T.B. Patch Tests
For Students

Students in Grades IX, XI and XIII, in North York schools will shortly be offered the opportunity of a skin test for tuberculosis. The test being used is known as a Vollmer Patch Test and is similar in appearance to an adhesive band-aid.

It is very important to find the people in this age group who, though not having tuberculosis, have been in contact with this disease and have become sensitive to the bacteria which cause tuberculosis. Positive reactors will be X-rayed.

104 Case Docket

Last Wednesday's post-Halloween court in Maple yielded an exceedingly heavy docket, with 104 cases listed. However, of these 56 were dog cases, with the majority of fines paid out of court. Twenty three persons were charged with speeding. Other offenses which, including those already mentioned in brief, were, improper turn, 1, failing to stop, 5, failing to signal, 1, game law infractions, 3, parking, 1, left of centre line, 1, careless driving, 1, making unnecessary noise, 1 and driving an unsafe vehicle, 1.

Dogs

Man's best friend was in the spotlight. Six persons, charged either with failure to buy a current dog license or having a dog at large, won the court's clemency.

Mr. George O'Neill of Richmond Hill had a no-dog-license charge dismissed when he proved he had gotten rid of his dog just before the May 1 tag-buying deadline.

Blames Egg Man

Mrs. Ray Cartier of Richmond Hill, up on a dog-at-large charge blamed her egg man and the allure of a neighbour's lady member of the canine breed for her dog's fall from grace. "We always keep him chained," she said, "but on September 28 I was working in the basement and the egg man came in to deposit an order and forgot to close the door behind." Further evidence indicated that the dog instantly took advantage of the open door policy and took off for an impromptu date with his girl friend. Magistrate P. Kelley agreed that circumstances over which mere humans do not have control would happen, and suspended the fine.

Blames Store

Mrs. H. Crooks, also of the Hill, blamed the stores in the Bayview Plaza where she shops for her dog's break for the open road. "The store doesn't allow dogs to come in," she explained, gently in need of canned fruits, juices, jams and jellies. Mrs. J. Barker and Mrs. A. Orr will provide the music. All the ladies in the community are invited to attend.

Wednesday "Doggy" Day For Court Magistrate

"and I left my dog at the door for just a minute or so while I returned for an item I had forgotten to purchase the first time in. When I got back outside he was gone." This explanation satisfied the court.

Blames Fate

Mrs. G. Chapman of Browndale Crescent, Richmond Hill, convinced the magistrate that she had a case. She said she left the dog at home while she took her child to hospital. The dog must have escaped in her absence, she contended. She admitted that she had been warned previously about her dog being at large but added it wasn't always the easiest thing in the world to keep one eye on the pooch and the other on her six children. Magistrate Kelley suspended the fine just as Chief R. P. Robbins, acting for the crown, got nimbly to his feet. "Yes?" inquired the cad kindly. "Too late. Your Worship!" exclaimed the chief and sat down. It was apparent that he had not agreed that the circumstances in this case were of a mitigating nature.

No Warning

Another Richmond Hill citizen, William Bell, who had failed to register his animal before the May 1st deadline, said, "Your Worship, I'm not against buying a tag. In fact, I have one now. I expected that, like last year, the police department would give me some advance warning in the matter." "Well, did or did you not buy the license in time?" asked the magistrate. "No, Sir," replied Bell, whereupon the dog owner checked the law. However, I'll suspend the fine."

Deceased

A. W. Campbell, Richmond Hill, had a similar charge dismissed when he pointed out that his dog had been destroyed last December. The crown said when the charge was laid, police had reason to believe the dog was still alive and with Campbell.
