Richmond Hill Trustees Meet Four More Classrooms Will Be Added MacKillop School

Richmond Hill Public School Board decided on Thursday evening at the regular meeting to ask the provincial Department of Education approval to add four classrooms and an all purpose room to the MacKillop Public School.

Provided Department of Education approval is forthcoming, the Building Committee was empowered to hire an architect.

The question of when and where to add classrooms has occupied a large portion of board deliberations for some time. A report from the Planning Committee (Trustee Joseph Rabinowitch, Chairman) was tabled on Thursday evening. It indicated 10 more classrooms are required for September 1960. MacKillop addition will provide the two definitely needed and two of the additional six classrooms that will be needed by September 1961.

In addition to the classrooms and all purpose gym the tentative plans asked for approval will include a teachers' room, washrooms, and auxiliary storage space.

Trustee Cecil Williams said, "I hope this is the final addition to be put at MacKillop School." This will bring the classrooms there to twenty.

Trustee Rabinowitch expressed the opinion any new development to the north of the homes served by MacKillop School would be a new school.

Though an addition to the Crosby school is also foreseen by 1961 it was decided to wait until June for a better perspective on September enrollment figures before approaching the province for approval to build there.

According to figures obtained by the planning committee from the municipal offices there are 6,108 children in Richmond Hill. Their ages range from infancy to 15 years. These figures include both public and separate school supporters.

The committee did not feel in the light of their study a further survey of the school population was necessary. It had been mentioned at an earlier meeting a new
