Craftsman L. Sargeant Aids English Restoration

One of the five beautiful centre-pieces gracing the ceiling of the ball room, 50 feet from floor level of the room, which is 100 feet in length and 44 feet in width, and part of the $1,000,000 restoration work of the assembly rooms, in the City of Bath, Somerset, England.

Artist is applying finishing touches of colour to the fret-panels supporting the palm fronds and acanthus leaves of this centre-piece designed by artist Oliver Messel, one of Britain's top designers (uncle of Antony Armstrong Jones), and produced under the supervision of Bath's Clerk of Works, Leslie Sargeant.

"Glad to be back again—living in Richmond Hill" was voiced by members of the Sargeant family after their recent return from England aboard the "Empress of Canada". Reason for leaving their Richmond Street home was due to a call from England for Mr. Leslie Sargeant to return and engage in restoration of bombed buildings. He is the fourth generation descendant of a family always engaged in skilled masonry and restoration of churches, cathedrals and other buildings.

In Canada, Mr. Sargeant will perhaps be best remembered for his restoration work, and the "new look" given to Toronto's Casa Loma, this project re-

Authentically reproduced in detail from old photographs of the original — is shown the long perimeter and intersecting ribs — the enrichments, patras and motives, the latter consisting of palm fronds and acanthus leaf, while the patras comprise acanthus leaf swirl and sunburst, alternating.

The hole in the centre is for the insertion of the stem of the crystal chandelier — designed and made by Johnathan Collet in 1770 — of Waterford glass, white reflective type, unequalled by Spain or Czechoslovakia. During the bombing raids these chandeliers were stored in the Cheddar Caves, near Bristol, for 20 years. There are five of these chandeliers which are insured for the amount of $15,000 each.

led construction work, is the blue-green glazed brick facing, set in tapestry pattern, together with all masonry work of Richmond Hill's Canadian award winning public library.

In England, Mr. Sargeant was appointed clerk of works, city of Bath, Somerset (regard- ing architecturally as one of the finest cities in Britain). His initial project was the supervision of the $1,000,000 restoration of the Assembly Rooms, National Trust of England, of which the Queen Mother is the president and Lord Crawford the chair- man.

These Assembly Rooms—built by Woods the Younger in 1741

Professor, Sir Albert Richardson, P.P.R.O. (con- sidered Britain's top architect since the time of Sir Christopher Wren) together with architect E. A. Houpe, are shown closely scrutinizing the very delicate patras and enrichments adorning one of the authentic reproductions of a "John Adams" fireplace, a number of which are installed in the Assembly —were destroyed by enemy action in World War II, being completely gutted, only the walls remained standing. The people of Bath had come forward with old photos and prints which proved invaluable in the restoration, while oddments found in the rubble patched together like a jigsaw to regain the form of the original mould- ings in plaster, wood and stone, and so the work went forward.

The beautiful interlacing ceilings in the tea room, the stone Colonnades in Corinthian and Ionic orders with the exquisite swag and dropcarvings, together with the Robert Adams fireplaces, were all faithfully re- produced. Many architects, artists and skilled workers, celebrated in their own field, were employed in the restoration, and this job was really a great honour, also a great responsibility for a clerk of works, for he had to be familiar with all Rooms, Bath, Somerset, England, as part of the $1,000,000 restoration work.

The bases and side panels of these fireplaces are of Sicilian marble and were reproduced under the supervision of Mr. Leslie Sargeant (in right foreground), Clerk of Works, City of Bath. The two gentlemen in the rear are Mr. W. E. Jeffries (general foreman) and Mr. M. G. Butler (quantity surveyor), trades and practices. Unfortunately the climate of Bath did not suit Mrs. Sargeant and she developed asthma so badly there that the specialist urged a speedy return to Canada. The restoration being almost completed, Mr. Sargeant put his case before the National Trust and with reluctance they allowed his contract to terminate, also advising him "that should you return to England further contracts await you". Before leaving England, Mr. Sargeant promised the National Trust that he would fly back in April 1963 for the grand opening, by Princess Marina, as it is his duty, clerk of works, to receive the Princess. The rest of the Sargeant family, three daughters and a son are happy in their vocations and studies, while their silky black and white cat "Gipsy" (bought from a band of Gypsies in Devonshire) is enjoying the new environment. Though back in Richmond Hill but a few weeks, Mrs. Sargeant states that she "feels a different person — asthma almost gone".

Book Circulation Jumps 8,800 Over '61 In Don Mills District

Wrapped in a new coat of deep turquoise hue and decorated with a sketch of the modernistic North York Library, Toronto's Suburban-North telephone directory was mailed to customers in Don Mills last week.

"Steady growth of the area is evident in the number of directories being distributed this year," said W. C. Barnes, Bell Telephone manager for this region. "More than 61,300 books have been sent out in the area served by the directory. This is an increase of 8,800 over 1961's distribution."

The Toronto Suburban North directory is distributed to telephone subscribers in Don Mills, Thornhill and Willowdale. One of the notable changes in the directory is the size of the section on direct distance dialing (DDD). In the 1961 directory there was only one page devoted to DDD, but the 1962 book devotes six pages to the service, listing communities all over North America that can be reached by DDD.

"Over 69,000 direct distance dialing calls are made daily in the Toronto area," said Mr. Barnes. "This accounts for the enlargement of the directory section covering DDD."

In line with the continent-wide trend to seven figure numbers more of this type of listing appears in the new directory. As new telephones are installed or transfers made, all figure numbers are assigned. Under the conversion to all-figure numbers, Hickory 7 be-

Award Franchise To Hill Cleaners

Barth's Cleaners of Richmond Hill have recently been granted an exclusive licence by Sanitone for the use of their dry cleaning process in the Richmond Hill area.

Philip Barth, owner of the plant emphasized that Sanitone licences are granted only to dry cleaning plants able to meet the highest standards of quality.

Mr. Barth stated that licences are granted only after having been carefully screened as to their plant policies, emphasis on quality and everything that goes to make a dry cleaning operation stand out from ordinary routine operations.

He said that the licences are granted on a monthly basis. A monthly inspection by Sanitone insures that a high quality of operation is maintained by the local operator.

The Sanitone dry cleaning process has recently been awarded the Chatelaine Magazine Seal of Approval in Canada.

and Mrs. Dot Turner and Mrs. Marg Williams as co-secretaries.

The pool committee will be a sub-committee of the recreation committee and will have the full support and co-operation of our municipal government. Everyone is in complete accord and agree that a pool is not a luxury but an essential amenity to the town. Now comes the hard part — raising the necessary funds.

As chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Whillans has a job that is not exactly a sinecure. Planning pool construction and selecting a site are comparatively easy tasks. Implementing the entire project is something else again.

Mr. Whillans is an enthusiastic about this project as it is possible for a human to be. He is not a starry-eyed dreamer but an intensely practical financial man who recognizes that it will not be an easy job to raise the necessary capital. And he's still willing to tackle this large undertaking.

An initial meeting of the pool committee was held on Wednesday night of last week in Richmond Hill. The meeting was mainly exploratory in nature and an attempt to set a common goal. Sites for the pool were suggested and some definite action will be taken in the near future to finalize the location of the pool. Committee members were of a somewhat divided opinion as to whether or not an indoor or outdoor pool should be constructed. After some discussion they decided that an outdoor pool would be most practical at this particular time.

No, it doesn't necessarily mean that we'll be swimming in a Richmond Hill pool this year. There are a great many details to be ironed out and a lot of investigating to be done by several people. What it does mean, is that a group of citizens with a great interest in the affairs of Richmond Hill, are bound and determined to see that a pool is built just as quickly as possible.

If anyone is as vitally interested in getting a pool as these people are, why not contact them and offer YOUR help. This is a community project, a project intended to benefit the whole area, directly or indirectly. A great many people have indicated in the past that a pool was important to them. Now's the chance to show just how badly we do want a swimming pool.

As the plans of the committee solidify a great many people will be asked to contribute their support in one way or another. If, as has been indicated, the interest is there, then the eventual success of the program will be assured. It can be done, and with a lot of help it will be done. Success, if you'll pardon a pun, will be achieved through a pooling of ideas and resources.

This is a very active committee and we'll be looking forward eagerly to further reports of their progress. They are working hard to benefit all and deserve the fullest support and complete co-operation of all citizens.

The prime purpose of the pool, exclusive of pleasure and physical well being, will be the education of our children in water safety. With this end in mind we'd like to take the liberty of hanging a motto on the pool project, "SALUTES PER SAPIENTIAM" — Our shaky high school Latin thinks it translates as safety through knowledge. And we're probably very, very wrong.
