Restrict Use Of Water In Village

Hot weather and soaring demands on King City's water supply forced village trustees last week to appeal to residents for a tight conservation of available water.

King City Fire Brigade joined in the campaign to impress upon ratepayers the need for their co-operation.

In spite of vacations decreasing the village's 1,800 population considerably, water consumption jumped in one day to 180,000 gallons, double the amount normally used.

As a result, low water pressure was experienced over the weekend, until the restriction placed on all outdoor watering restored the water tank level and regular pressure.

Fire Chief David Glass and two brigade members, Jim Sim and John Loughran, knocked on doors to warn residents low water pressure could seriously hamper any fire-fighting. They asked residents to co-operate by turning off hoses and going easy on domestic water.

Trustees issued notices re-imposing the ban on all outdoor watering that was lifted a month earlier.

The well level at which water was obtainable dropped two feet during the heat wave.

Albert Leek wondered if Headford were being invaded by airborne pygmies when he saw small strange craft hover over one of their fields and gently light.

When he approached it he found no occupant but a message to any finder to call a North York number. After a number of phone calls it was discovered that the errant glider had been launched at Agincourt from the aircraft meet and had struck off on its own path of adventure.

After more phone calls the owner was located and was able to pick up his machine. Albert has since had a letter from the owner thanking him for the rescue and care of his glider.

Amend OWRC ByLaw

Legislation which provides for the inspection of plumbing by municipalities and local boards of health has been enlarged as a result of an amendment to the Ontario Water Resources Commission Act. The amendment, now in effect, provides more specifically for such inspections by municipalities, including counties, and by local boards of health under agreements with the local municipalities or counties. It is made clear that plumbing inspectors may enter premises to carry out their duties, and provision is made for the enforcement of the plumbing code where a conviction is recorded for constructing plumbing contrary to the code.

90% of all oil company product research in Canada is done by Imperial

At Imperial Oil's laboratories at Sarnia, Ontario, more than 200 scientists and technicians are working to improve present petroleum products — and to develop new ones. Their research covers many fields, from gasolines to household detergents.

Another 130 scientists and technicians are working at Imperial's Calgary laboratories on ways to find and produce more Canadian crude oil and natural gas. Imperial does more research than all other oil companies in Canada combined.

Every barrel of crude oil contains some of the sun's heat. Imperial research works to unlock more of this energy. After five years' intensive research, Imperial found a chemical additive which makes more heating oil available from Canadian crude oil. One important result: less oil imported to heat Canadian homes.
