins to decay. The lovely toned violin has become worm-eaten in its beautiful case, and it is valueless except as a relic. The moldering instrument is a reminder of the truth that a life withdrawn from all service to others becomes useless alike to God and man.

"More of our friends have Telephones—and we all use the Telephone more!"

DAY AND NIGHT, seven days a week the telephone is at your service. Quickly and easily it keeps you in touch with everything and everybody everywhere. There are 400,000 more telephones and two million more calls a day than there were three years ago. And service is getting better all the time.

In three years, however, costs of important raw materials for telephone lines and cables have risen sharply. Copper prices have doubled, zinc and lead prices tripled. Yet, up to now, despite rising costs on all sides, there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago. Few things give you so much real value at such low cost as your telephone.

We've broken all records but there are still orders we haven't been able to fill. We will keep right on working and building to make your telephone service a bigger bargain than ever—to continue to provide more and better service at the lowest possible cost.
