King City Trustees' Chairman Donald Findlay, Q.C., said full details of the altered agreement would be made shortly, as soon as township council has had si-milar discussions with Trustees of King's other two police villages, Nobleton and Schomberg. Mr. Findlay termed the meeting, called by township, an "am-icable" one, during which village and township relationships were frankly discussed. King City's fee to township and the extent to which the village is entitled to township's services are affected by the arrangement. Elected representatives and ratepayers have long felt the fiscal agreement needed "overhauling" to bring it in line with township's growth since the 1934 understanding was put into prac-
