Nature Notes

By Richmond Hill Naturalists | Radforth was introduced by Mrs. "The Importance of the Muskeg Canadians" was the subject of by Mr. C. R. Tilt, president of to Canadians" was the subject of an interesting address given by Dr. Norman W. Radforth of Mc Master University last Friday night to the members of the Richmond Hill Naturalists Club.

Canada, her future and her vast northland was the trend of hought which remained with us after hearing the speaker. The club heard first hand information from this well known biologist who has spent a good deal of time on problems of research on muskeg. Dr. Radforth visited the U.S.S.R. last year at which time Russian scientists of similar intrests took him to a location 100 miles north east of Leningrad to a small village built on the muskeg, using it for light, heat and chemical production. It would ap pear that U.S.S.R. has a good deal of advanced knowledge on this subject. The speaker did not suggest that Canada should imitate them, but certainly indicated that we should be interested in he 500,000 square miles of muskeg in our land.

interest. To begin with the aes-thetic value of the lichens, mosses, dwarf flowers, particularly of the orchids and heaths, lend enchantment to the land. Secondly there is the question of suitability of raising forage crops for ani-mals. Thirdly, will it be possible to drain this huge area? The depth of the muskeg varies from two inches to over 90 feet. consists of two covers, the upper living carpet while the lower is a fossilized substratum. This pre sents problems of drainage. Petroleum has been discovered to the north. Oil companies are faced with the difficulty of getting heavy machinery across this wet spongy country. "Before we can se vehicles we have to know in the most intimate way both the plants of today and those of thou-sands of years ago." Dr. Radforth said. Up until the present time only one university in Canada has been doing any research on these problems. It is possible that if we utilize this muskeg region that there could be a $300,000,000 gain to Canada.

Coloured slides of delicate flowers, topography and ecology of the land from aerial photographs, types and designs of heavy machinery for transportation supplemented the lecture. SELL, BUY, BARTER
