CORN PICKING TIME—and here is a sight familiar to most. Below you see a Caterpillar D2 Tractor pulling a two-row corn picker on the George Theilen farm near Curran, Illinois. Looks like a 100 bushel yield, doesn't it?

BAA, BAA, BLACK SHEEP but this black lamb has no need to fret. He seems to be enjoying the fondling of year-old Steven Lee Nielsen of Austin, Texas, who is delighted with his little woolly pal.

TALENT SCOUT chancing on this hay stack would be thrilled to find lovely Amy Newell relaxing mid the hay. But sleeve-eyed Amy has already "been discovered"—as a radio actress—and is heard regularly on a popular dramatic program.

Dance Night
 This Friday night there will be the regular square-dance sponsored by the J.S.C.C. at the school, starting at 8 p.m. Items not sold at the bazaar will be on display then and tickets will be available for a draw to take place in December on a 6 lb. Christmas Cake.
 November 20 will be a Card Night sponsored by the Club and on this occasion the pillows won by Mr. Gilchrist at the bazaar and kindly turned back to the club, will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.
 Michael Terry and Bruce Miller are recovering nicely from recent tonsil operations they both underwent.
 Colin Dick had his final physiotherapy treatment last Friday and his doctor is pleased with the progress his arm is showing.
 Jimmy Ruslowe will have to stay home from school for another week but he is making steady progress after his recent appendix operation.
 Stephen Kerwin is recovering nicely after a tonsilectomy Friday morning.
Honored By Queen
 Last Sunday, November 8, after the annual Remembrance Day Parade, a service was held in the Armories at Aurora by the Canadian Legion and Sergeant J. E. Flood, Jefferson, was presented with the Coronation medal by Lieutenant Colonel J. F. Westhead, M.B.E. on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II. Sergeant Flood has the distinction of having served 10½ years in active service with the Canadian Army, having served four years in the 1st Great War and six and one half years in World War II.
 During the past five years he has held office in the Canadian Legion, Aurora, Branch 385, and is the President of that Branch.

 Birthday greetings are extended to Jennifer Ensor who will celebrate her fourth birthday on November 19.
 Belated birthday wishes to Bruce Miller who was seven years old last Monday, November 9, and also to Victor Follifot whose sixth birthday was on Tuesday, November 10.
 Welcome home to Mrs. C. Hatchford who returned from hospital last Sunday.
Deer Me!
 Art Gibson, Summit Farms, experienced a little bit of everything when he attended the annual deer hunt at Beaver Meadow Hunt Club Lake Nipissing, last week.
 One of the hunters was lost on Friday morning, but not too seriously. He had gone off on his own and lost the trail back to camp. Searchers found him just before night fall.
 Travelling up the lake in a 36' cruiser Saturday morning the men had quite a time clearing the sandbars which had been piled up by high winds. Later that day the wind started a small bush fire which the rain and snow helped to put out.
 One bear was sighted by the party and 7 or 8 deer were shot . . . all members of the party returned home safely.

Jefferson Community Club And School Bazaar Over The Top Bright Oasis Despite The Storm

The weather changed with a vengeance a few hours before the opening of the Jefferson School Community Club Bazaar last Saturday but despite the many unforeseen inconveniences, disruption of telephone service in the district, driveways and sidewalks two- and three feet deep in snow, the "show" went on as scheduled.
 Many of the people arrived on foot. Two of the ladies, well-laden with contributions for the home-baking table met the occasion practically, when transportation by car was impossible. By loading everything onto a toboggan and with the help of children living nearby they brought their wares to the bazaar.

A special word of thanks must go to Ross Kerwin who shovelled snow for hours, keeping the drive way and parking area at the school clear as possible. Earlier in the day the 1st Jefferson Scout Troop also shovelled snow. John Passmore and J. Fletcher also lent their help. Mr. Passmore was kept busy picking up late items for those who were themselves snowbound and Mr. Fletcher took over the last-minute selling of the lucky-draw tickets.

Thanks to Douglas Dibb, Mrs. Arthur Gibson was finally rescued from a snow-drift where her car was marooned, and Mrs. Gibson arrived at the school shortly after 2:30 to officially declare the bazaar open.
 Introducing Mrs. R. R. Thel-fall, bazaar convener and presenter of a bouquet of "mums" by Mrs. Stan Leno, assistant convener, Mrs. Gibson who was the first president of Jefferson School Community Club when it was originated two years ago, spoke of the changes that have come about in this community during the past few years. She commented on the vast change in population in the area; the tripling of the school-attendance; the community spirit of good will and fellowship that has arisen in the district because "good friends meet together" at the activities sponsored by the J.S.C.C. Mrs. Gibson closed her talk by declaring the bazaar with all its varied and novel displays officially open.

Mrs. Thel-fall introduced Mrs. Jack Barry, wife of the club president, to those present as well as Mrs. Carson Whalen, wife of the vice-president; Mrs. Jack Hall, secretary; Mrs. E. A. Terry, treasurer and thanked them and Mrs. H. G. Robertson, publicity convener for their co-operation and good work.
 It will be sometime yet before the final results of the day can be tallied but our readers will be interested to know that Saturday's figure was over $300, beating last year's bazaar proceeds by about $30.

The home baking table, convener by Mrs. G. Neill and Mrs. W. Hall was completely sold out as was the Fish Pond convener by Mrs. Ross Kerwin.
 An innovation, the Table of Ideas, was both practical and novel and the conveners, Mrs. Otto Pick and Mrs. Broadhurst were very pleased with the turnover of the carpentry sets, pocket aprons complete with crayons for the young fry and inexpensive hasty notes and note pads sold in a package.
 The work done by the Jefferson school children was excellent. Lapel pins, stuffed animals, gaily striped balls, bouquets of twigs and milkweed painted in gay colors, list only a few of the features which were carefully and artistically done, and sold very well indeed. Mrs. Carson Whalen took charge of this table in the absence of Miss Audrey Leary and Miss M. Cressy, who like many others arrived late due to the storm.
 The doll table, convener by Mrs. J. Fletcher and Mrs. W. Anderson drew young and old alike. We predict there will be many "dressed" dolls this Christmas.

Mrs. D. E. Sprague and Mrs. F. Chevris convener the White Elephant table which did a very popular business. Mrs. John Passmore who was also a convener for this display was absent because she unfortunately came down with the flu shortly before the bazaar.
 Mrs. Thos. Dick, convener of the Fruit and Vegetable table did a rushing business in spite of the fact that many contributions were also snowbound.

Miss Ella Gamble and Mrs. E. L. Clubine had a lovely display at their Plant Table, many of the plants were on the verge of bursting into flower and here again there was a great rush of business.
 The knitting, Sewing and Fancy Work table, convener by Mrs. Darrell Goulding, Mrs. Edwin Gamble and Mrs. Ernie Hall was a hive of industry as aprons of every shape, size, color and design went swiftly along with patterned mittens, bedroom slippers (made and donated by the children of the Orange Home) and countless other items. Even the lowly pot holders and oven mitts made in such novel and interesting patterns had a special place. The Christmas T-shirts, convener by Mrs. Dickson Miller, was a success. Here one saw ingen-
