A "No Swimming Unless Supervised" sign was placed by the roped off pond, but many district boys and girls had gone in for a swim without having an older person with them.

Bert, who was not a strong swimmer, was playing in the pond, and then his companions noticed he was missing. Vaughan Fire Department was called to the scene and the pond had to be dragged to recover his body. Survived by two brothers and a sister, Bert had been a pupil of the George Bailey School.
