Carrville School 100 Next Year

Carrville Public School which will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1960, has seen many changes since the school bell in the little bellied atop the schoolhouse first chimed out its summons to attend.
The one-room schoolhouse of today, with its insul-bric siding, its modern kitchen and teacher's room looks very different from the original building of logs, which we are told is incorporated in today's school.
And the old pot bellied stove has long ago been replaced by an oil burner; the old wooden desks discarded for the latest style table-chair desks. Carrville Public School is a beautifully equipped little school, housing 22 pupils this year and taught by Mr. George Green.
To-day's school children enjoy hi-fi, with an excellent record collection; piano music and a wonderful up-to-date library.
The school, which stands on part of the Reaman farm, (which also had a log house for itinerant teachers in the early years of the school's history) has been attended by children of many pioneer families in that district. This fall a great, great, grandchild will study within its walls as his grandparents did before him. Among the former pupils were Judge Denton and his brother, who was a member of parliament for West York, also a Rev. Dr. Booth of Booth's Corners, known now as Boone's Corner at Carrville and Bathurst. The Booths once lived in the house now occupied by Mrs. A. Morris and Alan.
Mrs. Bert Middleton, correspondent for the Carrville Road community would like to hear from anyone who has any information about the past history of the school, and those who taught or were taught there.
