Would you lend families like this $190,000,000?

Their weekly take-home pay is about $60. Like millions of others, they do not have assets to tide them over a money emergency. Yet last year Household Finance Corporation of Canada lent over $190,000,000 to families like this.

We provide small sums of money for emergencies and opportunities and require no bankable security. Often Household Finance and other consumer finance companies are the average family's only source of prompt money help. Today more families borrow from consumer finance companies than from all other forms of consumer credit companies combined.

In 1939, HFC operated 15 branch offices, serving 57,800 customers. During 1954, over 607,000 customers borrowed from over 170 offices. Today Household Finance, and the consumer loan industry, offer the best solution to the money problems of the average family.
