Industrial Report
Councillor Tom Broadhurst said he thought it was time the members of council and people of the town had a complete report on the activities of the Industrial Commission. He moved that the Commission be asked for such a report within a month. "We have not had a report for a long time and silence might be construed by the public as meaning nothing was being done," said Councillor Broadhurst.

Council concurred in the suggestion. "I certainly am very interested to know what is going on in that department," said Councillor Al White. There doesn't seem to be much on the surface he added supporting the plea that full information be given to the people.

Procedure
Councillor Tom Broadhurst submitted a detailed report of the Administration and Procedural Committee with a long list of recommendations governing council procedure which was unanimously adopted. In commending the report Mayor Haggart said it is an effort to streamline council business and he suggested that as experience recommended changes amendments should be made from time to time. Councillor Broadhurst said he agreed with the Mayor's suggestion.

One provision of the report was that all correspondence shall be referred to the chairman of the appropriate committee before presentation to council. After discussion with the committee the chairman shall present it to council with the committee recommendation at which point it will be deemed to have been formally presented to council.

Bayview Sidewalk
Reeve Perkins as chairman of the Works Committee recommended that York Central High School District be charged fifty per cent of the cost of a new sidewalk on Bayview.

The Works Committee also reported that new refuse containers will be placed on Yonge Street.

Texaco Station
Planning Board reported that it had examined the application of the Texaco Co. for construction of a gas station at Harding Blvd. and Yonge St. It reported this was in a commercial zone, but whether or not a licence for a gas station should be given is a matter for council decision.

Mayor Haggart said he had requests from people in the area concerned who wished to make representations to council, and he thought any decision should be deferred until these ratepayers could be heard.

Sunday Movies
Council on motion of Councillor Tom Broadhurst agreed to ask the provincial legislature for legislation to allow Sunday movies in Richmond Hill in accordance with the vote of the people in the municipal election.

On Wednesday, February 1st, Mr. E. Ainley moved from Yongehurst Rd. where he has lived for the past nine years, to take up residence with his daughter in Willowdale.

Walkway
A letter from the Public School Board suggested that in the event council is considering a permanent way from South Taylor Mills Drive to service the new park on Crosby Ave., such right-of-way might be very conveniently located adjacent to the west boundary of the Crosby school property. It was pointed out that if this could be done the walkway would service the park, and the school and would be adjacent to the school property. The suggestion was referred to the Property Committee for a report.

Car Wash
Ben Freedman, Downsview made application for a permit for a Car Wash to be established on North Yonge Street. Council referred the application to the Planning Board for a recommendation and it was also intimated the Yonge Street Committee would be consulted.

Outdoor Rinks
Two letters were received relative to outdoor facilities for skating. Mrs. Daphne Straumann, 376 Bevel Crescent said adults and children thoroughly enjoy skating on the Mill Pond. Not many other communities are so fortunate as to have such a large outdoor surface for skating, she said. Her suggestion was that hockey playing be confined to specified areas and others kept free for pleasure skating.

Mrs. Donald M. Hay, 142 Driscoll Rd. claimed there was discrimination shown by the town in providing recreational facilities and was critical of town employees responsible for the rinks. Said Mrs. Hay in her letter to council "I resent the attitude that seems to prevail that hockey players must have good rinks, while anything at all will do for those children skating for pleasure."

The letters were referred to the Works Committee for reports. Deputy-reeve Bradstock spoke in defence of Works Commissioner Whalen mentioned in one letter. He referred to Mr. Whalen as a trusted employee, willing and conscientious.

Nature Notes
(By Richmond Hill Naturalists)

It was a very cold day, but brilliantly sunny for the Naturalists outing on Sunday, January 22. We arrived at the fire hall, around 9 a.m. and almost hoped that no one else would turn up so we could have scuttled home to our nice warm beds. However John and Gwen Lunn naturally arrived as they were leading the outing and also Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Bancroft. Thus three sparsely loaded cars took off from the fire hall south on Yonge St. along the Maple Sideroad and out into the morning. At the first few short halts we were disappointed — maybe the birds were wise and had decided to stay in bed. We looked for hawks (various) all along the Maple Road and down Highway 400, but no, it was not to be, except for one Sparrow Hawk which hovered briefly on the east side of the highway. However the hawks, some Red Tails but predominantly Rough Legs were waiting for us along 401 on the north side between 400 and the Streetsville Road. At this point there was a short walk — very short indeed, along a wooded ridge on which nothing was seen. On again, with the frozen walkers, to Streetsville where John had told us we might see Long Eared and Short Eared Owls. When we saw them, knowing John's affiliations, the thought crossed my mind that he had imported to the Matson's garden some of the Museum's taxidermy. There were no less than twenty four Long Ears sitting cheek by jowl in some rather small weary looking cedar and spruce growth and they gazed back at the gaping mortals who were crouching on the ground a mere 20 to 25 feet away. We also noted eight Short Ears in flight.

We took to the cars again and down to the Lakeshore towards Oakville where we started to look for duck. It was difficult to pick out the different species because of the very bright shimmer on the lake so we decided to go to the Cement Pier for lunch. After lunch we made a short trip to find Field and Tree Sparrows. They were not immediately visible and we decided it was too cold to leave the cars and try to put them up. On along towards Port Credit where John Lunn's knowledge of the district and the whereabouts of the duck really came to the fore. He has a wonderful facility for driving in behind apartment blocks and finding their parking lots, which are mostly on the beach; so he enabled us to have an excellent view of everything from the cars. Along this stretch of the Lakeshore we saw Greater Scaup, Buffleheads, Golden Eye, Old Squaw and a few Common and Red-breasted Mergansers, plenty of Mallards and Blacks but no Ring-necked Duck. We didn't see all the duck we had hoped for and it seemed apparent that with the change in the wind and the weather the birds had moved and scattered.

At Sunnyside there was a Glaucous and Iceland Gull and two Greater Black Backs and the flock of half tame Canada Geese. We had looked for Snowy Owls all along our route with no success until we were at a pull off at Sunnyside. There Lunn junior remarked there was a Snowy on the beach and of course there was, when it was pointed out to you that the big whiteish rock down by the water's edge really was a Snowy.

We finished our day by briefly touring Mount Pleasant Cemetery to see if we could find the flock of about sixty Cedar wax-wings with two Bohemians amongst them, as previously reported. There were a few Cedar wax wings.

As you will notice, briefly figures quite often in this brief account but quite honestly an emergence from a nice warm car took quite a bit of doing even for the hardiest amongst us. Thanks to the Lunn's we had a wonderful day and I personally say, in spite of the weather, let's do it again.
