Prepare To Battle Grubs Save Your Green Lawn

If white grubs are busily ruing your lawn, there's good news from pest control authorities. White grubs can be successfully eliminated without too much trouble says a leading Canadian pest control firm. However if they have killed the grass you'll have to do some reseeded or resodding before you have an attractive lawn again. But once you've treated for white grubs you can be pretty sure of being free of them for some time.

Evidence of white grub in the lawn is indicated by patchy areas of dead, dying or stunted grass. Turn the sod over in one of these areas and you will find the white grubs without too much trouble. They are buff or white in colour and are normally seen in semi-curved, half-moon position, generally three-quarters to one and a quarter inch in length.

Timing is one of the most important factors in getting rid of white grubs. In the southern sections of York county right now is one of the best times to spray your lawn to kill the adult June beetle. By so doing, you will avoid excessive grub damage in 1960. Only during the first two years of the life cycle are positive results obtained by chemical treatments of the lawn.

In this vicinity the June beetles are emerging from the soil and staging their major flight now, the period when treatment shows best results.

For treating the lawn, 65.5 per cent Chlordane Emulsion is recommended. It is mixed with water and applied either with a watering can or with a compression garden sprayer. The lawn should be thoroughly soaked with a garden hose after the Chlordane is applied.

When the June beetles emerge from the soil, they fly in huge numbers, taking to the air at dusk, feeding and mating on the foliage of trees and shrubs. They seek out grassy places where the females burrow into the soil to lay their eggs. The eggs hatch in 30 days and the young grubs feed on decaying vegetable matter and small roots of living plants, causing only minor damage.

The following year (1960 in this area) the grubs will come up to the soil sub-surface and feed ravenously during the whole of the growing season on the roots of plants. They do nearly all their damage during this period in their life cycle which is why it is preferable to get rid of them in the first year of their cycle. The grubs grow at a rapid rate and attain the large mouth parts with which they cause maximum damage to grass roots. During this period of the life cycle the application of 65.5 per cent Chlordane should be made from April to July.

In the third year of the life cycle the application of an insecticide is ineffective. At this stage the grubs come up in the Spring and feed sparingly for a short time. After growth is fairly complete the grubs store up a large quantity of fat which is used largely in the third year to complete internal development from large grub to beetle. For several weeks before pupation in the third year the grubs are in the prepupal stage in the pupal cell, flabby and in a state of complete quiescence.

In the pupal stage the white grub is without mouth parts and is incapable of any movement. After development to the adult or beetle stage, the June beetle remains in the subsoil until the following Spring when in late May or early June, it emerges for its major flight.

Despite The Nursing Shortage Standards Remain On High Level

Registration of nurses is a fascinating story. It dates from the turn of the century and was the result of the persistent efforts of the original Graduate Nurses' Association of Ontario. During the years prior to 1922, when a Nurses' Registration Act was secured, the Association was concerned, to a great extent, with the long struggle for nurse registration. Although first in Canada to seek registration, the nurses in Ontario were the last to secure it. In 1925 the name was changed to the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

A new Nurses' Registration Act was passed in 1951. It represents a milestone in the history of nursing in our province. It is the first legislation in Ontario in which a government has vested in a profession such a measure of control over its own affairs.

Under the 1951 legislation, the R.N.A.O. became responsible for setting admission requirements to training schools; for the basic curriculum to be taught in schools; and for the examination of applicants for registration.

R.N.A.O. members belong to the Dominion-wide Canadian Nurses' Association and the world-wide International Council of Nurses.

Problems of Present Day Nursing In spite of increasing shortages of nursing personnel, nursing standards, unlike those of other professions, have not been lowered.

The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario has done an excellent job in maintaining and raising standards of nursing but, because salaries do not compare favourably with those of other professions, the recruitment of student nurses has become an increasingly greater problem.

Nurses will soon be prevented by law from joining a labour union or going on strike. This legislation has already been recommended by the Select Committee on Labour Relations. It should be noted that the R.N.A.O. has always gone on record as being against nurses going on strike for any reason.

Membership in R.N.A.O. is voluntary and it is not a bargaining agent for nurses; they have no control over salaries or other working conditions, although a list of approved personnel policies is issued annually. Nurses are seldom given credit for past experience. Employer-participation hospital, medical or pension plans are the exception rather than the rule.

The R.N.A.O. has frequently expressed concern about the unqualified persons who render services to the sick, and feel that some control is necessary for the protection of the public; therefore they are seeking a Nurse Practice Act.

What About The Future?

The R.N.A.O. looks to —

- (1) The expansion of nursing interests toward the ever present objective of well qualified nurses, to insure good nursing service in Ontario.
- (2) A comprehensive public relations program to improve communication with our members and our public.
- (3) A licensing Act to insure that all who nurse the sick for hire will effectively meet the increasing needs for good nursing service in Ontario.
- (4) We hope that all employers of Registered Nurses in Ontario will accept and put into effect the salaries and working conditions by the R.N.A.O.

We hope that, you the public whom we are dedicated to serve, will better understand our problems and join us in solving them.

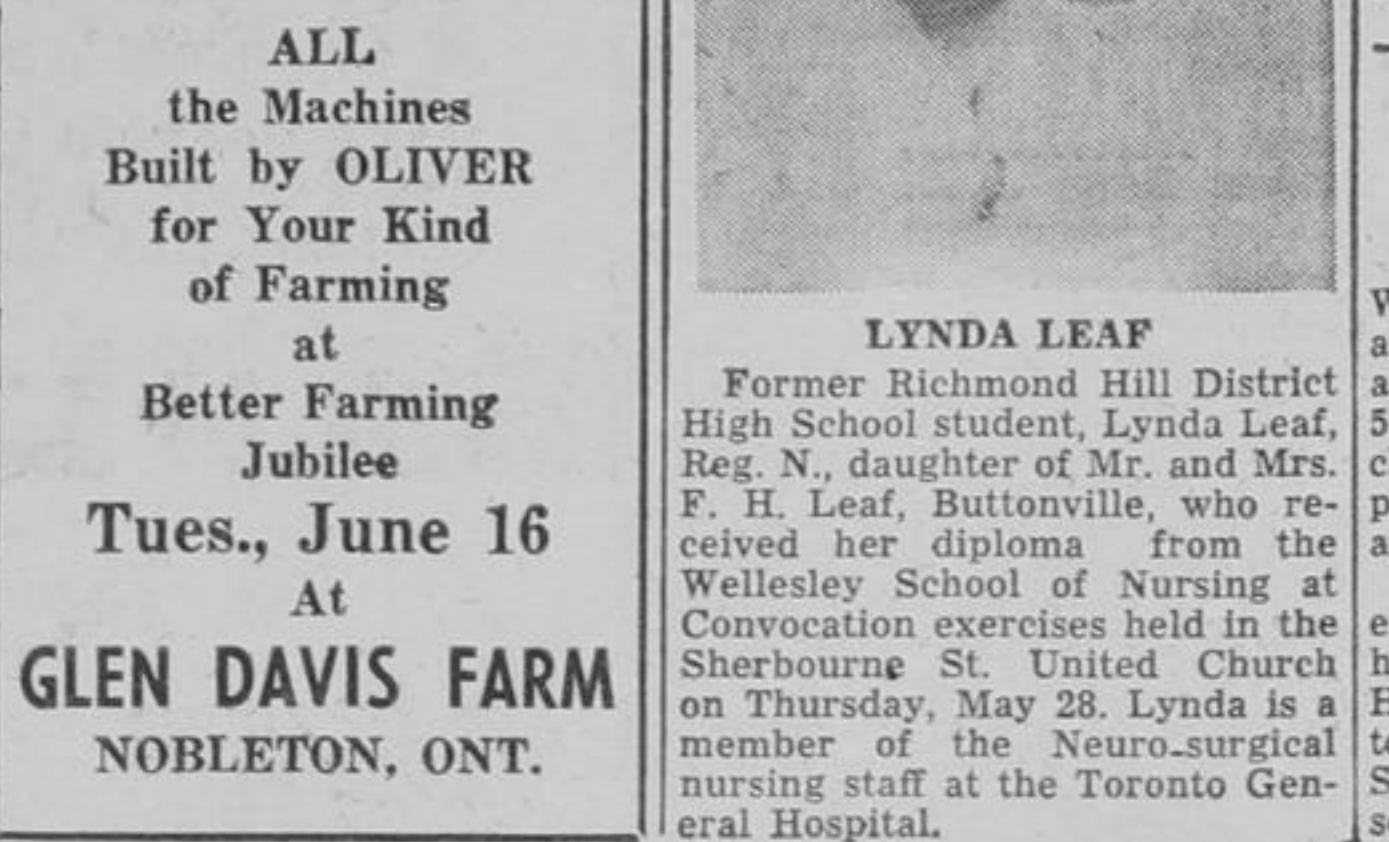

Record Crowds At Pincrest Races

Stock car racing is becoming more popular every year and proof can be found at Pincrest Speedway on No. 7 Highway every Saturday night. More and more race fans each week pack the stand for the regular 11 events. Speaking to race fans many reasons are given for the renewed interest in the large field of cars (over 70 every race night), close competition, the many pile-ups, the very popular ladies' race, and the high rate of speed the stock cars attain with the powerful motors. Another popular reason, the low cost, adults are only $1.00 and children free under 12. It makes stock car racing an ideal family sport, appealing to all ages.

Keen competition for the past seven years can be proven by looking at the records as no driver has won the Canadian championship more than once and so far this season there has been a different feature winner each week, keeping the Watson's point fund a tight battle.

The jalopies have grown as the jalopy drivers are mostly the younger set and what they lack in skill they make up in courage. The large field plus the "take a chance" attitude has kept fans happy with the many pile-ups. The jalopies give new drivers a chance to gain experience without the cost of the stock cars, and many drive a year then move up to the regular stock cars.

School News
On Wednesday morning, May 27, 1959, the pupils of the kindergarten and grades 1-3 assembled in the auditorium to watch a puppet show entitled "The Faithful Nurse." This show was presented by the Milk Foundation of Toronto.

The story was that of a lonely, sick Princess Marianna, only child of a French King and Queen deprived of friends and good nourishing food, until a country peasant girl, Suzette, became her personal nurse. Realizing Marianna needed exercise, friends of her own age group, fresh air and sunshine, plus good nourishing food, Suzette dared to suggest to the Queen that Marianna would improve physically and mentally if she were allowed to visit her farm. After some consideration, permission was granted.

In the fresh air and sunshine of the country, playing with friends her own age and a kitten named Rascal, doing exercises with a special friend Jan, Marianna's health improved greatly. Her parents were delighted with her appearance, vigor and vitality. They promised to permit Marianna's friends to come to the palace to play with her.

The show was appreciated by both pupils and teachers. Miss O'Neill ably expressed our thanks to the sponsors.

After the pupils of grades 1 to grade 3 left the auditorium, the pupils and teachers of grades 4-6 assembled for the puppet show, "Northern Adventure." This fascinating puppet show with Miss Mansell doing the speaking part captivated the pupils' attention from the beginning to the end.

Miss Cowden graciously thanked Miss Mansell and Mrs. Reichert for bringing to us one of the most impressive and educational programs we have ever had.
