Prominent Canadian Artist

HENRY W. SMITH
by: Mona Robertson

Richmond Hill extends a welcome to a prominent Canadian artist and his wife who recently came to this town to live. They are Henry and Marie Smith, both artists in their own line.

Henry W. Smith was born in Hamilton and says he has been painting pictures ever since he was old enough to hold a paint brush. A student with Hortense Gordon during the early years of his career, Mr. Smith is employed as an industrial designer - and paints commissioned and free-lance pictures of great character and beauty in his spare time. Employed by a Hamilton firm as a designer for 17 years, Mr. Smith moved to Richmond Hill after receiving the offer of a better position with Amalgamated Electric, Toronto.

Ian Vorres, writing in the Hamilton Spectator on his departure from Hamilton said, "Mr. Smith has a unique capacity for capturing in his powerful watercolors the spirit of old homes and landmarks in and around Hamilton; he possesses not only the insight, but the sentimental attachment as well, of one who knows and loves his native city. He can therefore reveal with subtlety and delicacy the mood and character of any locality he depicts."

Recently "The Liberal" visited Mr. and Mrs. Smith in their new home on Lucas Street and saw many handsome examples of his work which has already won him a place in the National Gallery at Ottawa; a spot in an embassy overseas, selected for one of his watercolors by the Department of External Affairs; and he has won the award for the best watercolor by a Canadian artist, in the All Canadian Show held in London, Ontario.

Many of Henry Smith's portraits hang in the Art Gallery at Hamilton, the Hamilton Public Library and McMaster University, but they are also found in numerous homes across Canada.

It was at McMaster, when two Chinese students were in attendance, that the delicate touch Mr. Smith employs in even his most vital paintings was compared by these students to Chinese paintings, owing to their old-world charm and almost oriental delicacy of composition.

Mr. Smith says he is an "outdoor" painter. In fact, temperance is never considered by this artist who thinks nothing of donning a fur-lined parka, heavy snow boots and finely knit thin, woolen gloves - and sitting out in weather 10 degrees below zero, in order to capture "a thing of beauty" on his canvases.

Last summer he and his wife Marie vacationed in the Bad Lands of South Dakota, where he painted two pictures a day, completing a series of watercolors that bring the haunts of Zane Grey starkly and majestically to life for the viewer.

Previously Mr. Smith had caught the picturesque quality of Provincial Quebec, on canvases that radiate the romance of early Canadian history. Pennsylvania, with its primly beautiful countryside; Parry Sound and Muskoka scenes; and the cool staidness of the Laurentians have all been captured by this artist who is no less proficient in his painting of teeming city life.

Recently Mayor L. D. Jackson of Hamilton, commissioned Mr. Smith to paint a view of the City Hall, and also a scene from the Central Market as viewed from the mayor's window high above the street.

We had the pleasure of viewing the City Hall picture "in the making" and Mr. Smith told us this was the second time he had used this subject. The first painting was bought earlier this year, along with about two dozen others by art connoisseurs. Another commissioned painting we viewed showed the demolition of the old City Hall; a previous study of this work was used by the Smiths for their Christmas cards last year.

Marie Smith shares her husband's enthusiasm and interests, being an artist in oil-painting herself. Marie paints only commissioned portraits and is already hard at work on a portrait of a young local girl. However, she says she has just enough art work to keep her busy, along with managing their beautiful split-level home and seeing that her husband Henry has a relaxed atmosphere in which to pursue his painting career.

We hope Henry Smith will find many scenes of beauty and interest to paint in this new locale he and his wife have chosen to adopt - and if, some winter's morn, one spies an artist busy over an easel with the temperature soaring down, down the scale, don't worry, Henry Smith is used to such things, and you can bank on it the watercolors will respond to his masterful touch perfectly - since he tells us he uses a 50-50 mix of water and methyl-hydrate - just for this purpose.

Arbor Day
Last Friday was Arbor Day, and what memories it brings back! Feverish anxiety to get the school yard cleaned up, and then to go fishing! This past week in passing the school we noted great business with teacher and pupils; but a day or two later heard many regrets that the "swinging branches" on one of the trees had become a casualty of the day. Congratulations on his fourteenth birthday are in order for Albert Johnston.

Due possibly to anniversary services at Brown's Corners last Sunday, attendance in Headford Sunday school was rather low; but we are looking for much better things for next Sunday, which is Family Day. There will be a joint service, with the children taking a prominent part in the service. Parents who do not usually attend are asked to make a special effort to be present, so this can be a real Family Day. Children are asked to be in Sunday school by a quarter to ten, in order to get organized for their positions in the choir.

There was an enthusiastic if not large meeting of folk interested in the Vacation School in Headford Church on Monday evening. The project this year is to finance the sending of "Pictures of Jesus" throughout the world. Many plans were made and some details settled. The period of the school is from July 14 to 18. It was decided to hold the next executive meeting on Monday, June 2, at eight o'clock in Headford Church.

Lorraine Acreman, with other young local girls, was the guest on Tuesday at the Granite Club.

Headford W.A. will hold its Annual church service on Sunday eve, May 11, at 7:30 p.m., when the guest speaker will be Dr. Margaret Arkinsall, president of York Presbytery W.A. Special music will be by members of the choir of Victoria Park United Church, whose minister is Rev. Don Tansley.
