Provincial Election

A general election in Ontario has been called for Thursday, November 22, with official nomination day on Thursday, November 8. Premier Frost has been in office since May 4, 1949 and he will be facing the people of Ontario for the first time as leader of his party. The last provincial election was in June 1948 and in the ordinary course of events an election would not likely be held until next year. However Premier Frost stated in his election announcement that as he never had a mandate as premier from the people of Ontario he felt it best to have an election. This was a reasonable conclusion and we agree that in line with the workings of our democratic system of government it was a sound decision.

The right of the people to choose their representatives in Parliament is one of the fundamentals of our democratic system. The privilege of free elections is one that is denied to millions of people living behind the iron curtain. It is a privilege and a right responsibility which is ours and should not be treated lightly. The periodical election of representatives to the Legislature is an important duty of good citizenship.

In all elections there is altogether too little interest by the great majority of our people, and on election day altogether too many people are indifferent to their responsibilities and do not even bother to go to the polls to mark a ballot. This is a condition which never should exist in a democracy, and it is a condition which must not be allowed to continue in our democracy in these days of threats from other ideologies.

The election campaign now on should not be regarded as an unnecessary interruption to our every-day business and social life. It is important business which should demand the careful thought and attention of all good citizens.

United Church 99 yrs. At Its Thornhill Site

Thornhill United Church was beautifully decorated with baby mums and fall flowers last Sunday when the congregation celebrated the 99th anniversary of the church at the present site. The roots of this congregation go back to 1803 when a Methodist circuit rider held the first religious service in the district. The present church was erected at Langstaff in 1838 and moved to the present site in 1852. Since then it has been altered and recently additional facilities have been provided.

Already plans are being made for the Centennial of the site and Rev. E. E. Pugsley, a former minister, has consented to be guest speaker.

On Sunday the guest minister was Rev. K. I. Cleator, B.A., B.D., S.T.M., associate minister of Bloor St. United Church who chose for his sermon in the morning "Making the Church a Non-conformist". The music was excellent with the junior choir singing an old German number "Do You Know?" and the senior choir singing an anthem by Roberts "Seek thee the Lord" with Mr. J. Oliver, tenor, as soloist. Mrs. L. Burke rendered MacDermid's "91st Psalm". In the evening the sermon by Rev. Cleator was "Getting Christianity out of its Cubby Holes". The junior choir sang the anthem "Hushed for the Evening Hymn," and the senior choir sang "The Radiant Morn." A large congregation attended both the services.

Turkey Supper
Temperanceville United Church basement was the scene of a delicious turkey supper on October 17, served under the auspices of the W.A. By all reports received from those in attendance, there were some 300 persons; the meal was immensely enjoyed. From the members of the committee appreciation is extended to all those who so generously contributed toward the food required and to those who assisted with the work essential to taking the supper a success. During the evening films on Canadian scenes and industries were shown by Mr. DeWitt of the National film board.

On October 19 the Centre District Conference of the Women's Institute was held in Aurora United Church. The subject "They call it human nature" was taken by Miss McBride and proved to be of great interest to her audience of some sixty-five persons. The speaker chose to divide her subject into four parts: Confiding; Inadequacy; Self Worth; Control of Emotions.

(1) Confide in the home with both young and old to make them feel of importance and part of the home life, both its good moments and its problems.
(2) To make one feel adequate one needs the feeling of achievement in one's undertaking, therefore try the small before the large tasks. Learn to stand on your own feet. Do not punish a child for showing resentment or anger at not succeeding but help him achieve his goal.
(3) To know self worth one must first receive recognition of worth in one's own family, outsiders' appreciation is not enough. One must feel one's own worth in order to value individual personality. Outsiders can help by giving one the opportunity to express opinions in organizations. The most difficult wound soldiers had to bear was that of lack of recognition for their efforts on the part of civilians. If one tries to encourage others one attains satisfaction oneself. Achievement in hobbies is an outlet for self-worth. Poor control of emotions may make one become physically ill. Encourage pleasant emotions, laughing, playing, joy, etc. Avoid depressing subjects and programs. Get proper outlet for energies, anger and fear increase with use of such emotions and will spread among crowds as will joy and laughter. Train yourself to make the good emotions the prominent ones. It will pay dividends in health and

OTTAWA LETTER

by Jack Smith, M.P. North York

The visit of Their Royal Highnesses, the Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, has pretty well dominated the Canadian scene in recent weeks, and the unequalled success of the tour is a matter of great satisfaction here and to all who in any way were responsible for making the trip possible.

The Princess and the Duke have been just wonderful and the enthusiasm and sincerity of the Canadian welcome has deeply impressed the Royal couple and the world.

The importance of the successful tour cannot be over-estimated. It has demonstrated our loyalty to the Crown and the treasured fundamentals of our democracy, it has quickened our national spirit, inspired greater pride in our national greatness and told the world in no uncertain terms that we prize highly our ties with Britain and the Commonwealth.

In these days of anxiety in the realm of international affairs such convincing demonstrations by our people are very encouraging. We should have more of them, Your government is very happy and proud to have had the privilege of arranging Royal tour in Canada of our future Queen and her husband.

Sessional Program
The second session of Parliament this year was called primarily to pass the necessary legislation to provide increased security for our older citizens through payment of pensions, without a means test and as a matter of right, to all Canadians over the age of 70, and establish a fund made up of special contributions levied for that purpose.

Registration of all persons 70 years of age and over has been successfully undertaken and administrative preparations have been well advanced to provide prompt payment from January 1952 to all eligible persons. In the first year it is estimated this will benefit seven hundred thousand Canadians. This legislation follows that of last session which provided for pensions to persons between the ages of 65 and 70.

The international situation continues to give grave concern to all and our national effort to provide security for our people continues to take top priority in all legislative and administrative business. The North Atlantic Nations are steadily increasing their combined strength in a determined effort and fervent hope to maintain peace. The measure of Canada's contribution to this combined effort is a matter which will have consideration of Parliament at this session.

The concern of all our people over the high cost of living has already found expression here, and the concern of our people over these rising costs resulting from international and domestic inflationary pressures is fully shared by the government and all members of Parliament.

The matter is receiving constant study and consideration and the government will not hesitate to take any steps which are in the best interest of the people and which they believe will be effective. The government will not institute controls, just for the sake of having controls, even though such a step might relieve the pressure from groups which clamour for some kind of control over prices. If at any time it is felt that controls will help the situation the government will not hesitate to bring in the necessary regulations as it did during war years.

A major national project under active consideration is the development of both the seaway and power phases of the St. Lawrence River development. The government is in real earnest on this matter and it is now well assured that the great seaway in not too far distant future will be a reality and a great boon to central Ontario and all Canada.

Pensions
Adjustments in basic pensions for veterans and their dependants will receive attention early this session. I have received many representations on the matter and I wish to assure all who have expressed concern that I am satisfied the necessary revision will have the sympathetic consideration of the government and that increases will be made which will meet with general approval.

During the next eight or nine weeks I will be in Ottawa and I hope constituents will feel very free to write me on any matter of local or national concern. If I can be of any assistance to anyone in the riding of North York at any time it will continue to be a great pleasure and privilege. My address here is J. E. SMITH, M.P., Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, and no postage is required on letters. Most week-ends I will be in Richmond Hill and will be available at my home or office.

The Township has called for tenders for the erection of the building.

A GHOST STORY

Do you believe in ghosts? No? Well, neither do I. At least I didn't until I heard this story. Even now I am not certain if there are such things.

This story took place in the year 1925, when two elderly ladies, Mrs. Joyce McGowan and Mrs. Marie Mercer decided to take a trip to Europe. They were about ten miles from the main city and stopped at a hotel for the night. The manager invited them into the sitting room while he finished preparing their rooms. There they rested and talked about the things they had seen and done.

For some reason Mrs. McGowan left the room. This left Mrs. Mercer to do as she pleased until the rooms were ready. While she was looking at a row of books, she had a feeling she was being watched. She happened to glance towards the fireplace where she saw a fleeting shadow, which she thought most certainly to be a ghost. All of a sudden she let out a most unearthly scream, which had both her companion and the clerk running into the room. But the shadow had disappeared before they reached it. Mrs. Mercer was very pale and nearly ready to collapse when they entered. She told them what had happened and decided that she would leave as soon as she had her bags gathered. The clerk said that whatever she saw was perfectly harmless, but she was determined to leave and she went.

It was believed that many years ago, the first owner of the hotel was murdered in the same place where the ghost was seen and everywhere anyone appeared in the room the figure followed to see if the person in the room was the same one that killed his body.

Now this story is quite ridiculous I know, yet it is supposed to be true. One really doesn't know what to believe, does one?
