

Carols and Candlelight Theme

Awards Presented At Horticultural Christmas Party

"Carols and Candle light" was the theme of the annual Christmas party of the Richmond Hill Horticultural Society last Thursday and the Lions Hall was gallantly bequeathed.

The president, Mr. W. J. Large welcomed the members and guests. All enjoyed singing the ever loved carols under the leadership of Mr. Richard Edmunds, who later presented his York Chorallers in a delightful program with soloists Mary Orr and Margaret Rumney, accompanist Phyllis Andrew.

The Christmas message was delivered by Rev. R. W. Irvin who spoke on "The Three Ms of Christmas," the Miracle, the Meaning and the Message.

Mr. R. D. Little presented the awards to those members who had obtained the highest aggregate throughout the year in the various exhibition classes. The winner in the turkey draw was Mrs. W. A. Wright.

The evening concluded with the serving of coffee and Christmas cake, providing an opportunity to greet old friends and to make new ones and to wish all, "A Merry Christmas."

The following list of prizes was awarded:

The T. Eaton Co. Trophy for the highest aggregate points in the specimen classes awarded to Mrs. James Grainger.

The Society prize to Mr. R. D. Little.

Prize donated by Mrs. George Barker, awarded to Mrs. B. L. Anderson.

A special award was made to Mr. G. F. Longworth for obtaining all firsts in one show.

Pegasus Productions Is New R. Hill Industry

George White, a former Richmond Hill resident, has brought his company, Pegasus Productions into our town as one of our new industries.

With his partners, brother Arthur and Claude Watt, Mr. White has taken premises at 45 Industrial Road at the north end of town. There, the three men, along with occasional help, continue to design and produce sales promotion devices such as signs, models and photographs.

The camera equipment in the plant is capable of producing an enlargement ten feet high and twenty-five feet wide, as well as the usual tone and half-tone prints.

Other equipment will produce silk screen signs and display cards. Metal working equipment is used to manufacture large and small letters from aluminum and steel.

The company did all the work you may have seen at the site of the new O'Keefe auditorium at the foot of Yonge Street in Toronto. They made the signs, built the models and designed the artwork. Another project was the Newtonbrook apartment development on Yonge Street north of Willowdale. They made the sign you see over the front entrance canopy.

Though in business since October of 1956, the company was re-organized some seven months ago, resulting in this major expansion.

When "The Liberal" went to the plant for this story, Mr. White was a little embarrassed because his plant, which manufactures signs and advertising devices, has no sign of its own over the door as yet. "That will be rectified soon," he said.
