What d'ye know?

"WHAT D'YE KNOW" is today more than a genial Greeting. It is indicative of today's pace in living. People KNOW more — have to know more — than their forebears of a couple of generations ago.

Kids today in Primary School — students in University — Business — Homemakers — all have to learn more, and know more, to keep abreast of the multitude of developments and progress in the world today.

As a requisite of good citizenship, and in social life, men and women simply have to know, and be well-informed about what is going on in their local community and in the world at large.

That is why Newspapers have to supply more and more news and information.

And what about news and information concerning the things we all need in the enjoyment of our standards of living today!

SECONDARY SCHOOL NOTES FROM RICHMOND HILL DIST. HIGH SCHOOL

Beginning with this issue, the "Liberal" with an introduction by Mr. J. H. Jensen, will be featuring a series of outstanding history essays by Grade 10 students of the Richmond Hill District High School. In these essays the pupils have chosen for their topics the story of many local families, events, and landmarks associated with the growth and development of this area.

"A study of local history formed part of the Grade 10 course in Canadian history in the Richmond Hill District High School last year. The aim was to help the student realize that the history of our community is an integral part of the history of our country. The results were very gratifying. The students showed imagination and initiative in gathering information for their projects."

The Reaman Homestead

Isabel Reaman — 10A

In approximately 1800 a family by the name of Lyon bought Lot 36, Con. 1 and erected a saw mill, a dam, and a small settlement (Slatown) for the workers at the saw mill. The remains of that original dam still exist on the banks of the Don River. There was also a time when a gravel pit was in use. It was from this pit that the gravel was obtained to build the original street car tracks on Yonge Street. Markham township also hauled gravel from this pit for some time. There is little gravel left now, but the landmark still remains. The Don River was larger than at the present time and was used to float logs down to the saw mill. Some lumber was, of course, cut from the home land.

The farm was purchased by Reaman in 1887; in years preceding that date the saw mill had been destroyed by fire. Isaac Reaman, my great-grandfather was the purchaser. He stumped the land and built a new set of buildings. He also served on council for several years. The implements used in those days were all horse drawn; even the threshing machine was run by horse power. He successfully worked the farm on the south-west corner of Bathurst and Langstaff Sideroad too. However, in 1905, my grandfather, Jacob Reaman and his wife, May Savage, the daughter of an Elgin Mills farmer, took over our present farm and the brother got the one on the south-west corner. The Jacob Reaman family consisted of three girls and a boy — Warren. He rented the back eighty acres on the present Loretta Abbey farm. The barn on the Reaman farm was burned in 1930 and rebuilt the following year.

In 1932 Warren Reaman married Hazel Smith, the daughter of an Hazel native farmer. Jacob Reaman moved and took up residence in Thornhill where he lived his remaining years. Warren — my father, took over the farm and has worked it ever since. Along with this 100 acres he rented an additional 500 acres owned by Milnis for three years. Since that time he rents the 200 acres owned by Loretta Abbey, originally owned by Milnis. Machinery has advanced by leaps and bounds, until it is irreplaceable.

This family consists of two girls — one helping on the farm and the other attending good old Richmond Hill District High School. The future of our farm is something we dare not think of. The city is coming so close that our landmarks will soon lose their meaning and become just another area of houses and lots.

The Conestoga Wagon

Isabel Reaman — 10A

It is interesting to find how our original ancestors got to this district. Many of us can trace our ancestors in this very district.

A family by the name of Baker on Lot 11, Con. 2, still possess an original Conestoga wagon. This wagon brought Mr. Baker's own ancestors from Pennsylvania to Maple where they still reside. It was in the very early eighteenth century when they battled with inconveniences and obstacles to successfully explore the promising future which Canada held in store. The Conestoga wagon is of an interesting construction. It is approximately ten feet long. The wheels are fastened to the frame with a linch pin instead of the present style. The box portion of the wagon was constructed so that they would serve to float across rivers every bit as successfully as they travelled the overland roads. The springs were only two long boards, one on each side of the inside of the box, fastened at the front and back. The seats were fastened to this flexible board to resist the bumps. It must have been a picture to see the humble lives that these people in their quaint bonnets and flat back hats, hoop skirts and a few possessions they could manage to bring to conquer the north, made.

Only a year ago this very wagon returned to Pennsylvania where they celebrated the centennial in that state. It was taken by truck, but two horses drew it all the way home. On the Rainbow Bridge the mayors of Niagara N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., met and conducted a ceremony with the Conestoga the centre of attraction. It was the first time that anything had ever stopped the traffic on the Rainbow Bridge. At Waterloo another celebration was held and again it was in honour of the Conestoga. Parts of this excursion were televised and covered the front pages of local newspapers. The quaint old wagon again rests in the barn at the Baker farm where it holds a ton of memories and many, many tales of old and new.

YES - IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE... and here's a good reason why

On January 12th, 1950, at Regina, Hon. James Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, told the Chamber of Commerce:

"We will have the whole British market back by 1952. Britain will become the foremost buyer of Canadian food."
BUT WHAT ARE THE FACTS? Look at these figures — They show that instead of regaining the British market we have lost it entirely

Here is the average of exports of farm produce for the years 1943 - 1947 Today's Export Figures

Pork (chiefly bacon)	471,879,000 lbs.	NONE
Cheese	111,721,000 lbs.	NONE
Eggs	73,068,000 lbs.	NONE

Those figures affect you if you are a farmer — and they affect you no matter what your occupation is. Agriculture is one of Canada's great basic industries, and if the farmer's income declines — as it has done — then sooner or later ALL Canadians feel the pinch.

Gardiner said Canada would have the British market back by 1952. Here it is 1953 — and that market has disappeared entirely. The United States market is in grave danger of being closed to many Canadian farm products as a result of pressure on the U.S. Congress, for protection from Canadian imports. 41 such bills have been before Congress. The Liberal government's inept and muddling agricultural policies have made it TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Help make sure of it on August 10 by voting for
