

News of the World in Pictures

STUDENT BODY BUILDERS—Putting on a mass gymnastic show, high school students perform before a throng in Tokyo's Athletic stadium.

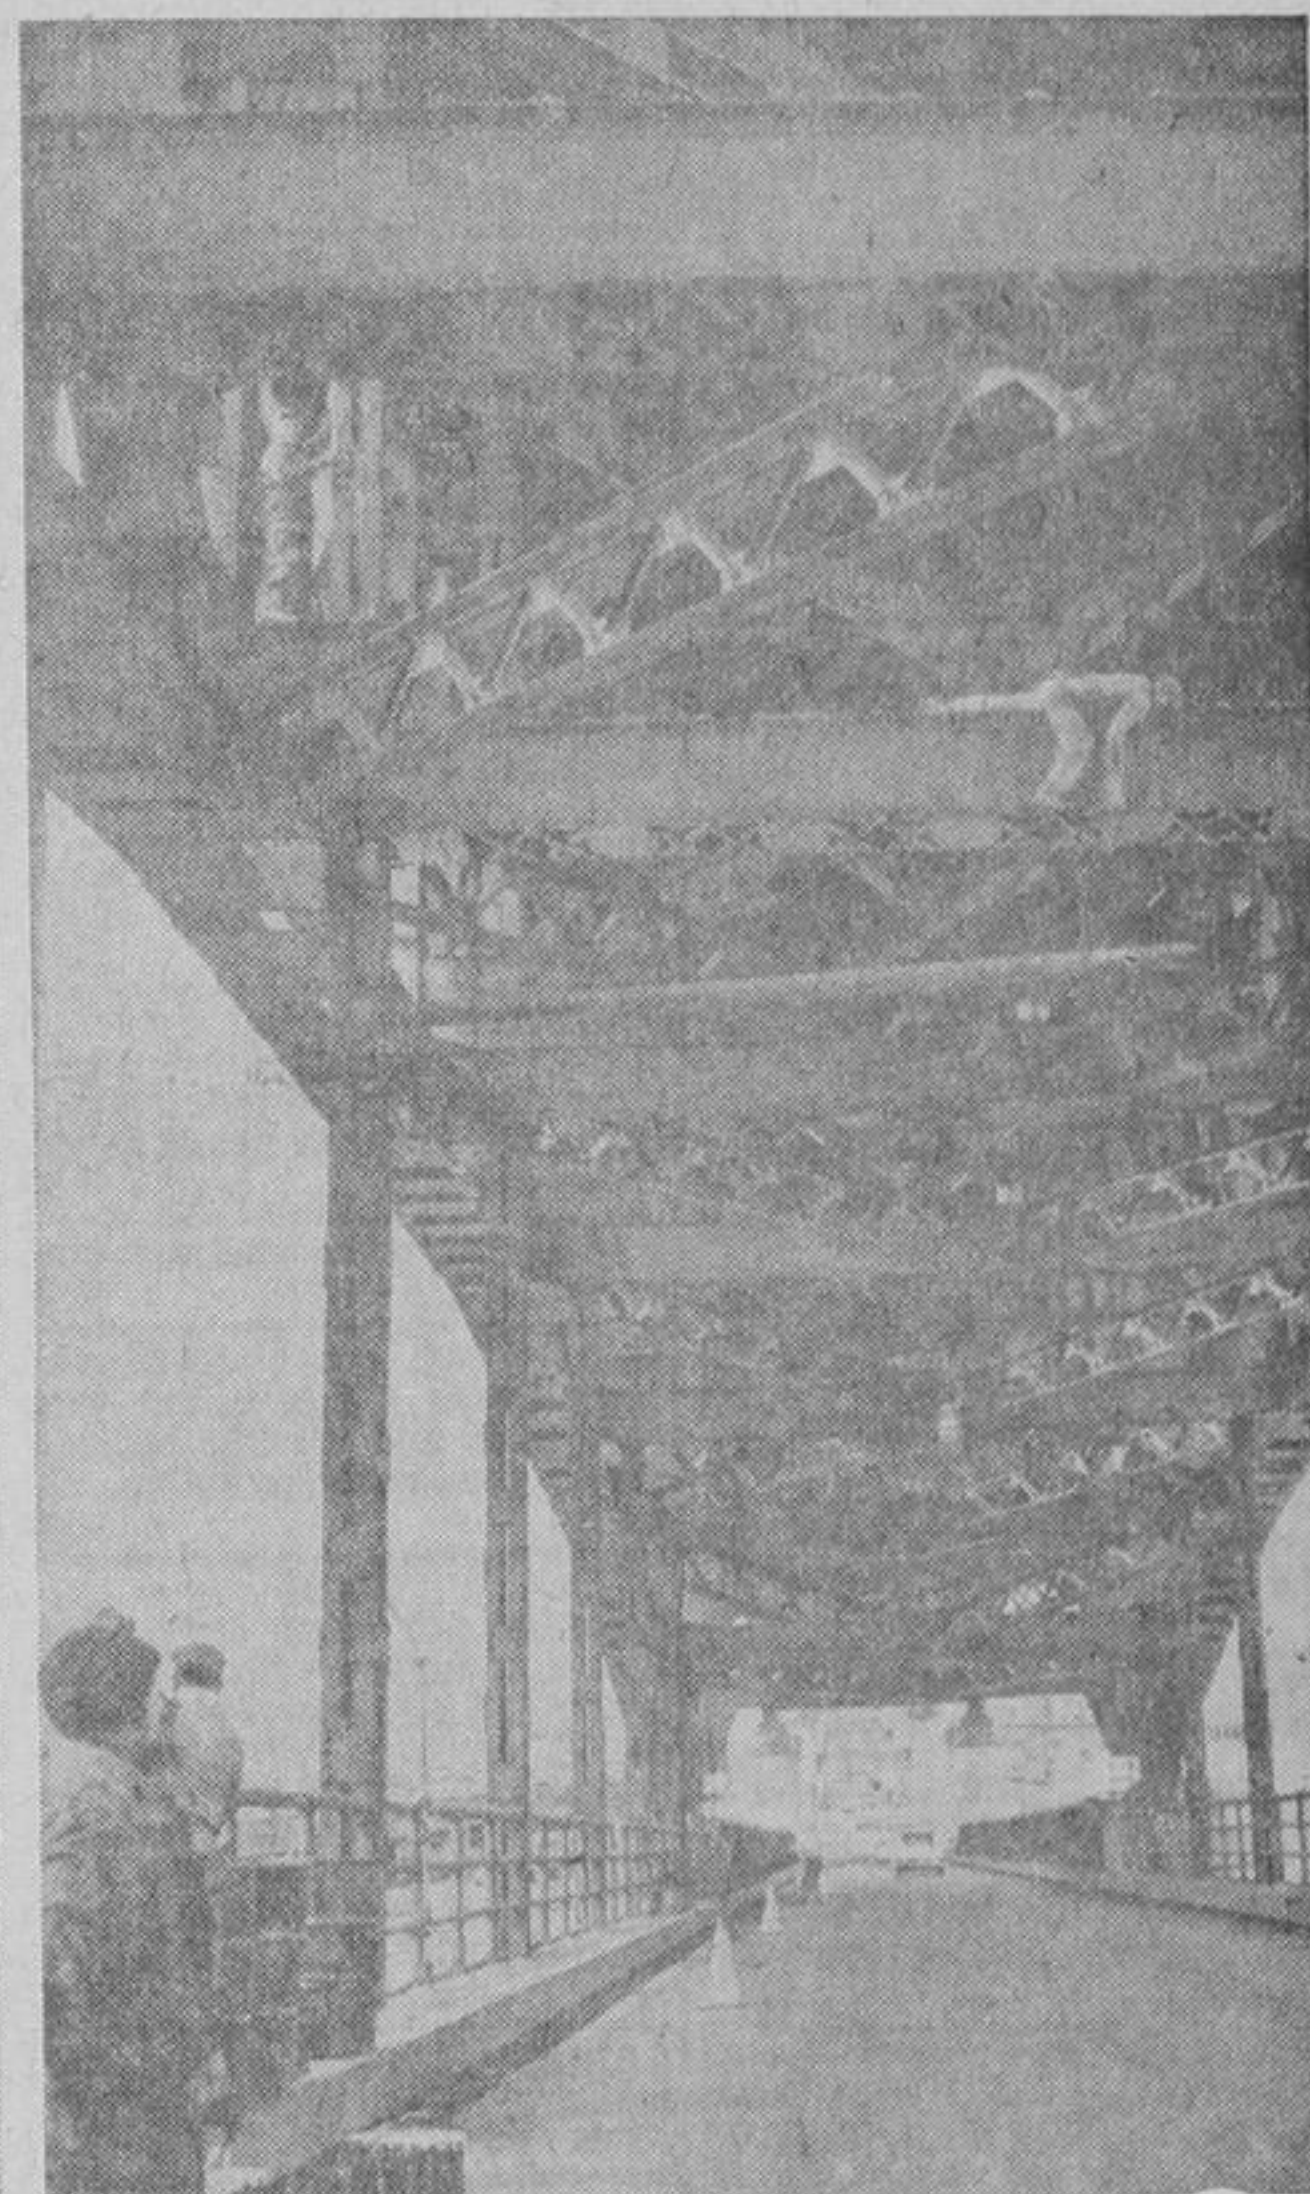

FOR SOVIET SWIMMERS—What the Russians say is the biggest swimming pool in Europe is taking shape in the Kropotkin section of Moscow. Area of the giant Kropotkin pool is three acres.

IN ORBIT—Heavenly Patti O'Quinn tries to look astronomical with a telescope after becoming "Miss Outer Space" in Palm Springs, California.

THE ORIENT IN THE WEST—One of the famous sights of the resort of Brighton, in England, is the many-domed oriental tower built by luxury-loving prince regent in the early 19th century. A tourist attraction, it's known as the Pavilion.

STEADY HANDS — AND FEET—That's what it takes for a painter on an overhead girder of the Pulaski skyway, over Hackensack and Passaic rivers between Jersey City and Newark, N.J.

FATHER 'PINES' FOR DEAD SON

The tree hangs over the sidewalk in front of house.

Hinke examines the thick ivy branches surrounding tree.

RICHARD HINKE, 75, remembers his dead son every time he looks at the front yard of his home in Berlin, Germany. There stands an ivy-covered tree that serves as a memorial to his son, Richard, who died during World War II. Back in 1913, Hinke gave his son three ivy seedlings to plant near the tree. The pine tree is now almost completely covered over by ivy, but it still doesn't hide a father's longing for his dead son.

DEADLY SERIOUS ABOUT DERBIES—Perched in his coffin on wheels, Alberto Bentinaga is borne in triumph through the streets of Rome after winning an Italian version of soap box derby. The grim humor of the victory celebration is heightened by the casket with number of the city's biggest undertaking establishment.