Work Begins On New Catholic Church

Construction started on the $300,000 Our Lady Queen of the World Catholic Church on Bayview Avenue last week as bulldozers moved in to excavate the basement. A large auditorium complete with stage, dressing rooms, classrooms and kitchen will be housed in the lower level. When completed the church will feature a modernistic belltower visible to travellers approaching Richmond Hill. Architects are Gilleland and Janis Ltd., Toronto and contractors are Perwin Construction Ltd., Willowdale. Father F. C. Robinson is pastor of the parish.

ELGIN MILLS - JEFFERSON

During the farewell service at St. John's Anglican Church last Sunday morning, the Rev. D. C. H. Michell thanked all those members of the parish who have served faithfully and well in His service, administering to the congregation with their various talents. He particularly thanked Mrs. Harden, organist, for her splendid work with the choir at St. Mark's and St. John's.

Before delivering his final sermon, before going on 18 months' leave to England, the retiring rector of St. John's told the congregation the Rev. Thomas Robinson, a former curate of St. John's parish, will become minister and priest of this parish officially today, Thursday, and will preach the sermon at the 11 o'clock Sunday service.

Mr. Michell leaves many friends in this community, and all wish him a safe journey and a good Sabbath leave on his arrival in England.

Back to School

John Passmore, Jefferson, commenced his course at O.C.E. this week. John intends to teach high school athletics after graduation.

Progressing Well

Mrs. Jack Bayley, Elgin Mills, is making excellent progress and now able to really "walk" on her own again. Among her visitors from this area last week were Mrs. Dewsbury of the Richmond Hill W.I. and Mrs. H. G. Robertson. Visitors have been to see Mrs. Bayley from as far away as England. She has been in hospital 14 weeks. Her many friends join with her family in hoping she will soon be back home again.

While visiting with Mrs. Bayley on Sunday afternoon, we learned there is an interesting story behind the arthritic research being done at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Toronto.

It is only two years since this program began in Canada, and is still in the experimental stages.

There are just 30 patients, 26 women on one floor in two rooms, and four men patients on another floor of the Kent Building. The world of science and top-ranking specialists in Canada and elsewhere are awaiting the results of these "guinea pig" patients—many of whom have "walked" out of the hospital and back into a productive life, after months and years of suffering and inactivity.

Birthdays

Also on Sunday, Jack Bayley entertained son John and his wife Pauline and their two little children for a short visit, on the occasion of Mr. Bayley's birthday.

We just happened to meet a former Brookside last weekend, Bill Barrow, and learned the Barrows are now living in Markham Township, and Bill hopes to leave for a month's vacation in Ireland next Sunday.

Navy League Cadets

John Robertson has joined his brother, Cadet David Robertson, attending the Navy League Cadets, "on deck", at Roselawn Public School, Toronto, Thursday nights.

The League would like to open up a ship's company in the vicinity of Richmond Hill—if it could find a suitable building.

If you have any suggestions, call this correspondent. This is a very fine outfit, for boys 12 years and up.

1st Jefferson M.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the 1st Jefferson Mothers' Auxiliary was held at the home of vice-president Mrs. Hans Hallgren, with a good attendance, and Mrs. Ratchford, president, said they were pleased to welcome four new members. Following a general discussion of business, a social hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting is October 27. Please note change of date.

Fall Fair Shows Creative Talents

(By Margaret I. McLean)

Even a cloudy day with intermittent drizzle did little to dampen the enthusiasm of the swarms of youngsters who descended on Walter Scott Public School last Saturday afternoon and enjoyed the fifth annual fall fair organized by the home and school association in co-operation with the staff of the school and the parents of the students.

Saturday was the first time in the fair's five years that there has been rain, but convener Mrs. W. Strugnell reported that the poor weather appeared to have little effect on the attendance or income from the fair. The home and school association expects to clear somewhere in the neighbourhood of $300.00. This will be used to purchase equipment for the school—in previous years a tape recorder and a record player were given to the school out of the proceeds of the fair—and to provide a $50.00 prize for the best all-around Grade 13 graduate at Bayview Secondary School.

Any visitor to the fair could not help but be aware that the whole affair reflected a splendid co-operation between the home and school association, the parents and the principal and staff of the school.

Staff Busy
Principal Nathan Davidson was on hand to take part in the fun, as were several of the teachers—Miss O. Cox and Miss J. Peterkin poured tea in the attractively decorated tea room. Mr. J. Wheeler was in charge of the very flourishing skate exchange, and also was judge of the best-dressed dog competition and Miss Shirley Gee judged the best-decorated doll carriage competition.

Teachers from other schools were also brought into the act. Mrs. Beatrice Bryant, an art teacher from Beverly Acres Public School judged the art exhibition—and found it hard to pick winners from so much wonderful and vivid work; the children's baking was judged by Miss Florence Staunton of MacKillop School; a retired teacher, Mrs. Catherine Forsythe judged the class projects, both those done at school and at home.

The town public school board was represented by Trustee Mrs. Irene Castle who judged the stamp collections and the science projects. Superintendent Gordon McIntyre judged the exhibition of handwriting.

This fair was a real community project and not the usual bake sale - white elephants - fish pond type of thing where a few hard-working people do most of the work. The bulk of the fair consisted of a huge display of creative work done by the children, either by themselves or under the supervision of their teachers. It was all well displayed in the school auditorium and it was obvious that both teachers and children had spent a great deal of time preparing the interesting and instructive exhibits.

Of particular interest was a very large (about six feet long, I would judge) three-dimensional map, the joint work of room 9, a grade 4 class, which had been done to illustrate the geography terms they use in their school work.

And just a glance at the gay art work covering all one wall of the auditorium made clear the extreme difficulty of Mrs. Bryant's task in judging it. What impressed me about it was not only its colour, but the imagination shown in the work. It was obvious that the series of books about 'Curious George' have been children's favourites, and the picture entitled 'Curious George Paints A Room' was highly dramatic.

Grade 2 children had done a series of paintings on the theme, "If I lived on a farm" with several arresting scenes, such as "I'd ride a horse", "I'd pick apples" and the like. One very sophisticated picture for a grade 2 level was entitled "Fun on the Midway".

The stamp collections were numerous. The first prize winner in this category, Bob Strugnell, a grade 4 student had done a very original layout "The World of Maps in Stamps", which consisted of a large map of the world with stamps attached in appropriate places, a fine way to combine geography and stamp collecting.

The second prize stamp collection belonged to a grade 5 student, Leonard Hrynkiw while third prize went to 8th grade Elke Neugebauer whose very neatly arranged display included factual information about the country which issued each stamp.

Creative Projects
The various science projects were most interesting. Second prize for a science project illustrating the use of a pulley went to Mark Dobbs for his entrancing and efficient looking model of - of all things - a guillotine! The charming little model of a volcanic island, complete with intriguing pipe cleaner palm trees won a first prize for Carol Hack and Frances Cumming who co-operated on the project to very good effect.

One of the most interesting of the class projects was that of room 2, a grade 6 class, which had constructed an Indian village from brown paper. It included a tepee, a canoe (about six feet long) a fierce totem pole, a trade board complete with infant, a hide stretcher, a travois and clothing made from burlap.

Another ambitious project was the grade 8 history project, illustrating what Richmond Hill possibly looked like in 1818. There were model log cabins, a church, a school, and various other buildings, ingeniously contrived from shoe boxes with one side open to show the furniture inside.

Fish Pond
Of course the small fry clustered deep just about all afternoon around the fish pond and Mrs. Ellen Parrett and Mrs. Madge Nicholson who were in charge of it had a busy time removing the fish from the hooks and awarding suitable prizes to the excited anglers.

Refreshments
Just about as busy were Mrs. Joan Brown and Mrs. J. McKenzie who were frenziedly dispensing hot dogs and pop all afternoon. The candy table, presided over by Mrs. Mona Card and Mrs. Marion Beaton was completely sold out in less than an hour, as was the bake table, in charge of Mrs. Muriel Oliver.

Mrs. Ann Shubaly, Vivian Stefan and Joan Doyle. The skate exchange gave Mr.

Wheeler a very busy time and something over $85.00 worth of skates were sold for their owners.

Tea Room

And while the youngsters departed themselves in every direction, the mothers were glad to seek shelter in the attractively decorated tea room where Mrs. Adele Downey, Mrs. Gerry Stewart and Mrs. E. Crittenden together with numerous helpers, dispensed delicious sandwiches, cakes and very welcome tea.

Prize Winners
Throughout the afternoon lucky numbers were drawn and prizes awarded. This was looked after by Mr. B. Eveleigh, a grade 8 teacher and several of his students. The winner of the bounteous hamper of groceries was Mrs. M. Lamoureux of 465 Palmer Ave.

The white elephant table, supervised by Mrs. J. Ley and her son David, proved very popular and was pretty well cleaned out by 2:30.

Vote Thanks

As well as all those in charge of the various departments, convener Mrs. Strugnell was most appreciative of the co-operation which she received from the principal and his staff, the caretakers who moved all the tables over from St. Matthew's United Church, from Mrs. Evelyn Dobbs who received all the entries on Friday evening, from Mrs. Joan Laird who collected all the prizes from merchants both in Richmond Hill and Toronto, from all the merchants—too numerous to mention—who donated prizes, from Mr. V. Evans the president of the home and school association and from Mrs. Nan McCourt and Mrs. Mary Colvin who picked out a suitable prize for each one of the prize-winners and addressed it—no little task when you consider that there were 51 classes, with three winners in each category.
