Davidson Mission Band
At the beginning of 1962, Mission Bands in the United Church, along with other organizations, will come to an end and assume a new name and a new programme.

To mark this milestone the Davidson Mission Band held a special meeting recently, when they entertained Dr. Belle Davidson, wife of a former minister at Brown's Corners Church and at one time a missionary in India, for whom the Band was named.

Mrs. Davidson, now in her 89th year, lives in the Ellesmere area, and spoke briefly to the children. Others, formerly interested in the Davidson Mission Band, who were guests on this occasion, were Mrs. C. J. Russell of Unionville, Miss Mary Rodick, Mrs. H. R. Patterson, Mrs. D. Hood, Mrs. Norman Reid.

tion the event was staged. The financial results were worthwhile. Saturday of last week, with Jack Stewart and Bob Leitch in charge, an enthusiastic group met at Buttonville W. I. W.I. Hears Mrs. Clarke Young Mrs. Clarke Young of Unionville, spoke to Buttonville W.I. members at their November meeting, Wednesday afternoon of last week when at Buttonville W. I. Hall.

Mrs. Young brought to her listeners the little known facts of the private lives of ladies of our Royal family. "On a recent tour," said Mrs. Young, "the royal luggage for 30 people weighed eight tons." Other items of interest included the facts that in Buckingham Palace there are 28 clocks which must be wound at regular intervals; there are three miles of red carpet, 12 chefs, and the kitchens and royal dining table lie a quarter of a mile apart.

Mrs. Adam Brown, W. I. president, chaired the meeting, and the roll call taken by the secretary, Mrs. J. Rodick, was a joke or an antique which the member was asked to explain. Among the latter were a china plate, from Holyrood House which a member of Mrs. Henry Harper's family had been given at Queen Victoria's accession to the throne; a wooden spoon, made by an early Dutch settler who had carved it for his lady love after she accepted his offer of marriage (this was said to be spooning!) and a summer parasol which had been carried by an ancestor of one of the members when she rode to Toronto on one of the first trips made on the Grand Trunk Railway.

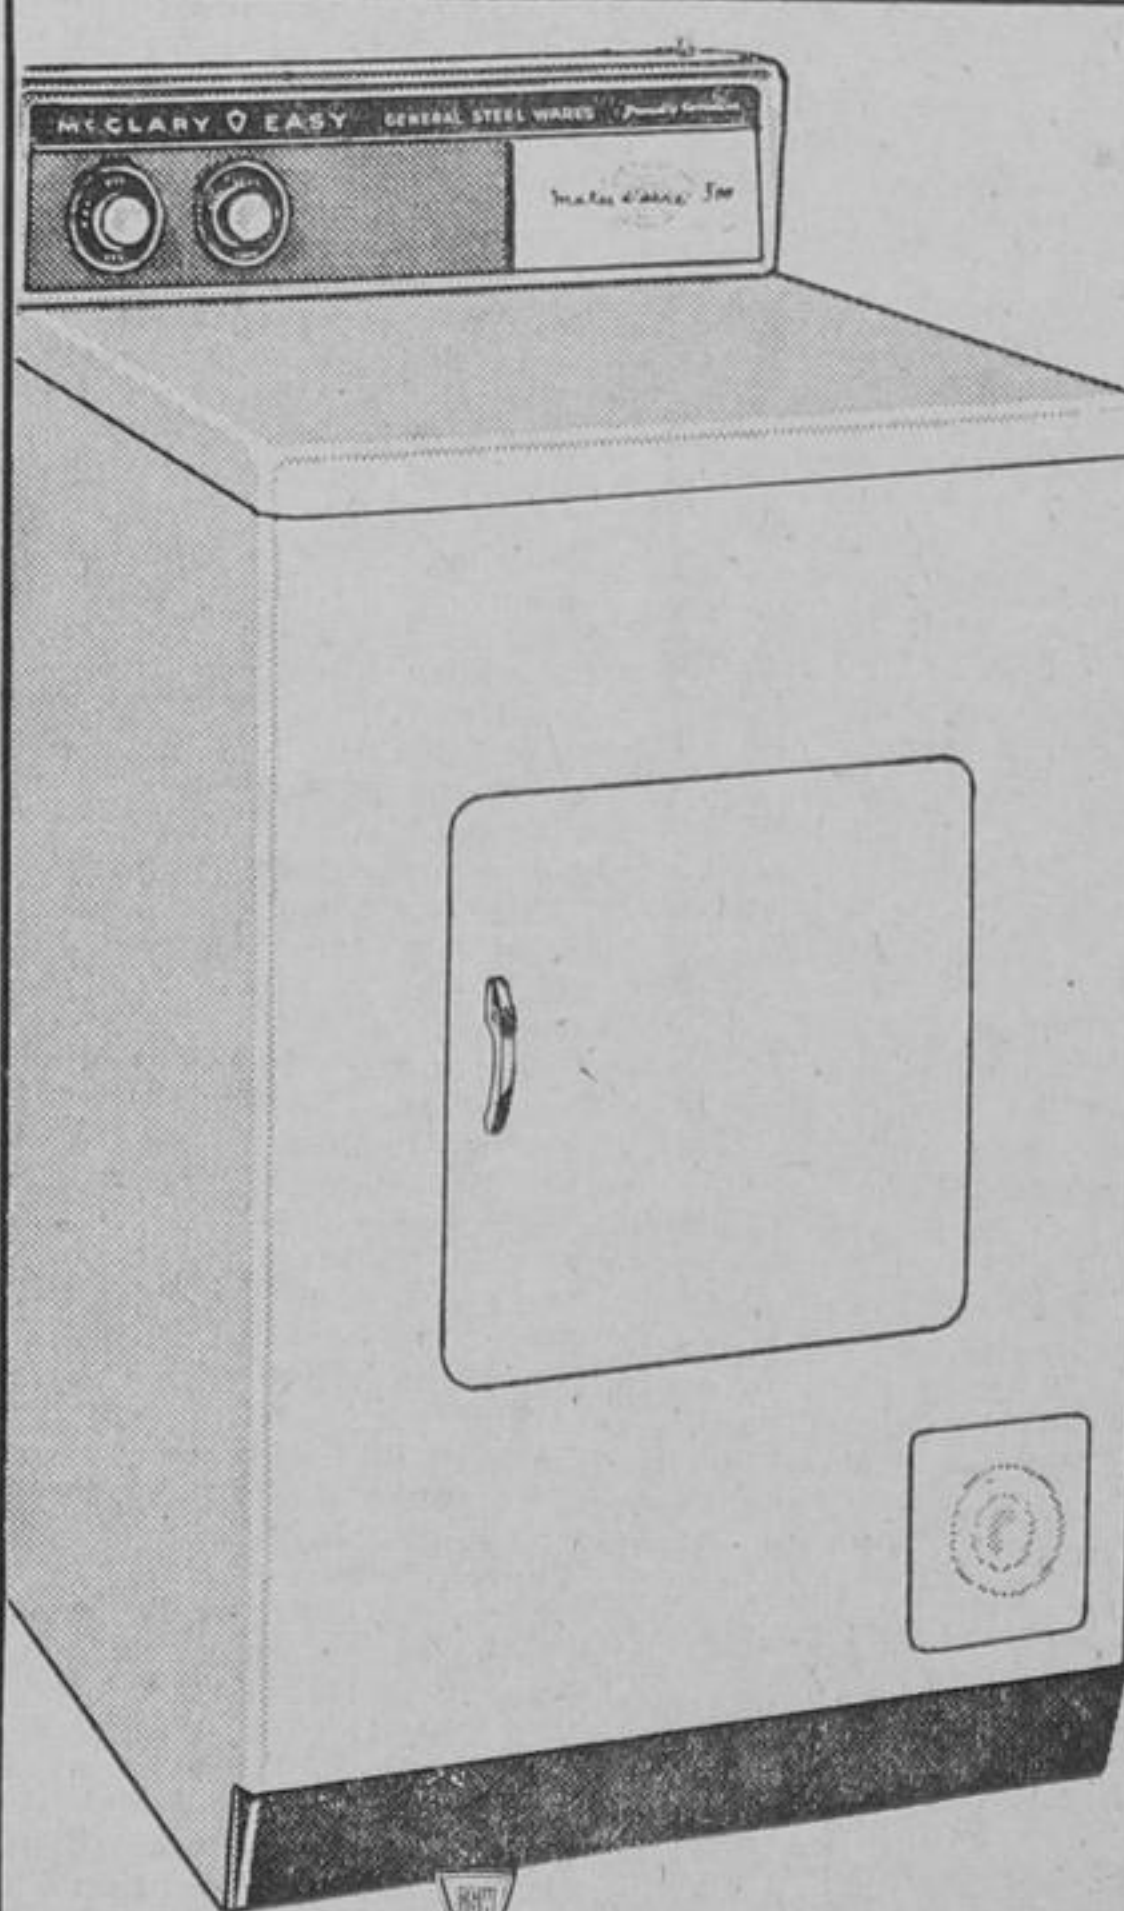

Director Eases Planning Board Work, Says Head
After concluding his public hearing on the amended zoning and land use by-law for Richmond Hill approximately a month ago, members of the Ontario Municipal Board who conducted the hearing left the town's planning board with the job of negotiating with property owners who wanted amendments or clarifications.

The board and its new planning director, Harold Deeks, have been working steadily on this for the past four weeks, and have interviewed all parties concerned. The big task was practically completed last week, and necessary amendments will now go to the municipal board, which will then be in a position to make its final decision.

Winding up the board's weekly session at the end of the job, Chairman Ross Scrimger commented on the improvement which had resulted through having a planning director working steadily on it. The board, instead of a weekly session which usually extended to eleven or beyond, had cleared up its work at 10:30 p.m., even with the heavier agenda negotiated by the zoning by-law negotiations.
