Local Grocer Owns Interesting Coins One 200 Years Old

"That's gold in them thar hills!" Even if there isn't, there appears to be a lot of loose money knocking around the Hill.

A short story in the Liberal a few weeks ago, describing the finding of an ancient coin on the Neill farm at Jefferson, sparked numerous other stories dealing with the finding of old coins, locally. Besides that, local citizens have been digging down into the sock and, as a result, a number of pieces of old money have been exhibited to this paper.

Latest and largest of the collections is that possessed by Archie Murray of Helen's Grocery. Not being numismatists (That's a good one for early Monday morning) it is impossible for the staff of this paper to say what collector's value the coins have. Nevertheless, they are of considerable historical value.

Away back in 1797, when George III was King of England, the petty cash must have constituted a real labour problem. It was a good job that slot machines were unknown in those days too. Among the coins owned by Mr. Murray is a copper one — denomination unstated, but apparently a penny — which weighs two ounces. At the other end of the scale, at least as far as weight is concerned, are some tiny U. S. coins, some of them carrying thirteen stars indicating the number of individual states of those days.

Among them is a "half dime" in silver and a three cent piece in the same metal. Oldest of the coins is one of 1746.

Many countries are represented in the large collection of coins and tokens owned by Mr. Murray. One of the interesting ones is an Irish coin dated 1818.

The collection has been acquired over a period of thirty years during which time, Mr. Murray admits without blushing, he has been trying to collect current coin of the realm. He has been in the grocery business in the Hill for the last seven years.

The score to date indicates that the oldest coin in the district is the 1746 number owned by Archie Murray. Who can beat it?

SUPPOSE you have what you feel is a good opportunity which calls for bank credit. If one bank cannot see it your way, or if you think you can get a better deal elsewhere, you're free to "shop around".

Banks compete to serve the most diversified needs, no matter how specialized any of them may be... personal, business, or farm loans, money transfers, collections — to name just a few.

More than 95 out of 100 bank loan applications are decided "right in the field" — in the branches — by bank managers who take a personal interest in serving their customers' individual requirements.

Going to your bank is not like having to deal with a state bureau — but that's how it would be under state monopoly.
