"Literally Speaking" . . . About Books

100 YEARS OF CANADIAN STAMPS

By Ralph Stokes Mason
As the year 1951 marks the centenary of the first issuance of postage stamps in Canada it is fitting that the event should be marked in some permanent form covering their history during this period. This book does this thoroughly and completely and will prove of great interest not only to philatelists, amateur and professional, but also many random readers.

Pictured above is the cover of Rev. R. S. Mason's recently published book entitled "100 Years of Canadian Stamps." The book is reviewed in this week's "Literally Speaking" column.

BLOWING THE ARCTIC
By C. J. Tranter
A very fine story of a hazardous two-year trip of the RCMP ship "St. Roch" through the North-west Passage from Vancouver to Halifax with some interesting points of Eskimo life.

In 1940 Sgt. Henry Larsen set off with a crew of seven in the St. Roch to become the first ship to traverse the North West Passage from west to east and although it took two years to complete — the voyage was made successfully.

Frozen in solid all winter the ship and crew overcame the elements of nature, and boredom in the great icy barren waste of the north, which as the author relates was fantastic to behold.

Well written, this book should be read by all lovers of travel.

This was organized by Grethe Dahl, Katherine Johnson, Helen Calder and Ruth Weir, the older girls of the group of children who took the swimming lessons at the Thornhill tank this summer, as part of the summer program sponsored by the M.R.A.
