

Beverley Burr Dairy Princess

York County's dairy Princess was proclaimed at J. H. Crang's Glenville farms on Monday, August 4. She is Miss Beverley Burr of Gormley. Five contestants took part in the milking competition, which was held under ideal conditions, in the up to date, modern barns at Glenville. Miss Burr, who also won in 1957, is studying to be a home economist and this year will enter Ryerson Institute for a three year course. She lives at home and assists her father and is very interested in their Jersey herd.

York County's princess will now go on to compete for the Ontario Dairy Queen title at the C.N.E.

The competition is promoted by the dairy farmers of Ontario, the C.N.E. and, the Toronto Telegram. The local competition is operated by representatives of the local milk and cream producers organizations, assisted by the County Federation of Agriculture under the chairmanship of Ken Rogers of Queensville. The dairy farmers of York county provided the cash prizes to each contestant. Other contestants were: Ruth Miller, Carol Sedore, Barbara Leitch and Dona Sedore. Harry Ferguson, President of York County Federation made the presentation of a cheque, sash and corsage, and Pan American overnight bag to the Princess with best wishes for continued success.

PICKERING TOWNSHIP: A ratepayer from Dunbarton appeared before township council and asked if a 5% discount could be given for early tax payment. Township turned down the proposal because it would raise the tax rates.

PICKERING: An application to build summer cottage near Atha on lot 29, concession 8, by band-leader Art Hallman and two friends was turned down. They also intend to build a $10,000 swimming pool on the site.

NORTH YORK: North York Township council had 58 items on the main agenda of last week's council meeting. To make things worse the council had to contend with the 84 degree heat and the noise of the local construction.

Late Dr. A. Wallace

have come here today as his neighbours in this community. You knew him for what he was, his homeliness, his back fence chats — he was a sort of country squire and you may be sure he loved you all."

Known for his timely sense of fun and nonsense, Dr. Wallace was full of quips and jokes apropos of various situations and occasions, but his humour was kind and never held a trace of malice about it.

As editor of the publication, "Onward", Dr. Wallace prepared his work months in advance; when he appeared on television, viewers thought his program was spontaneous but this man who respected order and preparation had spent days and weeks in prayer, and thought out each step of any program he was about to undertake, so that he might present it faultless to his audience.

Looking to the closed casket that rested in the church where Dr. Wallace had so often preached, Dr. Dickinson said, "Hail, good Christian — and farewell."

Both Dr. Hunter and Dr. Dickinson consoled the late Dr. Wallace's surviving daughter, Kathleen (Mrs. William Cruickshank of Wingham) and referred with affection to his other daughter, Eleanor (Mrs. Cecil Heard), who predeceased him in 1948, and also mentioned his five grandchildren, Kathleen's two daughters, Julia and Jane, and Eleanor's three children, Douglas, Kathleen and Allan.

Following the service interment was held in Mount Pleasant cemetery, Toronto, the Rev. Douglas Davis, chairman of York Presbytery officiating. Honorary pallbearers were: Rev. A. Donald, M.C.; Rev. George Dorey, D.D.; Mr. Cyril Dyson; Rev. Lorne Pierce, D.D.; Rev. Harold Young, D.D.; and Rev. M. Jenkinson. Pallbearers were: Rev. Martin Jenkinson, King; Morley Kinnear, Norman Lund, Norman Payne, Percy Puterbaugh and Blake Yake, the latter five all members of the session of Maple United Church.

One of the quiet talks, "Between ourselves," written by Dr. Archer Wallace in November of 1956, under the title, "Face The Facts", follows, and speaks for the quiet Christian assurance this great man had for his God and Saviour.

Face The Facts
Some years ago, a friend of mine underwent a medical examination and on his return home said to his wife: "I don't want you to worry and I do not intend to do so myself. I have cancer but we will do our best and leave the rest with God." He did that thing, never even speaking of the shadow over his life, but cheerfully carrying on for over four years when his time on earth was done and he was laid to rest. He faced the facts and his widow told me that he was keenly interested in everyday living. I did not know at the time that he had cancer and in the local church I have seen him discuss the merest details of affairs with skill and great tolerance.

Students of history know that Queen Elizabeth, the First, would not allow those around her to speak of advancing years, nor would she look into a mirror which revealed her wrinkles; the proud arrogant queen refused to face the truth.

In the days of Nehemiah, he was apprehensive when he had to enter the King's presence with a sad countenance and when he did so was reprimanded by the King who demanded an explanation. But there are facts of life that to ignore is sheer folly. I do not mean that we should cease to take a lively interest in life but to take a superficial view of the facts is to live in a fool's paradise. Like my friend we must accept the will of God. Knowing as Socrates said to his judges, "no evil thing can befall a good man."

The great Charles Darwin repudiated the thought of annihilation and said, "Believing as I do that man will be a far more perfect creature than he is now, I believe that in the future, he will continue his spiritual progress and to this faith, I heartily subscribe." I have before me a list of wise and useful men, many of whom died in early life, but their faith like that of Darwin's, gave them strength and they believed that life would be vastly better, further on.

When Sir Walter Scott knew that the end of his life was near, he asked to be taken once again over the grounds at Abbotsford. "I have seen many beautiful places," he said, "but nothing to compare to my beautiful home." Then to his son-in-law, Lockhart, he asked that his favourite book be read; "Which book?" asked Lockhart. Sir Walter said: "There is only one book now, read to me the words of Jesus in John 14th. 'Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid, in my Father's house are many mansions.'"

There is much to bewilder us in this life, a great deal we cannot understand, but we all know in our hearts that we can await our Father's loving care and mercy. No doubt many of our fears will have been fruitless and unnecessary. When Charles Kingsley was dying, he said, "How beautiful God is." Sir Walter Scott's last words to young Lockhart were: "Be a good man, be a religious man, when you come to lie here as I do, nothing else will give you comfort."

Plan Panel Quiz Holy Name Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church will be held at Our Lady of Fatima School at 8 p.m. on Monday, August 11. Feature of the evening will consist of a "Panel Quiz". The members of the parish are invited to attend and bring along any questions they may have pertaining to religious subjects.

This can't help but be a very interesting and informative meeting if a good barrage of both general and specific questions are fired at the panel of "experts". The panel will be comprised of members of the Holy Name Society.

To round out the evening the programme committee has arranged for an address on a timely topic.

Princess Margaret Thruway In Honor Of H.R.H.

Chairman Hugh Brennan, of the Planning Board for Markham Township, suggested that the city of Toronto would gain nation-wide acclaim if the Toronto Expressway were named after Princess Margaret.

Suggestions have been made that the expressway be named after Metro Chairman Fred Gardiner, who has contributed much toward the creation of a better Toronto and Mr. Brennan fully acknowledges Mr. Gardiner's valuable efforts but he asks, "Would not the public interest be greater if the Queen Elizabeth Highway were continued through the city with 'The Princess Margaret Thruway'?"

NEWMARKET: By a 4-2 vote council has decided to hire another industrial commissioner to replace Mr. Robert Bullock who recently resigned. Mr. Bullock left to take up a new position in Ottawa.

EAST GWILLIMBURY TWP.: Russel Smith, 27, is the new chief of police in East Gwillimbury Township. He succeeds Joseph Jardine.

QUEENSVILLE: Based on present Bell planning, dial telephone service will be inaugurated in Queensville next summer.

NEWMARKET: The advanced sale of copies of the History of Newmarket plus contributions by interested persons are the objectives of a Charter Trust Committee set up recently in Newmarket. A $5.00 deposit will ensure anyone of a copy of the book when it is published.

NORTH YORK: At a council meeting held last week, North York Council decided that it would send to New Toronto council a copy of the resolution made on July 14, which states that North York is in favour of the proposed new subway.

NEWMARKET: Gerry Donnelly and John Flanagan, both 21 of Toronto were given jail terms for resisting arrest and fined $100 or 10 days for creating a disturbance during a fracas at a Jackson's Point dance hall July 26. Donnelly got 30 days in jail and Flanagan was jailed for three months.

Grand Opening Furniture Shoppe Richmond Heights

Friday, August 8th, marks the "Grand Opening" of The Furniture Shoppe, located at 44 Leventdale Road, in the rapidly expanding Richmond Heights Shopping Plaza.

This store stocks a variety of household furnishings, featuring chesterfields, easy chairs, rugs, floor coverings and lamps.

The owners Mr. Sydney Saifert and Mr. Lewis Magalmick, having been engaged for many years in every phase of the manufacture and repair of chesterfields, offer expert service in the recovering and repair of chesterfields. They also measure and lay broadloom wall-to-wall carpet, and make drapes to specifications.

The exclusive representation of the "Swing King" reclining chair for this area is also held by this store. Optional, this make of chair also features a vibrator massage unit, which in addition to the chair being restful and relaxing, the manufacturers claim that it "gives your heart and nerves a rest".

Free gifts, and a lucky draw for a Swing King reclining chair, end tables, and lamps will also feature the grand opening of The Furniture Shoppe.
