McLellan officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Norman Davis, the bride wore a strapless gown of white nylon tulle over bridal satin with a printed nylon tulle overskirt, featuring a long-sleeved jacket of printed tulle. Her embroidered nylon tulle fingertip veil was caught to a sequinned tiara. She carried a cascade of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Joan Davis, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron-of-honour and Miss Julia Hughes was bridesmaid, both in similar strapless gowns of green and mauve net over taffeta, featuring tiered skirts and jackets. They wore feathered headresses and carried nosegays of yellow and white roses and chrysanthemums.

Best man was Charles Milne and ushers were John Bradbury and Ronald Ash.

For the reception at the home of the groom the bride's mother received in a dress of brown crepe, wearing brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother assisted her in a lime coloured dress with black accessories and wearing a corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling to New York the bride chose a navy and white suit with red and navy accessories.
