The influence of colour on our every-day life was the theme of the talk given by Mrs. Eleanor Brown, colour consultant of Simpson's, at the annual spring luncheon of the Richmond Hill Presbyterian Women's Association on April 25.

"There is more to colour than meets the eyes," she stated. Red, she said, was the colour of excitement which increases body activity, as well as blood pressure and irritability. It is associated with courage, action and success.

Blue is the tranquilizer, the colour of cold, depression and tiredness, most often associated with loyalty, hope and surprise.

Yellow, a sunny colour, gives out the greatest reflection and is associated with cowardice, health and wealth, and a bit of excitement.

Green, another tranquilizer, refers to jealousy, inexperience, immaturity and wealth.

Purple depicts suffering, mystery, royalty and anger.

Black is sinister, the colour of despair and death. White stands for purity, faith and peace.

Many instances of the practical use of colour in hospitals and in industrial and commercial concerns were given by Mrs. Brown, who pointed out that one of the unchangeable laws of nature is that everything must be in balance, even colours. "The beige era in decorating," she said, "is out." This safe colour reflected our complacency with our way of life.

Anxiety about the future is reflected in the return to the traditional styles in furnishings, as we look to the past for reassurance. Slipovers are back with materials of patterns, plains, stripes in co-ordinated groupings all in the same room. Choose colours you like, not necessarily those currently popular, Mrs. Brown advised.

Climaxing Mrs. Brown's talk, three volunteers each chose five colours they instinctively liked — and from their choice, the speaker gave brief character readings, which, judging from the reaction of the subjects and their friends, were very accurate. The volunteers were Mesdames Rickard, Nelson and McKenzie. Mrs. Brown most effectively used their colour choices in decorating make-ups of a bedroom and a dining room.

"Of all God's gifts to the sight of man, none is so uplifting as colour," Mrs. Brown said in concluding her talk which the two hundred women in attendance found intensely interesting. Other guests who contributed to the enjoyment of the afternoon were Mrs. Charles Harding, pianist, and Mrs. A. A. Landers, soloist, who chose to sing the old favourites, "My Ain Folk" and "An Old Fashioned House".

W.A. President Mrs. M. Docherty introduced the head table guests. Mrs. J. N. Hepburn asked the blessing; Mrs. W. Wilson introduced the speaker, and Mrs. W. Sayers thanked the three guests who had contributed to the program. Mrs. H. H. Mackay was the general convener for the delicious luncheon, which preceded the entertainment.

Prize lists have been issued for Richmond Hill's 113th annual Spring Fair, to be held here Saturday, May 19th. President Milton Savage and a hard-working group of directors are busy preparing for this annual event and an attractive program will be offered. It's not too early to invite your friends to spend that day in Richmond Hill. It always is a day of many happy reunions of old friends and for over a century has been one of Richmond Hill's big days.

Mrs. D. Toogood and Brian returned home after spending the week-end at the Statler Hotel in Buffalo. Brian has been very busy during the Easter holidays. He was entertained in the Georgian room by his aunt, Mrs. D. Chandler to celebrate his 11th birthday. On Friday and Saturday mornings he competed in the Peel Music Festival in classical ballet and demi classical classes and won two seconds.

On Sunday morning he appeared with Susan Kirkpatrick in a ballet number on Uncle Jerry's Club on WBEW TV. The two children received some very favourable comments for their performance. Susan and Brian are pupils of Mrs. Sylvia Garsion, in Richmond Hill.

In-Service Classes Given 1/2 Credit Grant

Trustee Mrs. Irene Worrell paid tribute to the most successful in-service course for 1961-62 held in Walter Scott School and said "Our Mrs. Helen Crawford has been used to a great extent to make this course a success... and her report cards are cute!" The board unanimously voted on her recommendation that a half-credit be granted for the eight teachers who passed the course.
