Build a better mousetrap, they say ,and the world will . . well you know how it goes.

Besides mousetraps, people have been trying to build better motor cars since the day they were invented. Better accessories too, and some of them have been used and some have been nretty waird.

I've saved the stories of a few over the years. In 1952, for instance, a man in Miami, Florida, got a patent on a dandy idea for a windshield wiper. His windshield (on paper) rolled back and forth into the top of the car, cleaning itself by its own motion.

Inventions to cut down skidding have been another favorite of the amateur engineers, the most common idea being to sprinkle sand in front of the rear wheels.

The first invention of this kind was put on paper well before 1915, and well before snow tires and other special treads were developed. The latest device like this was patented in March of 1954. At least they keep on trying (and they don't seem to mind how much all that sand would weight.)

spring between the windshield and the driver as soon as he had a collision. (A safety belt would be a lot simpler and safer.) Out of a host of inventions, some of them sound and some of them zany, have come today's improved cars, accessories and optional equipment. The thing that surprises so many people is that a lot of this safety and luxury equipment is on cars a few years old, cars that won't break your budget

Another patent was issued for a mechanism that would to buy. A quality used car, serviced by us all its life, is certainly a good buy these days. I have listed below just a few of the quality used cars on our lot. These cars carry a written guarantee for 30 days and are priced to meet all competition. We feel that the people presently driving used cars from our establishment are our best medium of advertising.

When one of the family calls you to the phone and whispers, "I think it's business," it reminds you how important calls of that kind are, even at home. You don't have to upset your evening's plans, because your telephone gets things done quickly, nearby or far away.

Whether it's a matter of sales, or service, whether it's early evening or late at night, you can depend on your telephone. Just give it a thought next time one of the family says, "It's for you, Dad!"
