Mrs. M. Stapley attended the ploughing match at Chrysler south of Ottawa, on Thursday, and enjoyed many of the old-time exhibits on view. Among them was an oldtime threshing machine in use in 1877. It was in operation for this exhibit, with the farmer's wife handing down the sheaves to her husband, who fed them into the machine which was operated by a team of horses on a treadmill. The farmer had some

French tobacco fastened on his coat lapel, from which he took some as needed to chew. This was to help to keep his throat cleared of the chaf and dust, as he spit it out.

Another exhibit was an early butter-maker which was similar in power to a treadmill. The power in this case was the farm dog, who frequently vanished just when he was needed.

A real "Believe-it-or-not" exhibition was that of white leg-horn hens laying eggs with yolks of different colours. As the eggs were laid they were broken into dishes right before the spectators, and revealed a variety of coloured yolks, which were obtained, they were told, by adding vegetable dyes to their feed.

Accompanying Miss Lever as far as Cookstown Miss E. Francis spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher, formerly of Richvale.

Richvale Fire Hall was officially opened on Saturday by the Chairman of the Vaughan Fire and Police Commission, Jesse Bryson. A departure from regular procedure was taken by Chairman Bryson when he cut the ribbon with a fireman's axe. Afterwards the Maple Fire Brigade, trim in their navy blue dress uniforms and hats, put on a ladder demonstration, and, inviting everyone into the Fire Hall, answered questions. The children thoroughly enjoyed the whole affair, and swarming all over, made themselves familiar with the handsome fire truck.

Last week 2nd Richvale Girl Guides heard Miss Ivy Pantlin, former Guider in England and now active in the Junior Audubon Society, give a talk illustrated with film, on Nature activities and conservation, at their Tuesday night meeting. This week Margo Martin was presented with her First Class Pin and Badge, and Caroline Miller and Lona Martin received their Swimmers' badges. These the girls passed at their Girl Guide Camp this past summer.
