Charged With Selling Minors Liquor Markham Man Gets Benefit Of Doubt

Victor Flegan of R. R. 2 Markham, charged with selling liquor to minors by Markham Village Police, pleaded not guilty in the Newmarket Court on Monday and had the case dismissed by Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake who said that while he might have his personal suspicions about accused's innocence he could not, on the basis of all the evidence, feel reasonably certain that Flegan was guilty.

Police said on February 9 accused was kept under observation while he made two separate beer purchases at the Markham brewers' warehouse, that both times the beer was removed from his car by a youth, placed in another car occupied by four underage youths and that the car was then driven away. Flegan claimed responsibility. He told the court that when he was stopped by police on his way home in his vehicle he told them that someone had taken two cases of beer from his car.

Seventeen-year-old Jack Wideman, also of R. R. 2 Markham, testified that he paid Flegan $2.25 and again $1.25 with which accused purchased a 12-bottle case and six-bottle case for him and his friends. Flegan said he was expecting some friends in, he insisted. "I bought the second, smaller case because I thought the 12-bottle case might not be enough. Young Wideman came with me to the beer store because he didn't have anything else to do, and on his own responsibility, we left my car together and the beer later disappeared."

The crown case that accused's testimony was not worthy of belief. The magistrate said it would be dangerous to convict only on the evidence of an accomplice without reasonable corroboration. He added that the police testimony could be interpreted to agree with the testimony of the police or the accused. It was also brought out that Wideman was presently on probation over a theft conviction.

The fate of Robert Petrie, who pleaded guilty to a breaking and entering charge laid by Markham Township Police, will be known March 20 pending a pre-sentence report by Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake of the Newmarket Court. The case, aired March 13, showed that on January 7 accused gained entrance to a service station a half mile south of No. 7 and lifted between $50 and $70 in bills and $6.80 in change. He was picked up by Metro Toronto Police and turned over to Markham Township. Petrie claimed unemployment and need motivated him. He said his girl friend and acquaintances had stood by him and produced a letter from a minister which said a job as a carpenter would be made available if he received mercy from the court. Raymond Dobson of Toronto, who has been helping Petrie, told the magistrate: "I figure if he gets a break he'll turn over a new leaf. He's got to stop getting into trouble sometime." At this point the crown said that Petrie had a long record. He has already served an 18-month term for receiving, and one year for auto theft. His January 7th fall from grace had culminated 11 years of periodic misdemeanors. Magistrate Hollinrake said that while he had no alternative but to bring down a conviction he was aware of the difficulties facing a man with a record who felt he could straighten out.

"Seventeen is too young to be getting drunk," the magistrate told Gary Rutledge of Newmarket, charged with being intoxicated in a public place on March 11. "Have you any money to pay your fine?" the cad asked accused. "Yes," said Rutledge. "I have $29 my mother gave me." Said the magistrate: "I'm going to place you on probation for six months. That will be a more effective way of handling you than taking your mother's money." Rutledge claimed he found several bottles of beer on a sidewalk and drank it.

Eighteen-year-old Geo. Brian Hall of Stouffville, convicted of the theft of a car who was up for sentence in Newmarket Court on March 13, was remanded one month to the House of Concord. The boy's mother testified that her husband was too strict with him, while she probably was not strict enough. "He was allowed out only one night each week and it just wasn't enough," she said. "He just had to get out." She said when he had belonged to the air cadets he had been a model son. "He has been trying to get into the air force," she continued, "but has just recently been turned down for the time being." Magistrate S. Hollinrake said, "I can't really send him home if he doesn't get along with his father. I'll send him to the House of Concord for a month and if in that time a position opens up for him in the air force he will be available."

John Charles of Oak Ridges pleaded not guilty to an impaired charge laid by Richmond Hill Police on February 22. Police said when arrested his breath smelled of liquor, his voice was slurred, his eyes were glassy and that he had to be helped into the cruiser. He was kept overnight in a cell and for several hours prepared for sleep by singing hymns. Charles said he had spent the day fishing on Lake Simcoe and that he had been breathing in oil fumes from the oil burner in the fishing hut most of that time. He was just groggy, not drunk, he said. The court thought it odd that if he were groggy he should sing in the cell for several hours. Charles looked thoughtful but insisted stoutly the few beers he had consumed eight hours prior to his arrest did not affect him. He was fuddled and not his normal self, he maintained. Magistrate Hollinrake decided to adjourn the case one day to allow Charles time to bring in a witness who, accused said, pained, had promised to be in court.

Planning Board To Rush Study Of Parking Needs

Members of Richmond Hill Town Planning Board, meeting on Tuesday, instructed Consultant M. Farrow to bring to their meeting next week, if at all possible, a revised picture of parking requirements to be provided by developers for new commercial buildings. He was asked to recommend a new layout for different zones based on the type of use. The move followed an appeal to the board last week by Mayor James Haggart, who felt Richmond Hill's ability to secure highly desirable commercial development depended largely upon a different approach to parking requirements.

"Our old by-law covered the situation much better," said Planning Board member J. McDiarmid. Other members agreed that various types of usage affected the situation considerably. The board's consultant pointed out that there was a great deal of difference between the space required by various types of businesses and the time that parking space was occupied by customers. Discuss Building Heights

Discussing the lack of limitation of building heights in a commercial area at the present time, members agreed that 100 feet provided a good margin. This is a subject to discuss with the Works Commissioner and the Fire Chief. This height, members emphasized, was not likely to be a factor at the present time but it was felt that it made good provision for the future.

Vaughan Briefs
At its regular Monday meeting on March 13, Vaughan Township Council confirmed the agreement with Ronald Reed, Dog Control Officer for Vaughan in its present form.

Instructed the township engineer to examine and report on the flooding of property in Township Lot 16, Concession 4, caused by the obstruction in a normal water course.

Said that as the provisions of the township's freezing-by-law would be effectively provided for in the zoning by-law that Vaughan would not apply for an extension of the freezing-by-law (which was a temporary means of control pending the new zoning by-law's clearance) which will expire on March 31.
