

Reeve James Haggart is seen congratulating Miss Sue Jennings, lucky winner of a Proctor's Fine Diamond ring, which she won at the opening of the lovely new Proctor's store in Allencourt Shopping Centre, Richmond Hill, on Saturday. Standing at Miss Jenning's right is Mr. Hugh Proctor, vice-president of Proctor's Fine Diamonds.

The smart new store was officially opened on Friday, and features a most artistic and modern decor. The south wall of the spacious shop having various deep niches, each one painted in a different pastel shade and lined with a rich red velvet drape to complement vases of many different designs and workmanship. Throughout the shop are delightful displays of the very latest in costume jewellery, as well as transistor radios and fine china and cut glass - and of course a wide selection of Proctor's Fine Diamonds.

At the opening, which was attended during the two days, Friday and Saturday, by more than 600 persons, customers and visitors were invited to enter a contest guessing the price of a beautiful diamond ring. Miss Jennings' guess was the one closest to the price of the ring, which was worth $115.00, thereby winning herself a lovely diamond

Other opening features were free diamond inspection and cleaning, and free photos by the Polaroid Land Camera. 360 pictures were taken free of charge.

Yonge Street Merchants

The fact that the down-town business section of Richmond Hill can supply practically any character of goods of traffic congestion resulting and services is the theme of a business-building campaign launched this week by members of the Yonge Street Business and Professional Association.

Keenly aware of the fact that they must "tell to sell" in this highly competitive era, association members are us- closing the openings in the cening both the local press and radio to publicize the advan- trance and exit of the shopping tages of their area. Through both media they will stress centre, so that only northbound Birthday Notes that prices are right - that quality is high - that there cars may use the Yonge St. enis no need to fight traffic and pay heavy transportation costs to the city to shop satisfactorily.

Mr. E. H. Ensor wrote a poem for the occasion to the theme of the poem Hiawatha, Mr. Bob Boulden read this poem while the cubs acted their parts.

The Cubs were all dressed in Indian costumes. The costumes were made of gunny sacking fringed with coloured wool and designed with brilliant coloured cloth. Their head bands contained one bright feather. The medicine man was decked out in a beautiful large head piece with horns and many colourful feathers. He carried a peace pipe and a tomohawk. The music for this programme was composed by Mr. W. Smith, who also played the piano for the Cubs.

The same Indians came back as the 1st Jefferson Kitchen Band and again delighted their audience, this time with their "kitchen music." They played on anything that you could find in your own kitchen - cookie tins, wooden spoons, sauce pans, pop bottles, and table spoons were among the useful items.

An address was given by Mr. Frank Worth the Provincial Commissioner. The Leaping Wolf Certificates were then awarded. The Colour Party received their flags. God Save The Queen was played and the Colour Party
