York County's Health Unit Planning School For Expectant Mothers

The first of a series of classes for expectant mothers will begin in York County within a few weeks. Plans are being made by the York County Health Unit with the assistance of the York County Hospital Medical Society, for the first of several courses, of nine evening classes each, with the first series to begin in Richmond Hill on Tuesday, April 12. Classes will be weekly over a period of nine weeks for each course.

The health unit's plan includes prenatal classes in other centres in the county. The second series to be held in Newmarket begins on Wednesday, May 4. Expectant mothers who register for the classes must have their family physician's approval and will be given their third month of pregnancy. Group instruction must be given by health unit staff on a number of subjects including the development of a baby, good nutrition for the baby and the family, care of the baby, hygiene of pregnancy, breast feeding, bathing the baby, the mechanics of labour and other subjects which will help the mother through her pregnancy and later at home.

The plan includes a tour of the obstetrical department of the hospital to familiarize the expectant mother with the hospital routines. Films are also being made for instruction of the prospective fathers in the many things which will help them in their new and important role in the household.

The aim of the prenatal classes is to complement the medical supervision given by the family physician, and is not intended to replace the family doctor. In fact, it is required that patients attending the course be under the care of a family physician.

No fee will be charged. In order to make attendance easier for young mothers with small families, the classes will be held in the evenings from 7.30 to 9 p.m. at the local office of the York County Health Unit.

Forage Crops Featured York County Seed Fair

Entries at the YORK COUNTY SEED FAIR at Newmarket, were indicative of the increasing importance of forage crops on York County farms. Forty-eight exhibits of hay and twelve of corn silage nearly stole the show from the regular classes of grain, turnips and potatoes.

Donald Bagg's entry of first-cut legume hay took the Hay Championship while the winners in the six different classes were Shur-Gain Farms, Maple; Jim Morrison, Queensville; Eugene Lemon, Stouffville; Frank Marritt, Keswick; George Bannon, Queensville; and R. J. Darlington, Maple. Top entry in the corn silage class was shown by W. G. Ness of Aurora.

Alex Davidson of Stouffville had first prize entries in both the wheat and Rodney oat classes. Eugene Lemon exhibited the top barley and the class for Gary Oats was won by Russell Boynton of Woodbridge.

Trevor Watson of Stouffville and R. J. Darlington of Maple both won first prizes on their grain corn. In the table turnip section, Howard Donner of Stouffville and John Frisby of Markham shared the honours.

The winner of the 100 bushel Corn competition was declared at the Fair. Shur-Gain Farms with a yield of 99.1 bus. per acre topped the contest for 1959.

Ambrose Langley, Field Crops foreman at Shur-Gain, was presented with a wrist watch for his efforts by W. Dean, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of York County Council.

W. P. Watson, guest speaker for the day, thoroughly reviewed the future prospects for beef, hogs and dairy products in his talk. He cautioned beef producers against paying high prices for feeder cattle. Surpluses of both poultry and pork, as well as the high cattle population in the United States, were a threat to future prices for beef, according to Mr. Watson. He considered the market for dairy products and processors. He emphasized the importance of butter, as the outlet for over 40% of the milk produced, and stressed the need for stability in butter prices, to maintain stability in the whole dairy industry. Government price supports and producer control of marketing were both endorsed by Mr. Watson, as necessary to keep a fair share of the national income for farmers.

The Seed Fair was the 24th annual one. It was sponsored by the York County Soil & Crop Improvement Assoc. The programme for the day was in charge of Agricultural Representative Moff Cockburn, along with directors of the Association.

"Aims Of Education" Panel Discussion At Home & School Meet

A panel consisting of Mr. J. Peace, Vice Principal of Walter Scott School, Mrs. J. A. Price, Past President of Walter Scott Home & School Association, Mrs. I. Worrell, Public School Board and Mr. S. Rumble, High School Board discussed the "Aims of Education" at the Walter Scott Home & School Association Meeting. Mr. Arthur Spence, English teacher at Bathurst Heights Collegiate, was Moderator. The opinions expressed were those of the individual and not necessarily those of any School Board or other official body.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Spence said that the aims of the school have changed - it is only in the last 20 years that an attempt to teach all pupils has been made and one can still talk freely of the "aims of education." In leading the panel members through 6 or 7 specific questions the following opinions were expressed by Mr. Spence.

Regarding National Needs - Mr. Rumble felt that the country needs an educated population to defend themselves. It was unanimously agreed that the schools should not be subservient to the state as in Russia. The schools are changing just as democracy demands change. Mrs. Worrell said she would like to see a more uniform system of education among the provinces - at the present time there are many differences between the various Boards of Education.

Science and Religion became correlated when the theory of evolution was discussed bringing about the question of how to introduce the subject to students without counteracting the religious belief of earth's origin that is usually taught in the home. The general opinion of the panel was that both theories should be explained to the pupil without emphasis on either side and, as parents, they thought that what was taught in the home would prevail. In the case of no religion the child had a choice. Mr. Peace said he would like to teach all religions in the senior grades and Mrs. Worrell stated that if different religions were discussed in High School, students would learn to understand, and not just tolerate, the beliefs of others.

Should the school be expected to teach morals? Mrs. Worrell suggested that, without morals, it is sometimes "not that people can't live with themselves but that they can't live with their neighbours" and the school's job is to teach a child to find his place in society. Mrs. Price said that by the time a child has reached the age of 5 years he knows, basically, what is right and wrong and the school attempts to carry on.

Morality is a part of citizenship but the best citizen is not always the one who causes the least trouble. Good citizenship was considered to be many things - it was defined as national pride; do what you can do and do what you must do to the best of your ability; respect the laws of the community and take an interest in the community in which you live - one way is by voting, being members of Home & School

Associations etc., and "Love one another."

Should a trade be taught? Mr. Rumble said that a limited vocational course in the Basic Industrial Arts is available for the first two years of high school. Mr. Peace thought that in some cases more should be done in the way of introduction to a trade in the lower grades in order to equip the slow learner with a means to support himself rather than have a student leave public school at the age of sixteen and have to commit a misdemeanour in order to learn a trade suited to his capabilities, in Reform School.

In summing up, Mr. Spence said that although nothing had been settled the panel had certainly given the audience something to think about regarding the many "Aims of Education."

Everyone was invited to look over the model of the new High during the social period that followed. The Parent Attendance Cup was won by Mr. Matthews' class, Grade 6.

Insurance means PEACE OF MIND

For the Homeowner Today, insurance is making it possible for more Canadian families than ever before to enjoy the security of home ownership.

Without the protection of insurance against fire and other disasters, probably few of today's new homes could ever have been started. Knowledge that a home and its contents are adequately insured against sudden loss replaces worry with Peace of Mind.

Last year, the companies writing fire, automobile and casualty insurance paid out more than 500 Million Dollars in claims across Canada - real evidence that insurance indeed means Peace of Mind.
